Lucky Novatan Gets $56,000 Awakening

His Horse Nosed Out, But He's In Money

Harold C. Olsen of 573 Ferando Drive, Novato, was roused out of a sound sleep today to learn he had won $56,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes.

He wouldn't believe it.

Olsen had a ticket on Arctic Storm, nosed out of first place in a photo finish with Tambourine II in the race today at Naas, Ireland.

A ticket on the "place" horse pays 20,000 British pounds—roughly $56,000.

He had received a letter Thursday informing him he had drawn that horse in the race, but he still would not believe that he had won. "It's a million to one chance—it just can't be" he kept muttering.

When assured by an Independent-Journal reporter that it was true, he finally said happily, "Why, I'll buy everybody a cigar."

His wife, Jean, heard the news first.

"I'll be dammed!" she said.

The day started out like any other Saturday for the Olsens. Jean, who works day shift at E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito, had gone downtown Novato to the hair dressers. Olsen, who had worked swing shift last night at Bergman Manufacturing Co. in San Rafael, was still asleep when the news arrived.

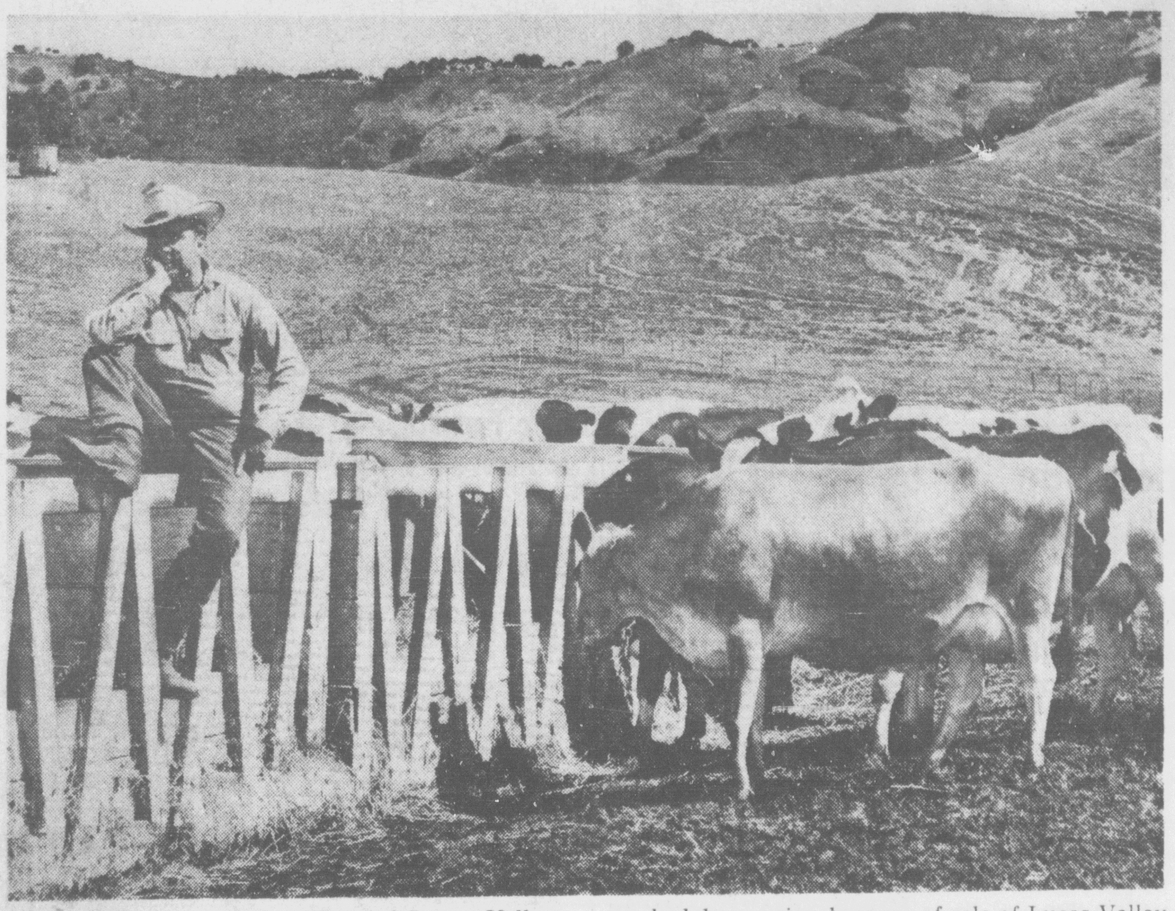

Olsen could not be roused out of his sound sleep. A friend, C. W. Johnson of 609 Manuel Drive, came by to see if Olsen wanted to go fishing tomorrow. Johnson went downtown where he and the reporter found Mrs. Olsen at Highway 101 Restaurant having breakfast.

Mrs. Olsen, after being con-

'SOLD OUT'—Manuel Gonsalves of Lucas Valley sadly contemplates his dairy cows. After July 29, he'll have no sale for their milk except at a sharply marked-down price, because of sale of Lucas Valley Dairy to the Petaluma Co-operative Creamery. "We were sold down the river," he charged.

Co-op Deal May Force Six Dairymen Out Of Business

By PHILIP FRADKIN

Six longtime Marin dairymen, whose contracts with Lucas Valley Dairy in San Rafael have been canceled, face the possibility of being forced out of business.

The sale of Lucas Valley Dairy to the Petaluma Co-operative Creamery was announced yesterday. The dairymen were notified that their contracts will be terminated July 29.

Three alternatives face dairymen Joe Sequeira, Manual Gonsalves, Joseph Luiz Jr., Ernest Luiz, Reynald Genazzi and Frank Soares.

They can sell their milk as "manufacturing milk," at a much lower price; they can buy contracts with the Petaluma Co-operative or another firm, or they can go out of business.

Supplying milk used for manufacturing purposes, such as butter and cheese, would result in a price drop from $5.50 per 100 pounds for Grade A milk, to between $2.80 and $3.30 per 100 pounds at the Grade B rate.

Willard Engvall, county farm adviser, said he knew of only one Marin dairyman in the last four years who had been able to buy a contract for furnishing Grade A milk to a processor.

Contracts for sale of Grade A milk to dairy processors are bought and sold like liquor licenses. Engvall estimated it would cost about $120,000 to purchase a Petaluma Co-operative contract for supplying 600 gallons of milk per day — or $2,000 for each 10-gallon can of daily production. In addition to that, the purchaser would have to buy the cows of whoever previously held the contract.

Engvall expressed slight hope that some major milk processing company might come into Marin "within a reasonable time" and offer contracts to the dairymen cut off by sale of Lucas Valley Dairy.

But the dairymen were far from optimistic.

Joseph Luiz Jr., of the Luiz Brothers Dairy on Lucas Valley Road, said it would cost him between $75,000 and $100,000 to buy a Petaluma Co-operative contract. He said if he could not get a contract with another milk company, "I will go out of business."

Manuel Gonsalves, who owns the Big Rock Ranch on Lucas Valley Road, said, "We were killed." He predicted today, "The way it is now I will go out

U.S. Explodes 24th Nuclear Shot In Series

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States today set off the 24th announced shot in its Pacific nuclear test series—a big plane-dropped device equal to one million tons of TNT or more.

The detonation near British-owned Christmas Island was announced as the defense department blamed test instruments that "superheated" a launching rocket for the failure of America's second high-altitude shot in the Pacific June 19.

In the unsuccessful high altitude shot on June 19, a Thor missile that was to have carried a nuclear warhead to an altitude of 200 miles over Johnston Island disintegrated soon after it was fired. The warhead had an explosive force equal to more than a million tons of TNT.

Gate Bridge Above Deck Is Proposed

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors yesterday heard a proposal for a second bridge deck above—instead of below—the present one.

They also heard the City of Sausalito's protest against running a new highway to connect with the bridge through that city.

The second deck proposal came from O. C. Rusch, a San Francisco civil engineer.

The bridge board has voted for a survey of possibility of adding a second vehicular deck, after ruling out a second deck to carry rapid transit trains.

Rusch proposed the second deck not be suspended under the present one, as previously discussed, but be placed above it. He proposed also that it have its own supporting suspension cables.

There was no speculation as to whether such a deck could just as well carry trains. The bridge board referred the idea to committee.

Sausalito's protest, voted unanimously Tuesday by its city council, was presented by Mayor Paul Micou. He said a

Boat Shop Blaze: $50,000 In Ashes

A fast-moving fire roared through the Loch Lomond Marina Boat Shop at 630 Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael, last night, leaving all but a small section of the $50,000 building in ashes.

Loss of building and contents could go well over $65,000.

Flames, driven by a steady west wind, touched the overcast sky with a pink glow that was seen for miles over the San Rafael waterfront.

Cause of the blaze was still undetermined today. San Rafael Fire Chief Vance Trivett said he had found no evidence pointing to arson.

The wood frame building, completed two years ago, belongs to the Robert McCarthy Co. of San Francisco, operator of the marina.

It was occupied by Sheldon Yacht Sales, Loch Lomond Boat Shop and by Alfred Coffee of Sebastopol, who was operating a boat cover shop. McCarthy also had an office in the building.

The structure included a large rectangular storage area on the south with a wing of shops and offices extending to the north.

McCarthy, who came from his home in San Francisco to view the wreckage this morning, said the building cost from $45,000 to $50,000 to build. He said he had insurance up to 90 per cent of loss.

McCarthy said he would put up a new building on the same location, but it would not have a shingle roof as this one did.

Fred D. Manley of 520 Canal Street, San Rafael, operator of Loch Lomond Boat Shop, said his loss will be between $4,500 and $5,000 in boat supplies and accessories. He also lost records of about $1,000 in accounts receivable and a little less than $100 in cash. His insurance will only cover 50 per cent of the loss he said.

David Sheldon, 90 Trellis Drive, San Rafael, owner of Sheldon Yacht Sales, estimated his loss at about $1,000. He believed his insurance would cover most of it. He said he

JFK Places Wreath On Monument In Mexico

COMBINED AP & UPI

MEXICO CITY — President John F. Kennedy today witnesses the signing of a 20-million-dollar Alliance for Progress loan to aid small Mexican farmers and said he hoped the significance of the act would be heeded "beyond our hemisphere."

The president and Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos attended the signing of the farm aid document as they plunged deeper into private talks on Cuba and other hemispheric problems.

The president started the second day of his three-day visit to Mexico by laying a wreath at the independence monument before an audience of 5,000 persons. He walked into the cheering crowd at the end of the brief ceremony to shake as many hands as he could as he pressed on to his bubbletop limousine.

The dazzling tone of the visit was set yesterday when the president was heartened by the mightiest popular tribute paid him in a long line of visits to foreign capitals in Europe and Latin America.

Fortified by a huge welcoming crowd officially estimated at one and one half million, the president later today was to resume private talks with President Mateos on searching out ways of turning aside threats to the hemisphere's political, social and economic progress.

From the monument the president rode in his glass-topped limousine to visit Independencia, a low-cost housing development built by the Social Security Institute of Mexico in 1960 to house about 15,000 persons.

Everyman Crew Picked Up In Test Blast Zone

HONOLULU (AP) — The nuclear protest ketch Everyman II and its three-man California crew were headed back to Honolulu today—in the care of Coast Guard cutters.

The 28-foot ketch was seized by the U.S. government yesterday after it sailed about 10 miles into an expanded nuclear danger zone surrounding Johnston Island. The seizure followed the pacifists' refusal to accept a federal court order prohibiting their entry.

A U.S. marshal boarded the Everyman and ordered the crew to leave the boat. They climbed onto the cutter Matagorda and were placed in isolation in sick bay. None was ill but the Coast Guard asked that the trio be segregated from the Matagorda's sailors.

The Everyman was taken in tow by another cutter, the Ironwood, which had been following the little vessel since it left Honolulu a week ago. Both cutters were due in Honolulu sometime tomorrow.

Aboard the ketch were Dr. Monte Steadman of Corte Madera, Franklin Zahn of Pomona and C. George Benello of Berkeley.

Dr. Steadman, acting as Everyman skipper, was served the restraining order yesterday morning. Steadman asserted the marshal had no jurisdiction to serve the order 190 miles at sea and accused him of not knowing "what he was talking about."

Then, the pacifists turned the boat around and sailed slowly for the test zone. Once they crossed the boundary line, U.S. Atty. Herman T. F. Lum rushed the federal court and obtained the seizure order.

The three men will appear before Federal Judge Martin Pence probably next week to show cause why they shouldn't be cited for contempt.

Mechanics Strike At Greyhound Bus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—About 400 Greyhound bus mechanics went on strike today following a breakdown in contract negotiations.

Greyhound officials said the strike in the Bay Area would not affect commute operations immediately.

Ken Murray, Automotive Machinists union spokesman, said the local members voted the strike action yesterday.

Sir Winston Recovering, Tops Lunch With Brandy

LONDON (UPI) — Sir Winston Churchill, recovering from an operation to mend his broken thigh bone, felt so well today he lunched on asparagus soup, chicken fricassee and coffee topped off with his favorite Napoleon brandy.

A Middlesex Hospital spokesman said the 87-year-old former prime minister "has been comfortable today and his condition is satisfactory," but the fact he was able to lunch in style on some of his favorite food was an even more eloquent indication of his condition.

Churchill broke his left thigh bone Thursday when he fell from bed while visiting Monte Carlo on a brief vacation. He was flown to London yesterday in a Royal Air Force ambulance plane and doctors operated on him last night to lock the bone together with steel pins.

Earlier today Lady Churchill visited the old warrior and reported afterwards he was "cheerful but a little drowsy." Churchill missed a visit by the Archbishop of Canterbury because the doctors were with him at the time and he slept through a visit by the chaplain.

The weather today gave Churchill some of the sunshine he missed on the Riviera. The hospital arranged special awnings to protect the windows of his room when the sun broke out at midday.

Strike Threat On Monday Called By Plumbers Union

The Plumbers Union served notice yesterday its members in Marin, San Francisco, Sonoma and Mendocino counties will not report for work after Monday unless a new contract is signed by then.

Local 38 of the union, which covers the four counties, has been negotiating for several weeks with employer representatives in San Francisco. There have been no negotiations in Marin, however.

Union representatives scheduled a meeting at 8 p.m. yesterday with Richard F. Wood, executive manager of Associated Plumbing Contarctors of Marin, to discuss a Marin settlement. However, negotiations were still under way with two employer associations in San Francisco, so the Marin discussions were postponed.

"I feel confident we can settle the matter by the Mon-

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

JUST A GAG—The Washington Star yesterday printed these reproductions of a regular sized one dollar bill (top) and one that has been shrunken by soaking and other processes known as "creping" and said the smaller one had been imported from Texas, but didn't say where in Texas. The shrunken buck has been dubbed a "Kennedy Dollar" by some Republicans. (AP Wirephoto)

Soblen Remains Under Guard

JERUSALEM, Israeli Section (AP)—Dr. Robert A. Soblen remained under guard in a hospital ward today while signs multiplied that the Israel government would speedily deport the Soviet spy sentenced to life imprisonment in the United States.

Soblen jumped bail in New York Tuesday and fled to Israel to seek asylum. But authoritative sources said the Israeli government is not willing to grant the 62-year-old Jewish phychiatrist a visa that would permit him to remain.

Every Jew has the legal right to settle in Israel, but the government has the right to expel undesirables.

The United States has asked that Soblen be returned to serve the sentence he was scheduled to have begun this week.

Soblen's lawyer here, Aki Ankorio, expressed belief the fugitive might be entitled to remain in Israel on the ground that the crime for which he was convicted was primarily political.

Soblen is suffering from lukemia, an incurable cancer of the blood.

Atom Smasher Shuts

BERKELEY (UPI) — The most famous and the most productive atom smasher in history shuts down at University of California today, outmoded by progress.

The machine is the 60-inch cyclotron at the university's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory.

It has been in almost continuous operation for 23 years and has been instrumental in some of the most significant scientific developments of the atomic age, including creation of the elements neptunium and plutonium, discovery of carbon 14 and the use of radio-isotopes in medicine.

Against Prayer Ruling

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Evangelist Billy Graham yesterday joined the opposition to the U.S. Supreme Court's decision against prayer in New York public schools.

Graham said it was ironical that the court "ruled God out of the public schools of New York the same day it gave homosexuality a federal license to advertise itself through the mails."

He said the court's decision could possibly be the beginning of a "dangerous trend which could eventually cut the recognition of God from our lives."

Graham said it's even possible that the court has paved the way toward the point "where we may take 'in God we trust' off our coins, remove chaplains from the armed forces and make it so a president doesn't put his hand on a Bible when he takes the oath of office."

"I don't think our forefathers meant freedom from religion, but freedom of religion—and there's a vast distinction," Graham said.

Lutherans' Budget

DETROIT (UPI) — Delegates of the Lutheran Church in America (LCA) meeting in convention here today studied a 58.6-million-dollar budget for the new organization's first two calendar years (1963-64)

The proposed budget meant an increase in assessments for some 3.2 million members of the new church. Michigan Lutherans of the Old United Lutheran Church, for example, will now have to pay $25 annually instead of $22.

It will be presented to the 1,000 delegates attending by the Rev. Dr. Martin E. Carlson, former director of the stewardship for the former Augustana Lutheran Church.

Major items in the budget are for missionary work. The board of American Missions will receive 13 million dollars for two years operations. Some 7.5 million dollars are scheduled for the first year and another 5.5 million for the second year.

Third biggest item in the budget with 2.5 million dollars is Lutheran World Action, an overseas interchurch aid program.

Steel Price Cut

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — One of the nation's biggest producers of stainless steel, Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp., yesterday announced a 5 per cent price cut in its "popular grades" of stainless sheets and plates effective July 2.

A spokesman for the company said competitive conditions in the stainlesss sheet and plate market led to the reduction.

After the price goes into effect, there will be some changes in "extras," the spokesman said.

Troops From Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States probably will withdraw about 7,500 Army troops from Europe this summer, informed sources said today.

This would be the first reduction of U.S. strength there since the Berlin crisis military buildup last fall.

The men to be pulled back would be support troops — quartermaster, signal, ordnance and the like.

Thus, there would be no weakening of U.S. combat-type forces, arrayed mostly in Germany.

At the height of the Berlin crisis, when Russia was threatening to force a decision on control of the divided German city, the United States sent 40,000 support troops to reinforce the 7th Army in Germany.

It was understood the 7,500 men to be brought home would come out of that 40,000.

Convicts Hold Out

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Ten hungry, thirsty convicts, who have created their own prison on a water tower at Western Correctional Institution, today held out on a catwalk — longer than anyone expected.

Another hot, sunny day was forecast with a high temperature of 88 degrees. Prison officials said they were sure the prisoners would crack under the burden of hunger, thirst and heat, and come down before the weekend was over.

One of the convicts, Robert Payne, 29, has been on the 80-foot tower since Monday. Twelve others with a supply of candy bars joined him the next day.

However, three have given up and descended.

Pamela Mason Files

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — Actress Pamela Mason yesterday filed a separate maintenance suit against her husband, actor James Mason, and asked $14,000 monthly support from the British-born star.

Mrs. Mason, who said she had no plans to file for divorce, also obtained a temporary restraining order to keep the actor from taking their two children out of the state or transferring any community property from the state.

Mason is en route to Hollywood from England where he has been visiting his parents.

The suit, filed in superior court by Mrs. Mason's attorney, Paul Caruso, charges Mason with extreme mental cruelty.

Actress Files Suit

SANTA MONICA (AP)—Actress Millie Perkins filed suit yesterday to divorce actor Dean Stockwell.

Miss Perkins, 22, star of the movie "The Diary of Anne Frank," charged extreme cruelty and grievous mental suffering.

She married Stockwell, 26, May 8, 1960. They have no children. A property settlement has been worked out.

Actor Recovering

BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — A heart specialist who has been checking daily on the condition of Edward G. Robinson through a cardiographic record transmitted by telephone from Africa today listed the star's condition as satisfactory.

The doctor declined to give specific information on Robinson's condition in a hospital at Nairobi, but indicated Robinson was making a satisfactory recovery. The star was taken ill almost two weeks ago on location in Africa.

The local doctor, who declined for professional reasons to permit use of his name, said the results of the long-distance testing was "very satisfactory."

Volcano Erupts

ASAHIKAWA, Japan (UPI) — Mount Tokachi, a 6,745-foot volcano in central Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island, erupted last night and early today.

Four persons were killed, one was missing and nine others were injured, according to police reports.

Explosions in the crater were still heard early today at seven to eight minute intervals and the volcano belched white smoke.

GOP Leaders Get Together At Ike's Farm

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—GOP officials from throughout the country rally around former President Dwight D. Eisenhower today to form an all-Republican conference.

But the party's congressional leaders waited to see the plan unwrapped and working before buying.

National Chairman William E. Miller billed the circus tent meeting at Eisenhower's farm as one aimed at demonstrating that Republicans can provide the new leadership he said the nation needs.

NO QUARREL

While they had no quarrel with this concept, the party's Senate and House chieftains said they did not know how the proposed conference would operate. Nor would they try to estimate the influence it might have on the Republican congressional policies the leaders have assumed responsibility for making.

Miller has said the new group would not pass on issues before Congress but would interpret state, national and international trends, giving Republicans out of Congress a forum.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told a news conference in Washington Friday that "all I know about this is what I see in the papers."

NOT HAPPY

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana made it rather apparent the congressional quarterbacks would not relish having any group outside of Congress interfere in their signal calling.

"We can use all of the help we can get," he said. "We'll be glad to have it. But I think we've been doing all right."

John M. Bailey, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, derided the Republican effort. He said in a Washington statement that the all-Republican conference "appears to be a misnomer, created by the Madison Avenue hucksters who dreamed up this extravaganza of solving the country's problems."

Eisenhower and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon had top billing among a long list of speakers.

WEDDING PLANS ANNOUNCED

Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, an influential member of the Democratic Party, and Paul G. Hoffman, a corporation executive and now director of the United Nations Special Fund, will be married July 19. Mrs. Rosenberg, 59, recently obtained a divorce. Hoffman, 71, is a widower. He is also a Republican. (AP Wirephoto)

Bipartisan Health Plan Looks Hopeful

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan plan for giving health care to the aged through Social Security financing has been unveiled in the Senate and appears to have a good chance of passing.

The administration's health care plan has been bottled up in the House Ways and Means Committee.

The new compromise picked up support of five Republicans as soon as it was explained to the Senate yesterday.

It contains the same benefits as the Kennedy measure but would also cover persons not under Social Security and would bring in private health insurance policies.

Although only five GOP senators were listed as sponsors of the compromise, one Republican said privately he expected several more would vote for it.

PREPARING FOR BIG PARADE

Boys and girls from all playgrounds supervised by the San Rafael Recreation Department are getting ready for the annual playground parade Thursday. The parade of gaily decorated bicycles will lead around the neighborhoods of each playground involved. There will also be scooters, trikes and wagons. Shown above are a group at Albert's Field getting ready for the parade. Pictured with Playground Supervisor Miss Carol Franchini are Bill Stevens, Betty Stevens, Ronnie Lukesh, Richard Schafer, Michael Sulivan, Dave Morey, David Buckley and Cathy Allread. THE END OF AN ERA

Waldo Market Is No More

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Waldo Market looked at its last sun yesterday, was bitten by a big red clamshell crane and then was no more.

It was the last of the wartime commercial buildings to be torn down in Marin City to make way for a new shopping center. It was the only major establishment which did not move to temporary quarters since it was outbid by Brice Brothers Market for the one market operation.

Work is under way on streets, curbs, drains and gutters on the hillside for housing and in the flatland for a shopping center. The modern center will feature a lagoon-type development with bridges between shops.

In general, residents seemed to have a happy feeling about the demolishing of the old stores to make way for "progress." Asked if she were sad to see the old stores razed, Nita Hayden, whose father, Daniel Hayden, owns Hayden's Department Store, replied, "I'm not sad."

However, there was one man: S. Schladweiler of Mill Valley. "Slod," as he is better known, was associated with Waldo Market since it was built. He owned the grocery section for the past six years.

"It is very depressing to leave an area like this," said Schladweiler. "There's where all of our friends are . . . we have had them since 1942."

He said that he cut prices 10 to 20 per cent to get rid of an $15,000 inventory and ended up with $600 in groceries. "I'll be five years eating up the groceries," he said.

Schladweiler said he will stay in the grocery business if possible but has nothing lined up. He said that he gave credit at the market and, for the most part, all his customers were good risks.

Others who worked in the market were Roger Shepherd, Glen Robinson, Percy Durbin, Hardy Westmore, Bill Murray, Ed Rencke and Joe Ray.

The numerous signs on the old market before the crane came yesterday told part of the story of Marin City. They read: "Waldo Market. Wine and Liquors, Meats, Groceries"; "Store Hours . . ."; "We Give S&H Green Stamps"; and one, hand printed in ink, "Local 15 will sing Sunday, June 24 at 3 p.m. The Gospel Fellowship Church. Rev. L. D. Samuels, pastor."

That was yesterday. Today the land, which may be used for the site of a new fire station, is nothing but open ground.

Drama, Dance Classes For Students Set

Drama and dance classes for children and high school students will be offered from July 9 to Aug. 17 at the Festival Theater in San Anselmo.

Carol Brumm, a member of the theater staff, will direct the drama classes for teen-agers and children aged 9 to 12 years. She founded the Straw Hat Theater, forerunner of the Festival Theater, with Elizabeth Berryhill. She also has been an instructor in the University of California drama department.

Classical ballet and modern dance will be taught by Maurine Simoneau, choreographer and a member of the San Francisco Ballet. She is also a member and costume designer for the Festival Theater.

Enrollment for the classes is now open at the theater, 2 Kensington Road, San Anselmo.

Flying Trip To Be Famliy Excursion

San Rafael City Manager Dan E. Andersen's flying trip to Europe will not be a tour of the continent in the grand manner. It is more of a family excursion.

But his wife, Irene, plans a more leisurely trip and lots of sightseeing.

The couple will leave tomorrow for Los Angeles, where they will board a Scandinavian Air Service plane for Denmark.

Andersen's main purpose in the trip is to visit his father, Harold B. Andersen, 79, formerly of Tacoma, Wash., who is now living in Copenhagen.

Andersen will also meet a new daughter-in-law in a quick trip to Heilbronn, Germany. Andersen's son, Richard, an Army private stationed in Heilbron, married Barbara Drexel on June 9. This will be her first meeting with her in-laws.

And wedding bells will be calling Andersen home. Another son, Dan E. Andersen Jr., is to marry Carolyn Bodergary of Daly City in San Francisco July 28.

Between weddings and visits with his father, the city manager does not expect to see much of Europe. He plans to be back in San Rafael July 23.

Mrs. Andersen, however, will join a friend for a tour of Italy, France and other countries.

Art, Garden Fair Slates Attractions To Please All

A celebrated array of garden exhibits at the Marin Art and Garden Fair, to be held in Ross July 3-7, will be supplemented with entertainment by Marin and other Bay Area talent.

Included in the admission price will be varied attractions planned to please all ages and tastes.

Hours for the 1962 show will be from 6 p.m. the opening day and from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. thereafter.

A sophisticated fashion show will be held on the opening night at 8:45. Volunteer models of the Mannequin League of Marin will parade in styles from the City of Paris, San Francisco.

On Wednesday afternoon 40 young girls will perform Japanese folk dancing in a program sponsored by the Marin Nakayoshi Society.

Judo will be demonstrated by the Delmo Esposti's School of Judo at 2 p.m. July 4.

A stellar attraction that evening at 8:30 will be "Excerpts from the Mikado" by the Lamplighters, a San Francisco professional Gilbert and Sullivan repertory group. This entertainment will be given at 8:30 p.m.

Thursday, July 5, the program includes a brush painting demonstration by Takahiko Mikami of the Japanese Art Center in San Francisco at 2 p.m. and a variety show at 8:30 p.m. by barbershop singers (the Marin Chapter of the SPEBSQSA).

Cesare Claudio of Kentfield will direct a symphony concert on the Northgate stage in the dining area at 8:45, July 6.

On the closing night the Pacific Ballet will be directed by Alan Howard in the amphitheater.

Featured every day of the fair will be a puppet circus by the Lessellis, Jerry Geraldo, the Clown, organ concerts, color films of Japan and of Audubon features; a slide show of award winning color slides in the fair's photography contest, square and folk dancing and a special program, "High School Dance Time" with a different Marin high school band playing each day for dancing and listening.

Bolinas Battery Charge Dismissed

George Turner Marsh, 27, of Stinson Beach, accused of committing battery against a mail truck driver on May 21, was freed of the charge yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

However, Judge William E. Jensen of Vallejo, sitting in the Marin court, warned Marsh that he was probably guilty of "some misconduct" for driving all the way to Bolinas Postoffice to continue an argument that started at the Stinson Beach Postoffice. Judge Jensen held evidence was not sufficient for a battery conviction.

At the suggestion of the judge, Jensen and the mailman, William James Roberts, 32, of Sausalito, shook hands at the conclusion of the trial.

Roberts testified that he and Marsh argued over a chain fence strung across the receiving entrance at the Stinson Beach Postoffice. Roberts said Marsh shoved him, and he struck back.

When Roberts drove to Bolinas, he found Marsh waiting for him there. The mailman testified he got out and tried to push Marsh away, and the scuffle started again. Witnesses saw both men swinging fists and scuffling. Roberts fell to the ground. Roberts and one witness said Marsh kicked the mailman. Other witnesses did not see the kicking.

Marsh's lawyer, Thomas Barfield of Bolinas, moved for dismissal, which the judge granted. Barfield argued that the mailman was the aggressor, at least at Bolinas, because he put his hand out first to push Marsh away.

ADDS NEW TITLE—Dr. Robert N. Noyce, 33-year-old general manager of Fairchild Semiconductor, Mountain View, has been elected a vice president of the parent company, Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp., Syosset, N.Y. He will retain the title of general manager of the semiconductor division. Noyce officiated at the groundbreaking of Fairchild's diode plant in San Rafael in 1960.

Sales Tax Revenue For Marin Goes Up

Marin County received 5.1 per cent more sales tax revenue for the 1961-62 fiscal year than for the previous year, according to the State Board of Equalization.

The amount for the current year was $1,781,785 as compared with the previous year's $1,695,184.

Of this the county share for the current year was $277,335, up 2.6 per cent.

Biggest gain on a percentage basis was by the city of Belvedere, up 29.8 per cent. But its amount was only $9,249 as contrasted with the biggest city share, $798,549, though this was a rise of only 6.1 per cent.

Marin's newest city of Novato was the only one to show a loss, its $100,013 being down 4.6 per cent from the former year's $104,800.

Other city totals for the year, with their percentages of gain, follow:

Mill Valley, $146,085, up .9 per cent; Corte Madera, $127,908, up 15.7 per cent; Sausalito, $134,306, up 6.9 per cent; San Anselmo, $87,697, up 3.0 per cent; Larkspur, $51,295, up 7.0 per cent; Fairfax, $45,887, up 5.4 per cent; Ross, $3,460, up 27.2 per cent.

Lawyer To Represent San Rafael Employees

The San Rafael City Employees Assn. has hired San Francisco attorney William J. Murphy to represent it before the city council in salary and job classification discussions.

The council is due Monday night to consider a new salary schedule, including job classification changes, calling for a two and one-half per cent pay raise.

Deputy City Clerk W. C. Cornwell, association vice president, said city employees are not satisfied with some reclassifications and the salary schedule.

Cornwell said San Anselmo and Sausalito city employees have received five per cent raises, and cited the $25 across-the-board raise to Marin County employees granted by the board of supervisors.

The council must make a decision Monday in order that the raises can be reflected on the July 15 paychecks.

Complete Rights On Island Sites Are Requested

Three points of Angel Island, where Coast Guard navigational aids have been placed with an aggregate use of 10.31 acres, have been proposed for withdrawal from all forms of appropriation under the public land laws including general mining and mineral leasing laws.

Notice has been given by the manager of the land office, Bureau of Land Management, at Sacramento, as result of application by the Commander of the 12th Coast Guard District. The withdrawal would be subject to any existing valid claim and any objections must be filed with the land office at Room 4201, 650 Capitol Avenue, Sacramento.

Affected are Points Knox, Stuart and Blunt. The navigational aids are all of the "calling light type," and the one on Point Knox, known as the "Angel Island Light," is red whereas the other two are white.

Teacher Takes Course

Munzer A. Afifi of 145 Locust Avenue, San Rafael, is attending the summer institute for physics teachers at University of Colorado. The institute ends Aug. 17.

Marin Catholic Grads Granted Scholarships

Four students graduated this year from Marin Catholic High School, San Rafael, have received University of San Francisco scholarships.

They are: Francis X. Burch of 40 Selfridge Way, Hamilton Air Force Base; William P. Cordeiro of 420 Fourth Street, San Rafael; Thomas J. O'Connell of 44 San Gabriel Drive, Fairfax, and Robert J. Allerton of Tiburon.

Bishop Officiates

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, will have as its guest preacher during July Rt. Rev. Richard Kirchhoffer, retired bishop of the Diocese of Indianapolis. The bishop will officiate at the 7:30 and 10 a.m. Sunday services.

Foreign Youth To Visit Marin For Study Tour

Fifteen teen-agers from foreign countries will visit Marin County in August on an American Red Cross international study tour.

The young delegates, ages 16 to 19, will live in private homes provided by the Red Cross while studying local government, business and social life. One day during the week visit will be spent at the Red Cross center in San Rafael, where the visitors will observe and participate in service programs, according to Mrs. Frank E. Duhme Jr., chairman of the county Red Cross chapter.

The visitors will attend forums with local high school students and members of the Junior Red Cross; another day will include tours of schools, churches and youth agencies.

The Marin visitors are among more than 100 teen-age delegates who will visit cities throughout the Pacific Coast.

Zone Law Change To Permit Yard Signs

The Corte Madera Planning Commission will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. July 9 in the town hall on a proposed change in the zoning ordinance permitting the commission to approve location of free-standing signs.

At present the board of adjustment passes on proposed locations of free-standing signs in front yards.

U.S. Checks Being Sent To Schools

J-J Special Report

WASHINGTON—U.S. Treasury checks totalling $150,109 are being sent to five Marin County school districts, Rep. Clem Miller reported today.

The checks represent first payments toward the school districts' tentative "entitlement" this year under Public Law 874 which authorizes federal aid to help local school districts pay additional operating costs caused by nearby federal activities, Miller said.

The checks are going to:

Novato Unified School District, immediate payment, $68,198, tentative entitlement for full year, $98,838; Tamalpais Union High School District, immediate payment $39,780, entitlement $57,652; Dixie School District, immediate payment $23,633, entitlement $34,251; San Rafael High School District, immediate payment $14,827, entitlement $21,489; Fairfax School District, immediate payment $3,671, entitlement $5,321.

Federal Jobs Open

Applications for employment with the U.S. Department of State for stenographers, secretaries, communications, accounting, mail, record and file clerk positions are available at the Civil Service Commission, 630 Sansome Street, San Francisco.

There are 20,000 Lapps in Norway, 8,500 in Sweden, 2,300 in Finland and 1,800 in Russia. Only about a fifth are reindeer herders. Most are fishermen and farmers.

Loen Named Head Of Unitarian District

Raymond A. Loen of San Anselmo has been elected president of the Pacific Central District of the Unitarian-Universalist Council.

The area comprises 45 churches and fellowships in northern California, Nevada, Utah and Hawaii.

The election of officers for the Pacific district last week was necessary because of the reorganization of the council into districts of smaller size. Executive offices of the district will open in Berkeley in September.

Loen, president of the Marin Unitarian-Universalist Church, is director of management services in the San Francisco offices of Fibreboard Paper Products Corp.

Growth in the number of churches, fellowships and total membership made the change necessary, according to Loen.

Since 1953, the number of Unitarian-Universalist members within the western region increased almost 300 per cent. Smaller districts, Loen said, provide better service for members.

Serving with Loen are Walter Sorenson of San Jose, vice president, and Mrs. Mary E. Kisner of Palo Alto, secretary. Directors are Mrs. Carmen Jacuysh of San Francisco, Mrs. Beverly Schaff of Pleasant Hill, Dr. Charles Merrifield of Fremont, Rev. Harold Schmidt of Stockton and Rev. Samuel Wright of Berkeley.

Adventist Convention

An international convention held every four years to plan and coordinate work of the Seventh-Day Adventist throughout the world will be held in San Francisco July 26-Aug. 4. Meetings will be in the civic auditorium on weekdays and the Cow Palace on weekends.

School Official Becomes Episcopal Deacon Sunday

County school official Edwin L. Blackmore will be ordained into the perpetual diaconate of the Episcopal Church in ceremonies at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere tomorrow.

Bishop James Pike of the Diocese of California will ordain him.

Blackmore, who is coordinator for rural schools education and assistant secretary to the committee of school district organization, will be assigned as assistant to the rector of St. Stephen's, Rev. Llewellyn White. He will continue in his school post.

As a perpetual deacon, Blackmore may administer the chalice at Holy Communion, take the service of morning prayer, preach, baptize in the absence of the rector and assist in pastoral work.

Blackmore was a former principal of the Belvedere School and superintendent of the Reed School District.

Bishop Pike will remain in Belvedere for July with his family. He will conduct services during the month at St. Stephen's while Rev. White vacations in Piedmont.

School Head To Be Guest Preacher

Dr. Stuart Anderson, president of the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, will conduct the 11 a.m. service at the Fairfax Community Church tomorrow.

The policy of having guest ministers was adopted by the church until a successor to Rev. Jack Biersdorf is found. Rev. Biersdorf accepted a fellowship recently and has returned to New York to resume his studies.

Anderson became president of the Berkeley school in 1950. He is presently a corporate member of the American Board of Commissioners for the Foreign Missions, chairman of the Congregational Council of Theological Schools and a member of the National Board of Directors of the Rockefeller Brothers Theological Fellowship Program.

On July 8, Dr. Kenneth Johnson, a professor at the Pacific School of Religion, will conduct the services. Rev. E. Leroy Abbott, minister of stewardship in the conference office, will preach the sermon on July 15.

Dr. Albert Rasmussen, well-known lecturer, research director and author, will take over the pulpit on July 22. Dr. Rasmussen is a professor of religion and society at the Pacific School of Religion.

Vice Moderator

Rev. Wesley C. Baker, pastor of the San Rafael First Presbyterian Church, was elected vice-moderator of the Synod of California meeting in Los Angeles this week. The synod includes California, Nevada and Utah. Dr. Thomas Holden of Greenbrae is synod executive.

Clergymen's Use Of Freud

By CLAIRE COX
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Freudian psychiatrists and liberal theologians have joined forces to establish a clinic where clergymen rely on the psychoanalyst's couch more than the pulpit in serving a parish of people with troubles.

The American Foundation of Religion and Psychiatry operates one of the nation's largest mental health out-patient clinics. Its $300,000 annual budget is met by contributions from foundations, corporations, individuals, churches and the fees of clients.

Lay personnel, psychologists, psychiatrists and clergymen of the Jewish and Protestant faiths serve 400 persons a week, most of whom appear at the mid-town Manhattan facility on their own initiative. Nearly all profess no active religious affiliation but include people from Roman Catholic, Protestant or Jewish backgrounds. No attempts are made to encourage them to turn to religion and when most of them leave, they have no apparent intention of joining a synagogue or church.

"We make no effort to influence them in the direction of the church," said the Rev. Arthur M. Tingue, associate director of the foundation. "Many people may think that we use religion as a tool, but we don't. We are interested in religion on a broader context—the quality of a relationship between two people or of one person and a variety of situations."

In addition to serving individual clients, the foundation offers training in psychology and psychoanalysis to rabbis and ministers in several programs, ranging from one-week summer seminars to intensive three-year internships qualifying them as pastoral counselors or pastoral psychologists.

The director and co-founder of this perhaps unique operation is Dr. Smiley Blanton, one of the few living psychiatrists who studied under Sigmund Freud.

The board of directors includes Dr. William Menninger, president of the Menninger Foundation of Topeka, Kans.; Rabbi William F. Rosenblum of Temple Israel in New York, and Dr. Earl J. McGrath, executive officer of the Institute of Higher Education at Columbia University's Teachers College.

Retiring in July as board chairman is the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, who, with Blanton, founded the clinic in 1937 to serve the many troubled persons Peale felt needed more time and expert therapy than he was able to give. Peale's place is being taken by a layman, W. Clement Stone, Chicago philanthropist and president of the Combined Insurance Company of America.

Tingue, in an interview, said the great need for centers to treat the emotionally disturbed and to train clergymen in the field was demonstrated by a study showing that about 80 percent of all persons with troubles seek help from ministers before they go to doctors. Nearly all the foundation's clients come from the New York Metropolitan area.

The most advanced group of ministers in training is enrolled in the internship course, which involves full-time study, marriage counseling and child psychology as well as in serving adult clients, more than half of whom are men.

"A minister gets practically no psychological training in seminary," Tingue said. "Most of what he gets is on his own and up to him. People who finish three years of training here are as well-trained as the average psychoanalyst and sometimes better."

Career Guidance For H.S. Students

Varied careers for high school and college graduates will be described in a series of Sunday lectures this summer at the Valley Baptist Church in San Rafael.

The lectures will begin Sunday at 6:30 p.m. and will be held each Sunday evening during July and August, according to James Wickersham, church youth leader. Speakers will include engineers, doctors, nurses, social workes and high school principals.

Member of the First Christian Church of San Rafael will also take part in the weekly discussions.

Baptist School

Vacation Bible school will be held at the Mill Valley First Baptist Church, July 9-20. Classes for kindergarten through junior high school aged children will be from 1 to 3:30 p.m. The title of the school is, "My Bible and I."

RIEDE-PINKSTON NUPTIALS

At an afternoon ceremony today Dr. Beth T. Pinkston of San Rafael and Harold F. Riede of Greenbrae were married at the home of friends in San Francisco. Judge N. Charles Brusatori officiated at the ceremony, which was attended by close friends and relatives.

Stephen Francis gave his mother in marriage and the bridegroom's daughter, Judith Riede, was maid of honor. Richard Riede was best man for his father, and ushers were another son, Robert Riede, and the bride's son, Donald Francis.

A reception followed the wedding, and the couple will spend three weeks in Maui before returning to live in Mr. Riede's home in Greenbrae.

Florence Schraps Engaged To Wed

Engagement of their daughter, Florence Schraps, to David W. Hansen, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. Schraps of Mill Valley.

Parents of the future bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. David Hansen of Larkspur.

The bride-elect will begin her senior year at Tamalpais High School in the fall. She has twin sisters, Jeanette and Paulette Schraps of Mill Valley, and two brothers, Paul Schraps Jr. of Mill Valley, and William Schraps, who is serving with the U.S. Navy.

David, an only child, was graduated from Redwood High School and is serving with the U.S. Army at Fort Ord. The young people are planning a military wedding at Fort Ord on a date which has not yet been selected.

Short Trained

At a formal wedding the bride's dress is short-trained or even trainless, but generally floor-length.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Fourth Of July To Be Marked By Reunion At Owen Home

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

A family reunion and party will be held on the Fourth of July at the Francis F. Owen home in Kent Woodlands to celebrate the arrival of two of her daughters, Mrs. Edwin Schwartz (Elisa Escamilla) and Mrs. John Elwin (Roberta Escamilla) and their husbands and families. Another daughter, Vicki, who has just completed her sophomore year at Stanford, is attending summer school at University of California.

Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz, who have been living in New York ever since their marriage, arrived last week with their four months old daughter, and will live in an apartment in San Francisco. Roberta with her daughter, Elisa, who will be a year old next month flew from New York today. She, her husband with their baby have been driving through Europe. They shipped the car to New York and flew there from London. John is driving the car across the United States and will join his wife and baby at the Owen home in time for the reunion. He intends to study for a Ph.D. in economics.

A FAREWELL cocktail party and dinner will be given tomorrow night honoring Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis of the Reedlands, Tiburon. Three Reedlands couples will be hosts, Messrs. and Mesdames Rupert Jernigan, Arthur Andre and Orville Stocke and the party will be held at the Andre home.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis, who have two children, Ruth, 6, and Charles, 4, are expecting an addition to their family in September. They hope by then their new home in Newport, San Rafael, will be completed.

Other guests tomorrow night will be Doctors and Mesdames Isamu Nieda, John Jansheski, Wendall Carlson, Messrs. and Mesdames Thomas De Mund, Roger Erickson, John Wedereit, Houston Levers, James Kinser, Phillip West, Richard Diaz, Branwell Fanning and Mrs. Jean Coy, all of Reedlands.

THE YOUNGER SET gathered on the bon voyage party given last evening at the Trott home on Pigeon Hollow Road, San Rafael by Byron Trott, a College of Marin student, and Moreen Callon, who has just been graduated from San Rafael High School. Honored were two of her classmates, Sally McCallum and Kathi Cazassa. Sally, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor McCallum of San Rafael is flying to Ohio today to attend Antioch College where she will major in social sciences. The college has the four quarter system and the first quarter of the new term begins soon.

Cathi, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cazassa of San Rafael, sails July 9 on the President Wilson for a tour of Japan sponsored by San Francisco YMCA. The 14 members of the tour group include teenagers from San Francisco, Marin and San Mateo counties. A Japanese professor will give a series of lectures on the ship telling the history of Japan and the customs of its people. In Japan the young people will make their homes with the people in Osaka, San Francisco's "sister" city. The tour group will return by plane Aug. 26. Cathi is entered as an honor student at University of the Pacific in Stockton.

Guests at last night's party enjoyed swimming, a barbecue beside a bon fire and dancing to a band. Invitations to the party called it a summer splash.

A COMPLETE surprise was the dinner party given at Sabella's for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Donegan of San Anselmo in celebration of their twenty fifth wedding anniversary. The party was given by the Donegans' daughter, Miss Patricia Donegan of San Anselmo, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Donegan Jr. of Santa Clara. Guests were Messrs. and Mesdames Dale Simpson, John Ghisolfo, Max Vonnegut, Richard Sowden, James Cense, Richard Hoeflein, Bud Burke, Tim O'Donoghue, Jack Donegan, Clarence Green, Edward Donegan, Mrs. Herman Schoeningh, Mrs. Betty Phillips, Mrs. Frances Norris, Miss Betty Donegan, and John Lawrence.

The senior Donegans have just returned from a trip north during which they visited the World's Fair at Seattle and went to Vancouver and Victoria.

Annelyse Zahn Is Wed In June Rite

St. Elizabeth's Church in San Francisco was the setting on June 23 for the wedding of Annelyse Rose Zahn of San Francisco and Michael J. Klapperich of San Rafael.

The Rev. Arthur Canwell officiated for the 11 o'clock ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Zahn of San Francisco.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace.

Preceding the bride to the alter in apricot organdy sheaths were the bride's sister Mrs. George H. Baker as matron of honor and bridesmaids, Janet Lawrence, the bridegroom's sister Darlene Klapperich and Mrs. Fred Reichardt.

Margaret Baker and Mary Parodi were flower girls.

Jack Kiellan acted as best man for the bridegroom. Ushering guests to their seats were Bill Slattery, Dan Zahn and John Klapperich.

A reception was held at 4:30 at the church.

Serving as altar boys were the bride's brother Stephen Zahn and the bridegroom's brother, William Klapperich.

The bride was graduated from Mercy High School and holds a degree in nursing from the University of San Francisco. She is also the sister of Sister M. Magdalen, Sister of Mercy, and Dan Zahn of San Francisco.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Klapperich of San Rafael, was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and the University of San Francisco. He is employed with Moore Business Form in San Francisco. Maureen and Bill Klapperich are also his brother and sister and he is the grandson of Mrs. Bertha Burke of San Rafael.

Following a wedding trip to Yosemite, the couple will reside in Fairfax.

Wedding Albums

Wedding photograph albums average approximately $3 to $5 per picture, depending upon how many pictures are purchased. This expense will come after the wedding, but should be included in pre-wedding cost estimates.

Joan Zunich Bride Of Leon Pujalet

In a 10 o'clock ceremony on June 23 at San Francisco's Church of the Visitation, Joan Katherine Zunich became the bride of Leon Jean Pujalet of Redwood City.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Zunich of Kentfield.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace with bell skirt.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

The bride was graduated from St. Vincent's High School in San Francisco and attended San Francisco State College. She is employed with the Emporium in San Francisco.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Lascurettes, was graduated from Sequoia High School in Redwood City and Arizona State University.

The newlyweds will reside in San Francisco.

Safe Savings

One rule of thumb on saving is to keep a reserve fund equal to three times the family monthly income.

S.R. Beautiful Group Seeks Landscaped City Entrance

The entrance to San Rafael on Highway 101 has been described as "one of the ugliest in Northern California." Anyone driving in from the south can't help but agree.

The San Rafael Beautiful Committee hopes to be able to do something about it. Specifically it hopes to provide proper conditions so the State Division of Highways will landscape the approach.

Monday night they are scheduled to go before the San Rafael City Council with a request that San Rafael City's sign ordinance be amended to tighten restrictions in the Francisco Boulevard area.

Specifically, there are two billboards which, while perfectly legal under present law, are in violation of state regulations for areas adjacent to a landscaped freeway. So for just two billboards, and the possibility of more, the state is unable to landscape that strip of highway.

The committee will display pictures of landscaped highways at Fresno. It is the feeling of the committee that the state could do as well or better from San Quentin wye to the San Rafael skyway so that both residents and visitors seeking San Rafael Mission or other attractions, would be attracted to the community.

We wish them luck before the city council.

BRICKBATS again and again to parents who fail to instruct their children on the dangers of matches.

A BOUQUET of welcome to the San Francisco mansion moving to suburbs. The people came first! now the buildings. We hope light industry follows soon.

A BOUQUET to County Agricultural Commissioner Richard Straw for getting manpower to keep aging eggs and unfit produce out of Marin County markets. It will put the out-of-county suppliers on their toes for the benefit of our market owners and we food buyers.

A BOUQUET for William Risto of Point Reyes Station on his 102nd birthday anniversary.

BOUQUETS to the promoters of the West Marin Junior Livestock Show for a fine parade, a good chicken dinner and a lot of fun.

SEVERAL BOUQUETS to Kathleen Weitzel, Fairfax for winning top honor in National Latin Examinations and 24 other Upper School, Dominican Convent, students scoring over 100 of a possible 120 in the same test. Also to Ilona Marshall and Elizabeth Hartman, scholarship winners in national Spanish exams.

A BOUQUET to the Marin County Library's program of prizes to children who do the most vacation-time reading.

CDC Won 45, Lost 12 Contested Races In Which It Endorsed

By CHAPIN A. DAY

Trying to catch up with the notebook:

The recent meeting of California Democratic Council board, of which Hans Schiller of Mill Valley is a member, decided the CDC did well in primary endorsements. Of the 57 contested races in which CDC endorsed, their candidates won 45 races and lost 12.

'CHIP' DAY

They won 12 and lost four for Congress, won seven and lost one for State Senate, and won 26 and lost seven for Assembly. CDC endorsed 55 other candidates who weren't opposed and of course won.

The meeting set the dates for the annual convention as the last weekend of March, in Bakersfield this year instead of Fresno. This will be right in the middle of the legislative session in Sacramento but will be an issues convention rather than an endorsing convention in that non-election year.

The directors also passed a resolution, submitted by former Marinite Gerald Hill's subcommittee on natural resources, asking Congress to investigate and allot funds for a pilot project for development of fish protein concentrate as a multipurpose food. The directors ate some cookies made from the concentrate and said they were good, although they couldn't really tell they had fish concentrate in them.

The idea is the project would help California fisheries while at the same time furnishing a new multipurpose food at reasonable cost for distribution to under-fed nations.

WE'VE BEEN ASKED several times why Marin Sen. John F. McCarthy didn't do better in Marin County in his race for lieutenant governor. McCarthy answers:

"I didn't do my homework. I was so busy trying to get the votes in Crazyland (incidentally I had more votes in Los Angeles County than Joe Shell did), that I forgot to let the people here know I'd appreciate their support. I sure learned a lesson that I won't forget."

SEEMS THE DEMOCRATIC committee for Governor Brown's re-election is having trouble with married names. We just received a release telling of the appointment of the chairman of the Northern California Democratic Committee on Registration. Her name: Mrs. Elizabeth Gatov, with space all around and a different typewriter, showing it had said "Smith" and then had to be changed. The former Treasurer of the United States is still on her honeymoon; Albert W. Gatov is on it, too.

A POLL CONDUCTED by the California Teachers Assn. of members of its state council has given a tremendous vote of endorsement to Dr. Ralph Richardson of Los Angeles for state superintendent of public instruction.

Richardson scored a 320 to 33 victory over Dr. Max Rafferty of La Canada in a mail poll of the CTA's policy-making body. The council had supported none of the nine candidates in the primary, but had authorized the poll after the primary votes were tabulated.

SPEAKING OF PEACE

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

DON'T BE TOO DEPENDENT

A casual remark by one of his constituents taught a lesson in humility to a Congressman.

It happened when a voter in Albany, N.Y., telephoned the legislator in Washington, D.C., to seek help because his furnace had broken down.

When the Congressman asked if the caller had reported the trouble to a city inspector, the reply was: "I didn't want to go that high."

The official commented with good grace that it doesn't harm anyone to be whittled down to size.

Representatives in government, whether in low position or high, have the obligation of working for the best interests of the general public.

But citizens should not look to government to shoulder personal responsibilities that God expects each to assume for himself.

Instead of seeking from public authorities the assistance that all should provide for themselves, each person should try to be as dependent on himself as possible.

"For you have been called to liberty, brethren." (Galatians 5:13)

Thanks to You, O bountiful Father, for precious blessings of freedom.

Strawberry Village Now On Tax Roll

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

The residents of the Strawberry Village area are in for a surprise come next December.

For the first time, their tax bill will include their contribution to the Strawberry Recreation District. When this area was annexed to the district, the SRD failed to follow through and see that it was added to their tax base. So, this area has been skipped for about 10 years. During that time Strawberry Village has enjoyed the benefits that SRD offers at no cost.

Based on the 1961-'62 tax rolls and rate, most will pay about $23 a year more. The highest about $52. The lowest $15. During this time the rest of Strawberry has been footing the bill to the tune of about 3 cents to 4 cents in their tax rate.

The unfortunate part is that the SRD is compounding the error into the future by using the 65-cent 1961-'62 rate for their 1962-'63 budget in place of about 61 cents or 62 cents. They refuse to admit that last year's rate should be recomputed including Strawberry Village in the base.

We know that they need the money (who doesn't?). Legally they have the right to impose the 65-cent rate as a maximum. Morally it's wrong, and it's as simple as that—the difference between right and wrong.

Mrs. Gross Long On School Board

EDITOR
Independent-Journal

Maybelle Speckmann's article of June 28 contains one statement which needs correction. Referring to Mrs. Edmond Gross, the article states: "Before she was elected last year as the only member of Mill Valley's Elementary School District board of trustees. . . ."

Mrs. Martin Rosse lacks one year for completion of her second term on this board. No member, in my opinion, has shown a more devoted interest in the progress of the district, and for two years, she served as the board's chairman.

Her thoughtful service is largely responsible for the progress this district has made in the last few years. Her vital interest in education extends to the Tamalpais High School District, College of Marin and national and state educational problems.

If Hub City Fight A Mirage, It Was A Pretty Active One

Never could track down the rumor that a knock-down, drag-out fight erupted near the San Anselmo bus deport area the other night.

Officially, apparently nothing occurred because we couldn't find any police reports on it. But if our informant wasn't just seeing a mirage, there appeared to be a couple of fine physical speciments slugging it out.

IF YOU NEED a haircut, better get them clipped right away. Speculation is that any day now, price of haircuts may be going up in the county. Maybe up to $2.50?

Have you seen the new quarters of the Marin Municipal Water District in Corte Madera? It's a beauty, and the furnishings have a soothing effect.

But something even more soothing may be added soon. Somebody mentioned getting Seeburg Music System to pipe in music to each of the offices.

THEY WERE talking about new street lights in San Anselmo Tuesday night. City fathers were each contributing light on the subject—all except William Franchini. He was completely "in the dark," at least for a few seconds.

A big paper map on the wall behind Franchini slowly detached itself and curled itself directly on top of the unwary councilman and enveloped him in complete darkness. Franchini fought his way out from under the big map and voted for better lighting.

HERE'S A revealing bit of conversation that occurred the other day in court between a Marin judge and a young man accused of petty theft:

Hizzoner: "I suggest you tained a lawyer yet?"

Accused: "Nope."

Hizzoner: "Why not?"

Accused: "A $1,000 retainer fee."

Hizzoner: "I suggest you try a younger attorney.

A WOMAN sentenced for drunken driving was quite concerned about the terms of probation. For the next 90 days, the judge intoned, she may drive only to and from work and in connection with her work. Quite satisfied, she paid her fine and walked out.

About now, she's probably pushing the throttle to the floorboard, spinning around curves on two wheels. You see, she's a race track driver, and it's all "in connection with her work."

THE OLDTIMERS who confidently waited for the three Alcatraz convicts to wash up on the Marin shores are now beginning to wonder. Normally, they say, bodies that are swept out the Gate should have floated in long before this.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

If President Thinks He Has Things Bad Now, Wait Till Next Session

WASHINGTON—If you think that the Kennedy administration is dismayed at what is happening to its legislative program at the hands of the Democratic Congress, you haven't heard the half of it.

"Dismayed" is a conservative description of the way the White House feels about the defeat of the farm bill, the defeat of the urban affairs bill, the probable defeat of the medicare bill, the probable defeat of major provisions of the tax bill—and so forth.

This is only the beginning of the worries and the anticipated woes of the President and his legislative aides.

This 87th Congress is proving itself tough to handle, unresponsive and often hostile, but there are realistic minds in the administration who see next year's 88th Congress as tougher to handle, still more unresponsive to Kennedy's requests.

Why?

THE GLOOMY prospect which the administration has to face is the probability that it will lose seats in the House in the fall elections.

Numerically it could afford to lose quite a few seats without endangering its control. But despite a margin of 258 Democrats to 174 Republicans, the administration does not have anything approaching sustained influence, let alone control, over the present House.

Administration bills are either passed by such a narrow margin (debt-ceiling raise by 10 votes) or are defeated by the loss of so many Democratic votes (48 Democrats from 20 states voted against the farm bill) that the upcoming elections constitute a crucial test.

WHAT IS NOW happening to the President's legislative program in Congress has convinced some high officials of the administration that if it loses as many as five seats in the House this fall, next year's Congress will yield far greater calamities for the White House than the present one.

Loss of five House seats could, on big controversial issues, mean the difference of 10 votes in the party lineup. This would put the administration at a crippling disadvantage in light of the near unanimity of the Republican opposition which minority leader Charles Halleck has been mustering.

This could well justify the political judgment that, if the administration is going to lose as many as a half-dozen seats in the House, it would be better for the President if the Republicans won control of the House and, thereby, had to accept responsibility for its actions during the next two years.

THIS DOES NOT mean that the Democratic leaders are conceding anything. They are going out to hold their numerically big 44-seat margin and to enlarge it, if possible.

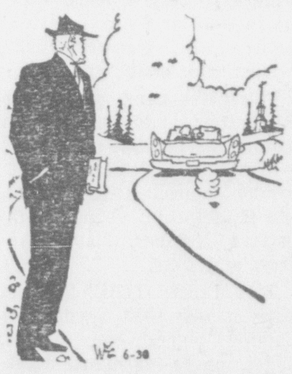

It does mean that they realistically face a greatly heightened roadblock to the President's present and future program if they lose even a handful of the often-crumbled seat-majority they now possess.

Right now the outlook for the '62 Congressional election favors the Republican side.

Continued high unemployment, the slowing down of the economy, the decline of the stock market—if continued during the next several months—will make Republican gains all the more probable.

Finally, Mr. Kennedy's campaign assurance that a Democratic Congress working under the leadership of a Democratic President "would get things moving again" is not being realized at this session.

Independence Brings Many New Problems To Algeria

New Country's Economic Plight Just Beginning With Self Rule

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGIERS (AP)—Algerians gather at the polls a week from tomorrow to formally declare their desire for independence.

There's little question of the result, and the self-determination election itself seems anticlimactic to the eight bloody, bitter years of war that have preceded it.

But Algerians, by voicing in official vote their determination to rule themselves, won't be solving any problems. To the contrary, it appears that independence from France will compound the new country's economic plight.

Economists agree that without sustained aid from France, or some other country, the most important nation in North Africa is doomed to failure.

Four times the size of France Algeria—a predominately agricultural country—has only a fifth of France's arable land. Most of its surface is covered by the arid sands of the Sahara Desert and by the unhospitable high plateau.

Its main economic asset and promise is the Sahara oil which perhaps by 1965 will start paying off. Yet even Sahara oil and natural gas resources will not solve Algeria's chronic unemployment.

Of the population of nine million Moslems, one million men have never had gainful employment. A million others work only occasionally, and the per capita income of Algeria is less than $100 a year.

A galloping birthrate is threatening to double Algeria's Moslem population by 1980, and no one has found a practical solution to assure survival above the starvation level for the Moslem masses.

The nationalists think of sweeping, socialist-type reforms that would eliminate large land-holdings.

At this time, 90 per cent of Algeria's farmland is in the hands of European settlers. The main product: wine, exported to France for use in cutting of French wines. Wheat and oranges also are grown.

The principal farm areas are on the long, narrow Mitidja Plain stretching for about 100 miles in central Algeria between the coast and the Blida Atlas Mountains. Other areas are the Setif wheat belt in eastern Algeria, the Orleansville-Tiaret area in the southwest and an area immediately south and southwest of Oran.

Eastern Algeria, around the city of Constantine, is the country's poorest section.

The heaviest population is centered in a narrow belt along the coast. This is where 80 per cent of the one million European settlers have been living. A third of the European population lived in the Oran area.

But fearing that Algerian Moslems may run wild during the next month in celebration of independence, the European population is fleeing across the Mediterranean.

By air and sea, some 6,500 sad, bewildered, bitter and disillusioned French people from Algeria arrive daily in the homeland that many have never seen, and the number seems to be limited only by the availability of transportation.

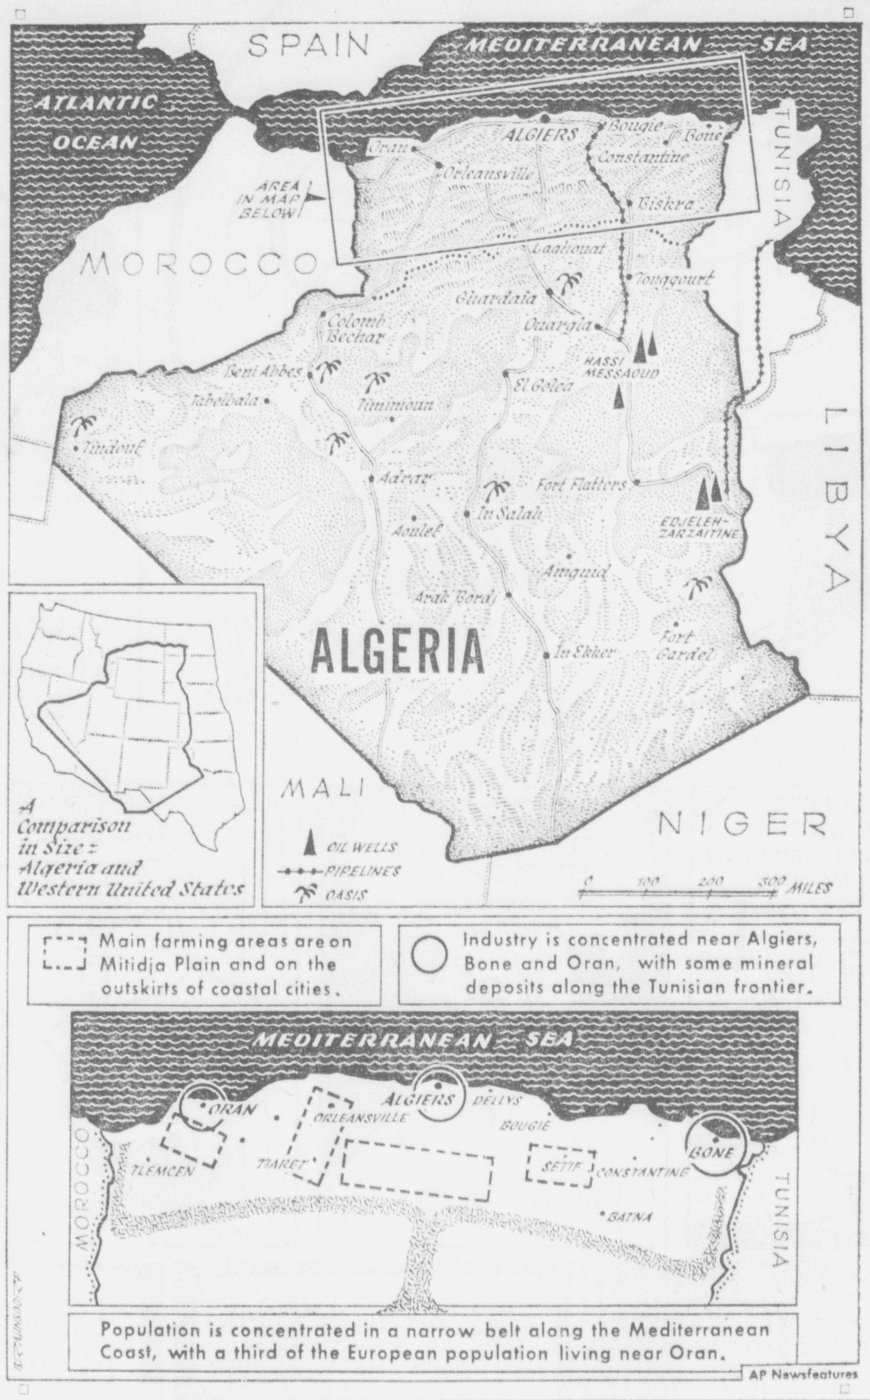

In 1958 France launched an ambitious economic development program called the "Constantine Plan." It led to the installation of some 300 industrial plants, largely concentrated east of Algiers, near Bone and around Oran.

There are now two principal Sahara oil fields: Hassi Messaoud and Edjeleh Zarzaitin, with a combined reserve of nearly a billion tons. Pipelines link them with ports.

In addition, the rich gas field of Hassi R' 'Mel, about 300 miles south of Algiers, easily could be turned into an important source of power.

Algeria has some iron and phosphate deposits, located mainly in the Bone area and along the Tunisian frontier, and in the western Sahara, near Tindouf, iron ore deposits which French experts believe may be very important have been discovered.

But all these will do little to solve Algeria's immediate economic trouble—trouble which hard-sought independence only seems to compound.

PEACE IN CONGO MAY BE DAWNING

Second Anniversary Of Liberation Finds Some Progress Amid Chaos

By WILLIAM ANDERSON

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — On the second anniversary of its independence—which it gained at midnight, June 30, 1960 — The Congo may also be on the eve of peace.

The country has come a long way in its second year despite much severe fighting, a number of horrible massacres and continuing political uncertainty and confusion.

But with the second anniversary at hand, the United Nations mission chief in the Congo, Robert A. W. Gardiner of Ghana, is "cautiously optimistic" that the country is ready to put aside its hates and rivalries and become a nation. Gardiner is not alone in his hope. The concensus of Western diplomatic missions is that while 1961 was "a hopeless mess," the last 12 months have started the Congo back from political and economic chaos.

The long, hard road to placing the Congo, with its mighty potential, in its true place in Africa began last July when, after months of negotiation, the United Nations arranged for parliament to meet under U.N. protection at Lovanium University in Leopoldville.

From this meeting emerged a central government headed by Cyrille Adoula, a 41 - year - old trade union leader and former bank clerk.

As parliament met for the first time in more than a year the Congo had hit its lowest point.

Antoine Gizenga, a former schoolmaster and vice-premier in the government of Patrice Lumumba who was murdered in Katanga in February, 1961, had created a secessionist state around the Lumumba stronghold of Stanleyville. Nine Afro-Asian countries hand accredited diplomatic missions in the town.

In Katanga President Moise Tshombe was sitting behind a mercenary-built military wall bolstered by fat revenues from the copper mines in his province.

Albert Kalonji, another anti-central government secessionist, had himself crowned king, then emperor of South Kasai's diamond mines and ordered anyone who opposed him flogged in public.

The Congo's "garden province" of Kivu was the hunting ground of rebellious troops whose depredations reduced production.

The capital of Leopoldvile, once a bustling African metropolis, was haunted by 100,000 unemployed threatening to explode into a mob.

Adoula was named premier in August, 1961, mainly because he commanded no large political group.

He had been a tough minister of interior in the provisional government headed by Joseph Ileo.

Adoula decided the United Nations — until then operating ineffectually in a vacuum — could help him.

The U.N. twice has gone into armed conflict with the mercenary-supported Katanga gendarmerie. The majority of the mercenaries have been chased out and a measure of stability achieved.

Robert Gardiner, chief of the U.N. mission to the Congo, now is gingerly negotiating with Tshombe to end the secession of Katanga.

The strong-headed Tshombe has twice been persuaded by Gardiner to renew talks concerning reunification.

The price of the struggle to end Katanga's secession has been high—in money and men. The dead include U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, whose plane crashed into the Southern Rhodesian wilderness while he was en route to a meeting with Tshombe.

Adoula has been successful in ending the secessions of Gizenga in Oriental province and Kalonji in South Kasai. Gizenga has been arrested and stripped of his military power, cabinet post and parliamentary immunity. Kalonji, similiarly dealt with, is imprisoned for flogging a political opponent.

While speaking in terms of a United Congo, Adoula is realistically preparing to split the country's present six provinces into 21, established along linguistic and ethnical lines. This federal principle seems the only way the Congo will run.

On a par with the Congo's political problems, and directly resulting from them, is a serious economic situation.

The once-rich Belgium Colony is running a deficit of about 1 billion francs ($2 million) a month.

Much of the deficit is due to a swollen and often-nepotic civil service and, on paper, the highest paid army in the world.

To much money chasing too few goods has brought on inflation. This could bring civil strife. Only a tough government policy against the unions has so far prevented strikes.

But the situation is not hopeless.

Apart from a few small units in Kivu the army is firmly under the control of Gen Joseph Mobutu and his officers.

Industrial production is almost back to normal. Plantations owned by big international companies were surprisingly untouched by the strife. The river boats are penetrating most of the Congo's 5,000 miles of navigable mainstream and tributaries and bringing goods downriver.

Technically qualified Belgians are returning to the interior.

The first new trucks imported since independence have arrived and are going to the interior to bring the crops to the river ports.

Agriculture remains badly disrupted. The inflation gives the small farmer no incentive to do more than produce at subsistence level.

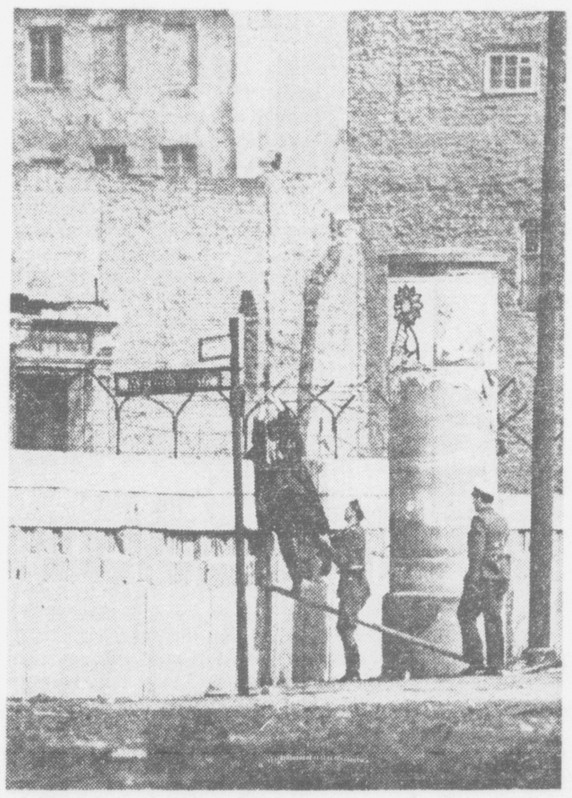

Work is under way to repair the vital Lubilash River Bridge in Katanga, which was destroyed during fighting in July.

The Tshombe - Adoula agree-ment will mean Katanga's ores move once again over this bridge through the rest of the Congo to Port Francqui and Matadi.

The Belgian embassy is preparing a vast technical assistance program which will place experienced men at key posts in the interior.

They will complement the U.N.'s 400 technical assistants.

The Congo still has its troubles—lots of them. But on its second anniversary it does seem to be moving in the right direction.

TREATED LIKE HEROES

West Berliners Treat Refugees Kindly

By JOHN A. CALCOTT

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berliners are quick to show their admiration for refugees from East Germany who make their way across the Communist border wall.

The men, women and children who brave the guns and barbed wire are looked upon here as heroes.

Just two days after 14 East Berliners cruised to West Berlin recently on a commandeered Communist river boat, delegations of West Berliners went to the Marienfelde Refugee Camp to show their admiration.

Although denied entrance to the camp itself, the West Berlin welcoming committees — composed of groups of neighbors who feel they should do something to show their respect for bravery — left gifts outside the camp gates.

The refugees received five bottles of champagne, two bottles of brandy and three bottles of wine.

Camp officials said whenever news is published of mass escapes, or particularly sensational flights, there is a flood of letters and gifts.

The gifts are anything from fruit and other food to bottles of wine or money.

One West Berlin man not long ago went to Marienfelde and gave a guard 20 marks ($5) to give to any refugee he chose.

Admiration knew no bounds when a 15-year-old East Berlin boy swam to West Berlin under Communist fire.

The boy was hit seven times by Communist bullets. But he survived.

As soon as the news was printed, delegations began to arrive at the West Berlin hospital where the boy was recovering.

Doctors had extreme difficulty in keeping the people away. They all wanted to visit the boy—still in a critical condition — to congratulate him and give him gifts.

Offers from West Berliners to give homes to refugees far outnumber the escapees themselves.

Under a plan worked out by the West German government and the West Berlin senate, 92 per cent of all refugees are flown out to West Germany and 8 per cent stay in Berlin. Those who go to West Germany are shared out among the ten federal states according to a quota system.

Each state makes sure it receives its full share of refugees and the others do not receive more than allowed.

About one-third of the refugees have relatives in West Berlin and West Germany, refugee officials said.

Many of them would rather stay in West Berlin than go to West Germany but this is impossible.

West Berlin, first of all, has to adhere to the quota system despite its vital need for young people.

It is also often too dangerous for refugees to remain in Berlin so close to the Communist border. East German agents in West Berlin began a terror campaign recently against young refugees.

The refugees are receiving postcards threatening them with punishment for their "crime."

Those receiving such threats are flown out to West Germany as quickly as possible.

Prayer Decision Misunderstood?

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A close examination of Justice Hugo L. Black's majority opinion in the controversial school prayer decision this week leaves the impression that it may have been misunderstood.

The case involved the constitutionality of a simple, non-sectarian prayer composed by the New York State Board of Regents for recitation in the public schools.

Did the regents violate the First Amendment to the Constitution, which guarantees separation of church from state? Six of the seven participating Supreme Court justices decided last Monday the regents did violate the amendment. Only Justice Potter Stewart dissented.

Justice Black's opinion said only that the regents, who are paid government employees, unlawfully "established an official religion."

It would prohibit any of the 50 state governments from composing prayers for their public schools.

There is nothing in the text of Justice Black's majority opinion that would stop Johnny from asking his teacher for permission to recite the Lord's Prayer with those who wish to join in. It would not prevent school children from holding voluntary prayer meetings on school property during recess. Such acts would not violate the First Amendment, if the language of Justice Black's opinion is to be taken literally.

Since the Supreme Court's ruling prohibits only government-paid authorities from composing prayers, it does not ejoin a priest, minister or rabbi from writing a non-sectarian prayer accepted by a majority of a school's pupils and their parents.

President John F. Kennedy, who took the oath of office on a Bible held by Chief Justice Earl Warren, said the people must support the action of the Supreme Court even though they may often disagree with it.

At the same time, Kennedy encouraged parents to say more prayers with their children at home.

Other Major News Developments:

Formosa—President Kennedy warned Red China, which is engaged in large-scale troop movements on the mainland opposite Quemoy and Matsu, the U.S. would take action if they attempted to use the islands as a bridgehead for an assault on Formosa. Kennedy also warned Chiang Kai-shek that the U.S. wants no offensive against the mainland.

Churchill—Sir Winston Churchill broke his leg when he fell out of bed during his vacation in Monte Carlo. The 87-year-old statesman was flown to London where a successful operation was performed.

Trade—The House passed Kennedy's tariff-cutting foreign trade bill despite Republican resistance. It will permit Kennedy to negotiate tariff reductions with other free countries.

Learn To Pick Right Time When You Must Lose Trick

If you have to leave the shop untended, pick a time when there's nothing in the cash register. Don't wait until you've got the week's receipts in the till.

Opening lead — ♡ K

Take this situation. West leads the king of hearts. Should you win the trick at once, or should you let West win the first heart trick?

SOONER OR LATER

You surely have to lose a heart trick sooner or later. If you lose it at once, the opponents can do no harm. If you wait until later, they may be able to do some damage.

See how the play goes if you refuse the first trick. West continues with a heart to the ace, as good a defense as any.

You draw two rounds of trumps, discovering the bad news.

TAKE TOP CLUBS

You next take the ace and king of clubs and lead dummy's low club toward your hand. East cannot gain by ruffing, for you would play your low club on this trick.

Then you would win any return, draw East's last trump and give up just one diamond.

If East discards, you win with the queen of clubs and ruff your last club with dummy's last trump. East can overruff, but only at the expense of his sure trump trick.

Whether East ruffs the third club or discards you are safe.

Now see what would happen if you won the first trick with the ace of hearts.

You would draw two rounds of trumps and start the clubs.

But East would ruff the third club and put his partner in with a heart to get another club ruff.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, June 30, the 181st day of the year with 184 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1934, Adolf Hitler began his bloody purge of Germany, eliminating many political and military leaders who had once supported him.

In 1960, the Belgian Congo became the Republic of The Congo, soon to be the scene of bloody internal strife.

A thought for the day: The German author, Thomas Mann, said: "Opinions cannot survive if one has no chance to fight for them."

Shoplifter Wears 8 Dresses, Plus Hangers

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Police put the heat on three warmly dressed women arrested in a South Miami shopping center and charged them with larceny.

A policewoman said the three were wearing "enough dresses to fill three large shopping bags." The policewoman said one of the three had on eight dresses, "hangers and all."

O'Dell Shows Up Critics

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

But thanks to his 10th complete game in less than half a season — and it came the hard way — the San Francisco Giants are back on top in the National League.

O'Dell actually had to pitch a game and one-third to stop Philadelphia last night, 4-3, at Candlestick Park. Ed Bailey's home run leading off the bottom of the 12th inning finally broke up a strikeout duel that had been scoreless since the fifth.

Los Angeles' 10-4 loss to the New York Mets enable the Giants to regain the league lead by a half game. It was the third time this week the teams have traded the top spot.

Bob Bolin (1-0) made his first start of the year for the Giants today against Cal McLish (5-1), a Phils' hurler who has cooled off after a hot start.

O'Dell, who won his ninth against six losses, laughed after the game that Paul Richards trade him away from Baltimore to the Giants because of his reputation as a seven-inning pitcher.

"But in 1958, the only year you could call me a starter, I had about 14 complete games. And that was only in about 30 starts," O'Dell said.

O'Dell fanned his season-high total of 12, including Tony Taylor four times and Johnny Callison three.

Bailey, who has hit crucial home runs in three of the Giants' last four games after going hitless in 17 straight trips, figured he had broken up the game in the ninth inning.

With two out, he tagged Phils' starter Dennis Bennett for a long drive that Callison leaped to catch above the right field fence.

"I thought that one was going out," said the left-handed slugger. "I hit it better than the one that went out."

Jack Baldschun fed Bailey a screwball for the winning blow. Bailey admitted he was halfway looking for that pitch—"He'd already given it to me twice." Baldschun, now 3-5, came in when Bennett left for a pinchhitter in the 10th inning. After striking out seven but walking eight.

Each team scored its three runs on a conglomeration of free trips to first and short singles.

Elsewhere, the pitchers were overpowering. Curt Simmons' seven-hit job gave St. Louis a 5-0 victory over Pittsburgh and a tie for third place with the Pirates, Jim O'Toole's four-hitter for Cincinnati beat Houston 4-0 and the Chicago Cubs blanked Milwaukee 4-0 behind the combined four-hit hurling of Bob Buhl and Don Elston.

Joe Moeller (5-5) started for the Dodgers and walked four of the five men he faced, forcing a run home. Ron Perranoski took over, walked three of the next four and the New Yorkers had a 4-0 lead and were on the way to their first triumph over the Dodgers.

THE WILSON GRIP

Doug Wilson (right) of Larkspur, centerfielder for the Fresno Giants of the Class C California League—a San Francisco Giant farm club—seems to be showing his grip to Fresno manager Sal Taormina. Wilson, a graduate of Marin Catholic High, is batting close to .300 in his rookie year in the professional circuit. Taormina reports Doug is a sure-fire major league player in the near future because of his desire, aggressiveness and speed.

Giants Lead N.L. Team; Games Set July 10-30

NEW YORK (UPI)—Third baseman Rich Rollins of the Minnesota Twins and slugging first-baseman Orlando Cepeda of the San Francisco Giants were honored with the greatest support today when the starting lineups for this year's major league All-Star games were announced.

Rollins, led the American League voting with 184 votes to 182 for centerfielder Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees while Cepeda, one of three "repeaters" from last year's National League team, topped teammate Willie Mays in the senior circuit voting, 229 to 213.

The starting lineups for the two games, July 10 in Washington and July 30 in Chicago, were selected in voting by the players themselves and announced by Baseball Commissioner Fork Frick. A total of 280 votes were cast in the American League and 290 were cast in the National.

Named to the American League team were catcher Earl Battey of the Twins, first-baseman Jim Gentile of the Baltimore Orioles, second-baseman Billy Moran of the Los Angeles Angels, Rollins, shortstop Luis Aparicio of the Chicago White Sox and outfielders Leon Wagner of the Angels, Mantle and Roger Maris of the Yankees.

N.L. LINEUP

Selected for the National League were catcher Del Crandall of the Milwaukee Braves, Cepeda, second-baseman Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh Pirates, third-baseman Ken Boyer of the St. Louis Cardinals, shortstop Dick Groat of the Pirates and outfielders Tommy Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Mays and Roberto Clemente of the Pirates.

The Angels, Twins and Yankees each have two players in the A.L. starting lineup and the Orioles and White Sox one each. The Pirates have three starters in the N.L. lineup, the Giants two and the Dodgers, Cardinals and Braves one each. A.L. repeaters from 1961 are Mantle and Maris while N.L. repeaters are Cepeda, Mays and Clemente.

BOYER THIRD

After Cepeda and Mays, the national leaguer who had the most support was Boyer with 171 votes. The closest N.L. vote also was in right field where Clemente shaded Felipe Alou of the Giants, 74-71.

The N.L. runners-up were catcher John Roseboro of the Dodgers, first-baseman Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs, second-baseman Frank Bolling of the Braves, shortstop Maury Wills of the Dodgers, third-baseman Jim Davenport of the Giants and outfielders Stan Musial of the Cardinals, Hank Aaron of the Braves and Alou.

East In 13 To 8 Grid Win

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A timely halftime change in the East's pass defense played a major role in a 13-8 victory over the West in last night's second annual All-American Football Bowl.

"We gave them (The West) the long pass and over-loaded against the short, flare-type passes in the flats," Woody Hayes of Ohio State said.

The East broke the scoring ice in the opening stages of the second half after Art Perkins, the West's fullback from North Texas State, fumbled and Nick Buonoconti of Notre Dame recovered on the West 43.

In eight plays, under the able direction of Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State, the East went in to score. Bob Ferguson of Ohio State picked up 13 yards in the drive on three carries and Gabriel added 16 in four.

PASS BACKFIRES

But the breaks reversed themselves before the period was over. On the way for what looked like another scoring drive, the East suddenly found itself trailing after Minnesota end Tom Hall picked off a Gabriel pass on his own 30 and raced through a host of Easterners, including Gabriel, and scored.

Sandy Stephens, another Gopher product, put the West ahead 8-7 on an option sweep with just a fraction over a minute remaining in the period.

The next time the East got possession, it started an 80-yard scoring thrust. Gabriel hit Miami's glue-fingered Bill Miller with a 43-yard pass to put the ball on the West 38.

Then the crushing Mr. Ferguson blasted off the left side, reversed his field before some startled West defenders and rumbled for six points. A Gabriel to Davis pass for two more points failed.

Most of the crowd of 22,759 saw a full 60 minutes of thrills, including a last-ditch effort by the West.

With a little over two minutes to go, the West took possession on its own 21 and rolled to the East 10 before the gun sounded.

AT GREENBRAE

Rose, Koch Blast Top Bowl Marks

Colin Rose of the Friday Woodcutters League rolled a 257 game to capture high-game honors during the week's play at Greenbrae Lanes.

Rematches Sunday In Semi-Pro Loop

It's baseball time again tomorrow for the semi-pro ball clubs in Marin.

The Mill Valley Merchants will play the Ongaro Plumbers at 1 p.m. at San Anselmo's Memorial Park, and the San Anselmo Merchants will take on the Billings-Hutchison Builders at 1:30 p.m. on Albert Field in San Rafael.

It will be the second meeting of each club. In the season openers, Ongaro dropped Mill Valley 14-9 and Billings-Hutchison beat San Anselmo, 10-2.

In other semi-pro action, the Tiburon Pelicans will send either Mike Cooney or Buzz Wensloff to the mound tomorrow at 2 p.m. against the San Mateos on Tiburon's Judge Field.

Managers released the following starting lineups:

Ongaro Plumbers—Dick Schultz, 2b; Tim Riordan, cf; Milt Hain, 3b; Don Lauters, ss; Dick Spackman, 1b; Ron Cole, rf; either Bill Buffalow or Lou Campredon, c; Al Bovee, lf; and Rich Brear, p.

HURLER TOSSES PERFECT GAME IN PONY TILT

Greg Tellis, 15-year-old hurler for Sausalito I.D.E.S.-S.T. in the Southern Marin Pony League, tossed the first perfect game in the league's history Thursday when his club blanked Strawberry 8-0.

Not a batter reached first base in the seven inning game as Tellis struck out 13. Second baseman Davy Griffith saved Tellis' perfect no-hit, no-run game with a spectacular play on a ground ball in which he threw the batter out.

Ron Gilliam hit a home run early in the game to provide enough margin for the victory.

Novato's Worden Tops Driver List For Napa Races

Paul Worden of Novato, driving the car in which he won the 1961 championship, tops the list of drivers for the 14th annual big car races of the Napa County Fair at Calistoga tomorrow and Tuesday.

Among the 18 drivers already entered is Tom Blanchard of Woodacre who will drive a car powered by a Chevrolet engine.

Herk Viglienzone of San Rafael has not yet named a driver for his fuel injected Desoto. Also entered will be a Corvette powered car owned by Frank Guerrini, proprietor of Loch Lomond Marin Electric of San Rafael.

American Steel Whips Guasco 11-6

American Steel Fabricators dropped Guasco Super Market 11-6 Wednesday in the San Anselmo Senior League, scoring 11 hits off four grocer pitchers.

Today at 5:45 p.m. first place Currie Construction Co. is host to third place Iacopi Meat Co.

For American Steel Larry Gerughty had three hits and a walk in four trips to the plate and Russ Damos got the longest blow of the game, a triple that scored a run in the fourth. Guasco pitcher Lon Gallagher, last of the four hurlers, allowed only one hit and struck out three in the two innings he worked.

Winning pitcher was Charles Simontacchi.

Armstrong Tries Comeback On TV

NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight Ace Armstrong hasn't picked a soft touch for his first fight in 16 months.

The one-time high-ranking contender from Elizabeth, N.J., takes on Luis Rodriguez, the No. 2 welterweight challenger from Cuba and Miami, in the 10-round television fight at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Rodriguez, winner of six straight and one of the shiftiest and busiest fighters in the ring today, is the 8-5 favorite over the slightly shopworn and ring-rusty Jerseyite.

Reforms Follow Child's Tragic Death

Small Children To Be Given Swim Lessons

By THERON A. NEWELL

First swimming lessons for small children of Novato's Lynwood area were given yesterday.

Behind this was a story of tragedy.

On April 13, Gary Barnett, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Barnett of 1290 Parkwood Drive, drowned in the pool of Mrs. Ethel Field at 1289 Lynwood drive.

This tragedy led the Lynwood Park Homeowners Improvement Assn. to form a committee to see what could be done for swimming pool safety and for better communications in case of accident.

The committee, composed of Mrs. Ethel Field, chairman, with Mrs. Barnett, Mrs. Herbert Steinberg, Mrs. Barnard Eckton and Don Costigan, decided to supplement the Novato city recreation swimming program.

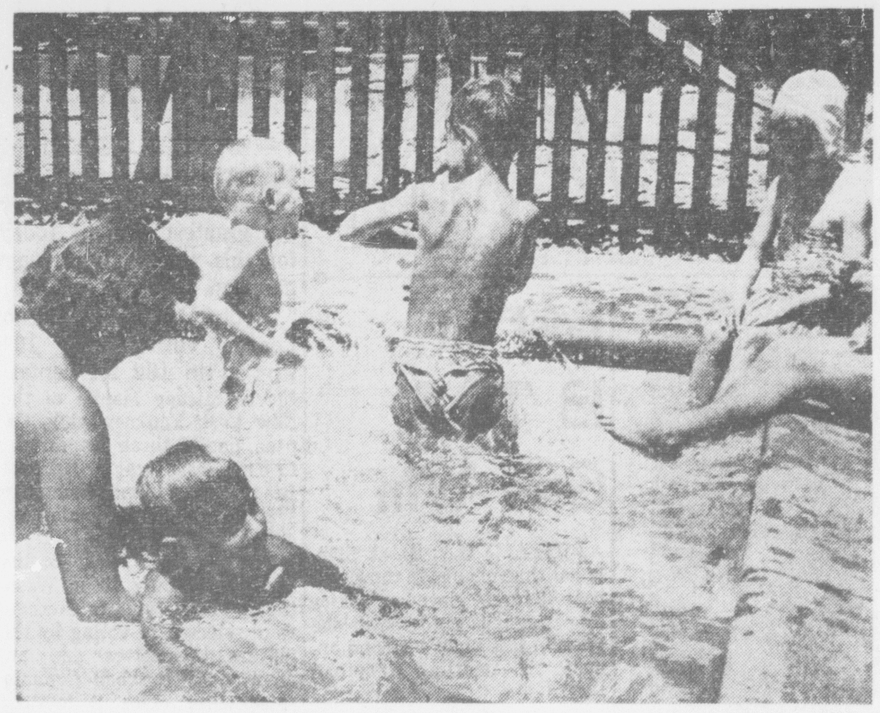

The city teaches swimming to seven to 12-year-old children. The committee decided to teach it to those under seven. Mrs. Willard Denny, a Red Cross instructor, was hired for the job. The lessons are given at Mrs. Field's pool.

There are 45 private pools among the 124 property owners of the Lynwood area, said Mrs. Field. Others among them will be used for teen-age and adult swimming classes, she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Smith of 520 Sunset Parkway have volunteered the use of their pool for classes beginning Monday.

A class for junior life savers is being organized, said Mrs. Field. Plans are being made for a class for non-swimming parents. Other plans are for demonstrations of life saving, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, the use of a resuscitator, and recommended pool safety equipment.

So because of one tragedy, an entire community is becoming conscious of swimming and swimming pool safety.

SO OTHERS WILL NOT DROWN—Mrs. Willard Denny, Red Cross swimming instructor, gives lesson to Brian Eckton, while Billy Fields (left) and Victor Barnett have water fight in Novato pool in which Victor's brother drowned, and in which swimming classes for small children started yesterday as a result. Watching from pool's edge is Karen Burkhart.

Miller Urges Increased U.S. School Support

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON—Rep. Clem Miller (D-Corte Madera), testifying before a House education subcommittee yesterday, urged increased federal support for school and public libraries.

More than 10 million American children—including many in his First California Congressional district—go to public schools where there are no school libraries, Miller testified.

"Even in affluent California nearly 6,000 public schools have inadequate school libraries or no libraries at all," he said. "The result is that our community public libraries—many of which are inadequate and understaffed themselves—are being overwhelmed by school pupils after school hours."

Miller is co-sponsor of a proposed amendment to the Library Service Act. The amendment would lift the present 10,000 population ceiling on areas eligible for federal assistance. It would permit federal matching funds for financing library development in schools and communities no matter what the population.

In California it would make $1,442,249 in matching funds available each year to public libraries, $2,490,212 to school libraries and 10 million dollars a year to universities and colleges, Miller said.

would continue his business from a nearby houseboat.

Coffee could not be reached today. His losses were not known.

Two Chris Craft inboard motorboats, each valued at $3,000 were also destroyed. They had been on trailers in the storage area of the building.

Owners of the boats were listed as Wolfgang Schlietten of Tiburon and Warren H Parks of San Rafael.

Chief Trivett said the fire started in the section where the north wing and the large storage section join. This was occupied by Coffee's canvas boat cover shop.

The large area is without partitions and the structure acted as a "wind tunnel" for the flames, Trivett said.

Harbor Master Robert Lee said he had put McCarthy's pickup into the storage area shortly after 10 p.m. At that time there was no hint of any fire in the building.

He went to bed, but at 11:30 his wife awoke him to report that the building, a few hundred yards from their home, was on fire.

Among the first to call the fire department were Michael Terry, 32 Stetson Avenue, Corte Madera, and Donald Bugna, 308 Fawn Drive, Sleepy Hollow. They were on one of the boats moored in the marina when they looked up to see flames.

Three engine companies and 10 men answered the alarm. They battled the fire until 2 a.m. Only injury was a nail puncture in the foot of Capt. David Terrini.

Delay In Reaching Medic; Marinite Dies

Death of an unemployed San Rafael truck driver yesterday, after a delay in reaching a doctor for him when he complained of sudden illness, was attributed today to a perforated ulcer and peritonitis.

Edward Beatty, 51, a resident of the Lincoln Hotel, died in San Rafael General Hospital at 8:45 a.m. yesterday. He was taken to the hospital about 5 p.m. Thursday by ambulance.

That was two hours after he told Mrs. Gertrude Powers, manager of the hotel at 805 Fourth Street, that he felt suddenly ill. He asked her to call a doctor.

Mrs. Powers blamed the delay to difficulty in getting a doctor. She said she called her own physician, who suggested names of two doctors he said were on call for county patients.

The first of them, she said, was on vacation. The receptionist for the second, Dr. Richard Wolk, informed Mrs. Powers he could not come.

She then called back her own doctor, Alex Miller. He sent an associate, who diagnosed the case as an ulcer, appendicitis or peritonists and called an ambulance.

Dr. Wolk said his receptionist advised Mrs. Powers to call the hospital emergency room or an ambulance. Mrs. Powers said no such suggestion was offered, although "I told her he was in terrible pain and couldn't move."

An autopsy performed today by Dr. Warren L. Bostick showed death was due to a perforated ulcer and general peritonitis.

Beatty had lived at the Lincoln Hotel for intervals the past several months. He leaves a wife in Richmond, Va., and his mother, Mrs. Florence Waterhouse, in Eureka.

Funeral arrangements are being made by Russell and Gooch Mortuary of Mill Valley.

Apartments Continue To Make Marin News

Apartments continue to make news in new construction in Marin County.

In the first five months of 1962, building permits have been issued for a total of 1,526 residential units. Of this, 1,006 or nearly two-thirds, have been apartment units.

Totals compiled for May show that 220 out of a total 312 residential units were for apartments.

The five-month total of this year is 43.7 per cent ahead of the 1,062 residential units permitted in the first five months of 1961. And the total value of residential units of $19,923,283 for the first five months of this year is 16.8 per cent ahead of the $17,053,948 for the first five months of last year.

The total of all building activity, however, including commercial buildings and other categories such as repairs and additions, is down from last year.

Figures compiled by the Marin County Development Assn. show a total permit valuation of $26,821,313 for the first five months of the year. This is 11.6 per cent below the $30,346,214 total for the same period last year.

Commercial construction shows a drop of 33.3 per cent while construction in other permit valuations showed a drop of 53.1 per cent.

Total May valuation, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas of the county, was $6,075,890, down 16.3 per cent from May, 1961.

Sausalito led the county and other cities with a total May valuation of $1,783,120. This included a 90-unit apartment with a total valuation of $1,370,000.

San Rafael was second with a May valuation of $1,374,385, and Novato was third with $860,731.

Other cities reported the following totals for the month:

Mill Valley, $287,330; Larkspur, $177,374; Belvedere, $104,500; Corte Madera, $78,698; San Anselmo, $78,250; Ross, $51,204, and Fairfax, $50,848.

Building permits issued by the county public works department for construction in unincorporated areas totaled $1,229,180 for May.

Audio-Visual Director For Marin Named

Charles J. Vento, 37, director of the audio-visual department of the Trinity County Schools office in Weaverville, has been selected for a similar post in Marin County.

County Supt. Virgil S. Hollis announced today that he will recommend Vento's employment at the Monday meeting of the county board of education. Vento, to take the post of director of the instructional materials center and the county's audio-visual department, will replace Clarence Spencer, who is retiring after 14 years at the job.

Vento was among 60 applicants and among seven of the top applicants interviewed. He has served as audio-visual advisor to the Agency for International Development and audio-visual administrator for Alameda County Schools.

He has served three years in the Navy.

He and his wife, Carla Jean, have a 3-year-old daughter.

vinced of the family's good fortune, went down to awaken her husband.

He was hard to awaken — and harder to convince.

"It's going in the bank," he finally said. "There won't be much, the government will take half of it."

Mrs. Olsen said they would probably finish paying the mortgage on their home.

Olsen's eyes lighted up as he realized he might be out of debt. I'm going to buy me a new motor for my boat," he said. Then getting wider awake:

"I'm going fishing for three whole weeks . . . I may not go to work tonight. In fact, I don't think I will."

Court Revokes Duncan Stay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals here yesterday canceled a stay of execution granted Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan last August to allow her to appeal her Venturi County murder conviction to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court denied her appeal in a closing session Monday.

Mrs. Duncan and her two accomplices — Augustine Baldonado and Luis Moya—were scheduled to die in the gas chamber at San Quentin last August 11 for the 1958 slaying of her daughter-in-law, a Santa Barbara nurse. A new execution date will now be set.

Jury In Kidd Trial Is Shown Two Swords

Seven women and five men in a San Francisco Superior Court jury box yesterday hefted two antique ceremonial swords.

Whether they believe one of the swords was used to kill 71-year-old antique dealer Albert Clarke on Dec. 13, 1954, will appear in their verdict at the trial's end.

The state contends Robert Lee Kidd, a former seaman, slashed Clarke to death with one of the weapons, which were among articles in the old man's cluttered San Francisco antique shop.

Some state witnesses have testified also that bruises on Clarke's body might have been inflicted with the handles of the swords.

Belvedere attorney Vincent Hallinan, who undertook Kidd's defense without fee in the accused man's third trial, handed the weapons to the jurors. He asked them to note "the weakness" of the handles. Neither could have been the murder weapon, he contends.

Kidd's own voice was heard —from a tape-recording—during yesterday's trial session. The recording was made as Police Inspector Ralph McDonald questioned Kidd on the exseaman's arrest in Valparaiso, Ind., five and one-half years after the murder. The recording bore out the version of Kidd's responses which McDonald had recited from the witness stand Thursday.

Kidd was once found guilty of the murder. The verdict was ruled out because of prejudicial error in the trial. A second trial resulted in a hung jury.

The third trial will resume Monday.

BRIDGE

major highway through Sausalito would be a disaster.

"I cannot exaggerate the intensity of our objections," declared Mayor Micou.

Several directors said they agreed with Micou. All the bridge board is talking about is some necessary connection to handle increased traffic—not a new highway—they said.

But director William D. Hadeler had a different idea. The proposed Sausalito connection, he said, should be a highway that would also serve as a breakwater for the city's yacht harbors.

The directors postponed action on the proposed $2,050,141 budget for fiscal 1963, Hadeler asking that it be left in committee until some controversial items were resolved.

Among the budget matters undecided are what raises (if any) are to be given $22,980-a-year general manager James Adam and several other top executives of the bridge district.

The budget is to be considered again July 13.

Bakers To Try For Pay Increase In New Contract

Bakers in Marin County will negotiate next month for wage increases to bring them up to pay levels recently won by other Bay Area bakers.

The Marin County Bakery Employers' Assn. will meet July 10 to set a date for negotiations with the union. The bakers' contract in Marin expires Sunday.

Richard Kientz, a director of the association, said employers will probably "fall in line" with other Bay Area contracts.

After a one-week strike in May East Bay bakers won 18-cent hourly increases with extra holiday and fringe benefits.

Marin bakers now earn $126 to $129 a week, with premiums for night shifts. There are more than 20 bakeries in the county, but only three are large employers, according to Kientz.

day night deadline," Wood said today.

Initial proposal of the union had called for pay increases this year and next, then a gradual reduction of the work day from eight hours to five hours with no decrease in total pay.

An agreement reached yesterday between Plumbers District Council 36 and the Mechanical Contractors Assn. of Central California, covering 26 counties outside the Bay Area, resulted in a wage increase of 75 cents per hour over three years, plus two additional paid holidays. It did not include a reduction in the work day.

Gas Overcomes Bolinas Woman

Faye Wight of Juniper Road, Bolinas, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital after being taken there shortly after midnight for treatment for gas intoxication.

Mrs. Wight, 44, told officials at the hospital she lay down for a nap after returning from work yesterday. She awoke later and discovered the house full of gas.

She switched it off, but was so groggy she went back to bed. A neighbor discovered her later and called sheriff's officers, who called an ambulance.

DAIRY

of business. Everything is a price squeeze."

Gonsalves, a second generation Marinite, was bitter. He said the Grady family, owners of Lucas Valley Dairy, "sold us down the river."

Robert B. Grady, general manager of Lucas Valley, said yesterday that, through an arrangement with the Petaluma firm, the dairymen could buy contracts to supply the co-operative without being a member.

But to buy a contract, the dairymen have to pay between $1,500 and $2,000 per 10 gallons of milk plus the herd of the person selling. Gonsalves said he heard last night the price had been raised to $2,500.

Raw milk processed by Lucas Valley will be supplied by Petaluma Co-operative members when the transaction goes into effect. It will be marketed under the Lucas Valley label.

Engvall blamed the difficulty involved in obtaining a milk contract on surplus milk production in California. This is due to surplus production by the dairymen, increased productivity per cow, and high demands during times of war for milk which is difficult to cut back on afterwards.

Five of the dairymen own ranches strung out of Lucas Valley Road from Highway 101 to Nicasio. Sequeira, who lives in Marinwood, operates the Sequeira Ranch in Sonoma County.

The Petaluma Co-op's membership includes 300 Redwood Empire dairymen, including 26 in Marin County.

Estranged Mate Admits Battery

Stephen Sherman Murray, 31, of 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, admitted yesterday he committed battery against his estranged wife at a Novato fracas Thursday morning.

Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Municipal Court referred Murray to the probation officer and ordered him to appear in court on July 19 for sentencing.

Police arrested Murray after a fight near Karl's Klub on Grant Avenue between Murray, his estranged wife, Mrs. Rose Marie Guenther, 33, and Sgt. George F. Parsons, 39, of Fort Barry.

Investigators said Murray attacked both the sergeant and Mrs. Guenther. She was treated at Novato General Hospital.

CAP Cadet Handles Jet

Civil Air Patrol Cadet Capt. Michael J. Alvarado, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Alvarado of 724 Las Colindas Road, Terra Linda, took the controls of an Air Force T-33 jet trainer during CAP jet orientation scholarship activities this week at Tinker Air Force Base, Okla.

OBITUARIES

Eleanor Sanborn Rites Set

Funeral services for Mrs. Eleanor Dickson Sanborn, 54, who died unexpectedly Wednesday at her home at 11 Reed Street, Mill Valley, will be held Monday at 10:30 a.m. at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley. Inurnment will be private.

Mrs. Sanborn had worked since May, 1958, as a real estate salesman for Walburn Realty in Mill Valley, where she had lived five years. She formerly sold life insurance for Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. during the seven years she resided in Sausalito.

She was born in Eureka. She was an associate member of the Marin County Real Estate Board and a member of the Episcopal Church.

Surviving her are a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Latham of Puerto Rico; a son, Capt. Morgan W. Sanborn, who is based at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Lompoc and a sister, Mrs. Elliot Shaffter of Loleta, Humboldt County. She also leaves two grandchildren.

HEZEKIAH COMBS

Funeral services for Zezekiah C. Combs, 75, of San Francisco, a retired police lieutenant, will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at the chapel of Ashley and McMullen, Sixth Avenue and Geary Boulevard, San Francisco.

He was the brother of Bernie Combs of Mill Valley.

Lt. Combs died Thursday after a long illness. He retired from the San Francisco police department 10 years ago after many years of service. He received a department and civilian commendation in 1931 for the capture of a fugitive killer.

He is also survived by his wife, Edith Combs; a daughter, Mrs. Blanche Townsend, and two brothers, Granville Combs of Hayward and Minta Combs of Miami, Fla.

M. McDONOUGH

Michael McDonough of San Francisco, a retired builder, died unexpectedly yesterday of a heart attack.

He was the father of Mrs. Adeleine DeMartini of Greenbrae.

Requiem Mass will be said at 9:45 a.m. Monday at St. Paul's Church, 29th and Dolores streets, San Francisco. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Reilly Funeral Home, 29th and Dolores streets.

McDonough is also survived by his widow, Mary A. McDonough, and two sons, Rev. Robert F. McDonough, S. J., of Los Angeles, and Edward McDonough of San Francisco. There are seven grandchildren.

ELLA HALEY

Mrs. Ella M. Haley, 53, of Novato, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

A resident of Marin County for 10 years, she lived at 755 Bradley Avenue, Novato. She was a native of Wisconsin. She was the widow of M/Sgt. Norman W. Haley.

Funeral services, arranged by Keaton's Mortuary, will be held at 2:30 p.m. Monday in Chapel No. 1 Hamilton Air Force Base. Interment will be in the Presidio National Cemetery, San Francisco.

Mrs. Haley is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Harry Thorpen of Wisconsin, Mrs. Eleanor Stegenga of Michigan, Mrs. Michael Lesauis of New Jersey and Mrs. Philip Addis of Wisconsin and a brother, Kermit Pederson of Wisconsin.

HOMES
TERRA LINDA
On a hillside overlooking Terra Linda are twelve of the most unique and exciting Eichler homes ever built—the result of more than two years of special planning. The homes were designed especially for their location by brilliant architects, who judiciously retained the beauty and drama of the sites.
Even from a distance you can see the exciting flair and distinction these homes possess, and once inside you are in a personal and private world—with sweeping views across the valley and intimate glimpses into wooded hills. Sliding glass doors open to balconies, gardens and patios. Radiant heating is silent and incomparably clean.

Marin Boating Industry Enjoys A Healthy Upswing In Activity

Firms Record Increase In Sales As More And More Residents Take To The Water

By HARRY CRAFT

The Marin boating industry as a whole has not set any phenomenal records during the past year but there has been a comfortable upswing in sales, and the general outlook is for a good summer and fall.

Increase in the number of small boat sales is regarded as a healthy sign, for many will graduate into the cruiser and sailboat classes.

Boats registered in the county in 1961 totaled somewhere around 3,000. The county assessor's office says the figure is considerably higher this year but it won't be known exactly how much until the middle of July when the new total is tallied. Estimates of 1961 boat berthing facilities ran about 2,000 last year. There have been scattered additions in the last 12 months, but nothing impressive.

BOAT CHARTERING and renting has picked up some momentum, but Embree Hockenbeamer of Dolphin Marine Sales, San Rafael, who entered three Fairliner cruisers in charter service six months ago, has had only moderate activity so far this season.

"This is mostly due to the weather," he says. "It takes an expert to handle a large cruiser in wind and rough water, and we've had quite a stretch of it during the past several months."

He has had far more success with outboard runabouts from 15 to 18 feet in length renting for $25 to $30 a day, with lower weekly rates. All but the 18-footers are supplied with trailers, and customers are picking them up for use on the lakes and rivers. The 18-foot craft is for bay use.

Dolphin also supplies a complete water ski kit for $5 a day. Rentals promise to be heavy through the summer.

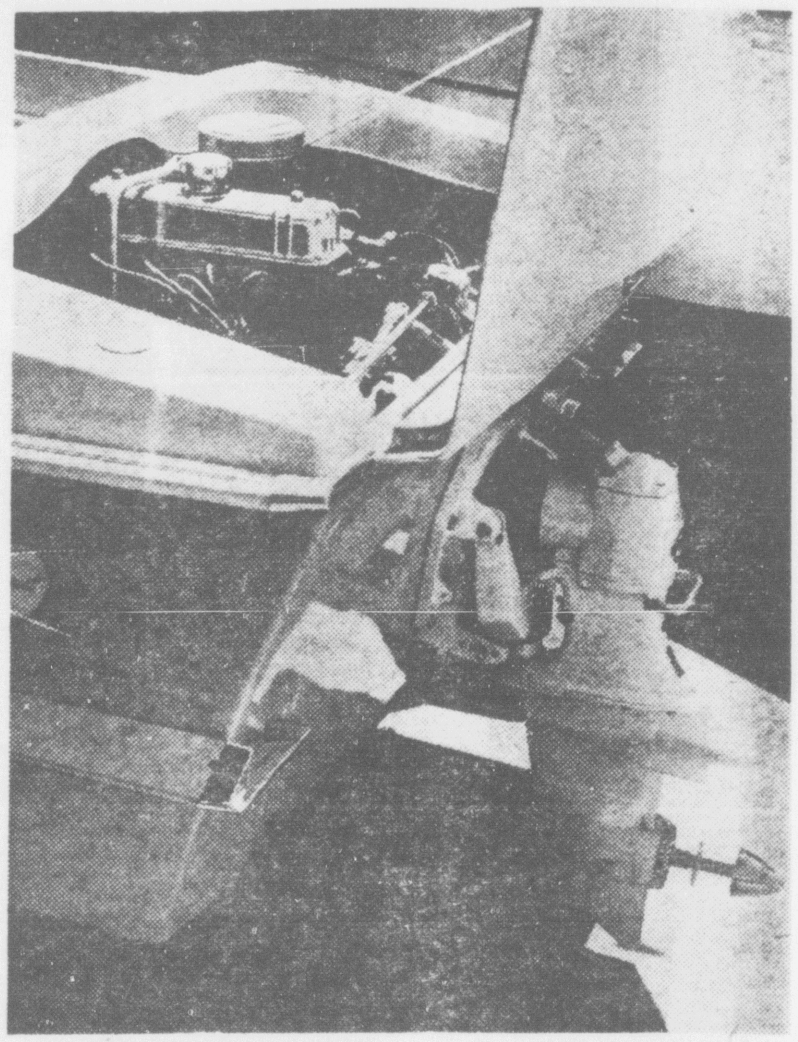

Channel Boat Sales in San Rafael also does some renting —in the 14-foot ski boat class. Rentals run $25 a day with trailer and ski equipment.

Harold Taylor here claims to have done exceptionally well in sales with his new line of Dorsett outboards, made of laminated fiberglass and isophtalic resin in 14 to 19-foot lengths, since he took them on early this year—also with his Dorsett inboard-outboards powered by Volvo 80 and 100-horsepower engines.

"These," he claims, "combine the launch-anywhere, go-anywhere features, fuel economy and navigability in shallow waters of an outboard with the clean styling and power of an inboard engine."

No more vehement words on the Marin sailboat picture come from anyone's lips than those of Gary Faulk, sales manager of Pearson Yacht Corp., Sausalito:

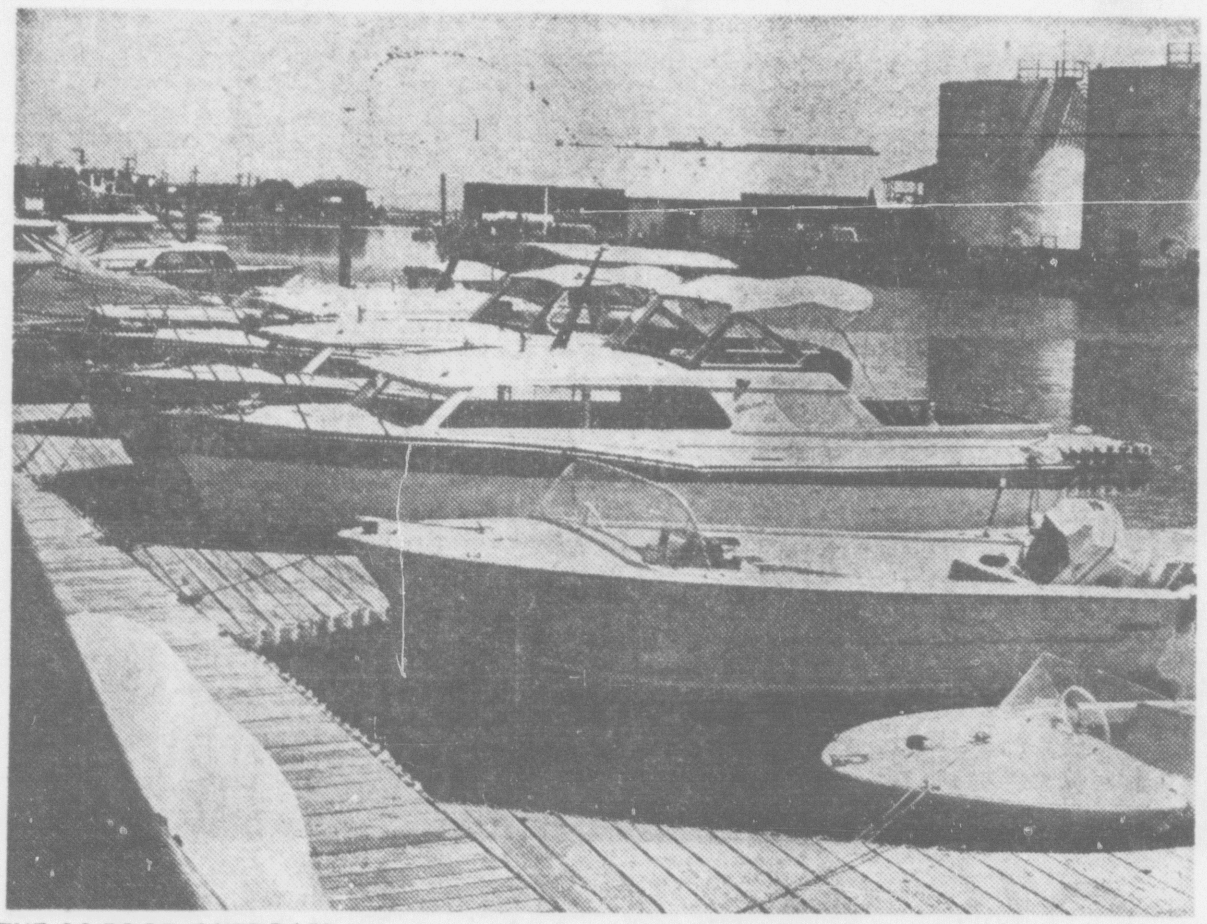

"One of the greatest keel-drags to having more sailboats in the county is the lack of facilities to berth them. Marin waters are the best in the bay, which in turn ranks among the best in the world. I think it's a crying shame that people don't realize what they have and join together in making more of it."

INBOARD AND OUTBOARD features of Dorsett family cruisers sold by Channel Boat Sales Inc., San Rafael, have been well received by boating enthusiasts. Cruisers are powered by 80 and 100-horsepower Volvo engines. Exterior rudder and propeller assembly lifts up when encountering underwater obstacles, similar to regular outboard motors.

THE 25-FOOT SAILBOAT owned by John Cassady of Sausalito is in for a washdown at Seaway Marine's yard on the San Rafael Canal in San Rafael and receives the attention of Seaway's manager, Osar Hughett, and Cassady. (Independent-Journal photo)

THE 18-FOOT OUTBOARD runabout in the foreground at $30 a day is a popular weekend rental item, but the Fairliner cruisers which require more expert handling and have a daily rental price of $100 to $120 do not attract as many customers. The vessels are among rental units carried by Dolphin Marine Sales, Inc., San Rafael.

IN SPITE OF which, Pearson Yacht Corp. has done remarkably well with its sales of Trident sloops in the past 30 months and now counts 56 of them on San Francisco Bay. Another brisk seller, Faulk says, is the firm's 22-foot Electra sloop — also the Alberg-35 which already has captured its first regatta trophy. There are four Albergs on the bay, all built here. They are good racers and capable of standing up under the heavy 25-to-30 miles-per-hour winds we have here.

As it is, there is already a heavy proportion of Bay Area sails off Marin shores.

Marin's natural marine pastimes may get a much needed shot in the jib from home and apartment builders who believe the waterways in and around the country are here to be used as well as viewed.

In East San Rafael, houses bordering on the canal are not being built as fast as you might think. Waters lap the shore at several good locations for homes and for apartments with dock sites.

Marina Landing at 260 Canal Street has facilities for about 16 boats of various sizes, and half the space is being used. Southport Apartments can berth about six, with four already occupied.

But the multi-million-dollar Marin Cayes development at the end of Canal Street by the L. H. Lincoln Corp. of Lafayette, which envisions an ultimate 170 acres of homes and apartments, should get under way this fall with the dumping of fill for the initial phase of 21 acres. Plans for the overall project include a large lagoon with docks and finger piers for both home and apartment dwellers.

A similar shoreline and "over the water" resident-apartment development has been proposed for the Belvedere-Tiburon area, to be known as "The Cove."

The men who contemplated this project as far back as six years ago are Harry H. Hicks Jr. and Hugo Nadaner, owners of Associated Contractors, Palo Alto.

Plans call for 270 water-edge homes and apartments with adjacent private docks. Sheltered cove and deep water channel, private yacht club and a complete recreation center are also to be included.

Buildings will be on piling and many apartments will extend over the water with gang plank entries. Groundbreaking is expected to occur this year.

A private marina development still in the stock-selling stage is Paradise Park Inc., in the making for the east side of the Tiburon Peninsula at historic Paradise Park — a project of East Bay restaurateur Simon Furman.

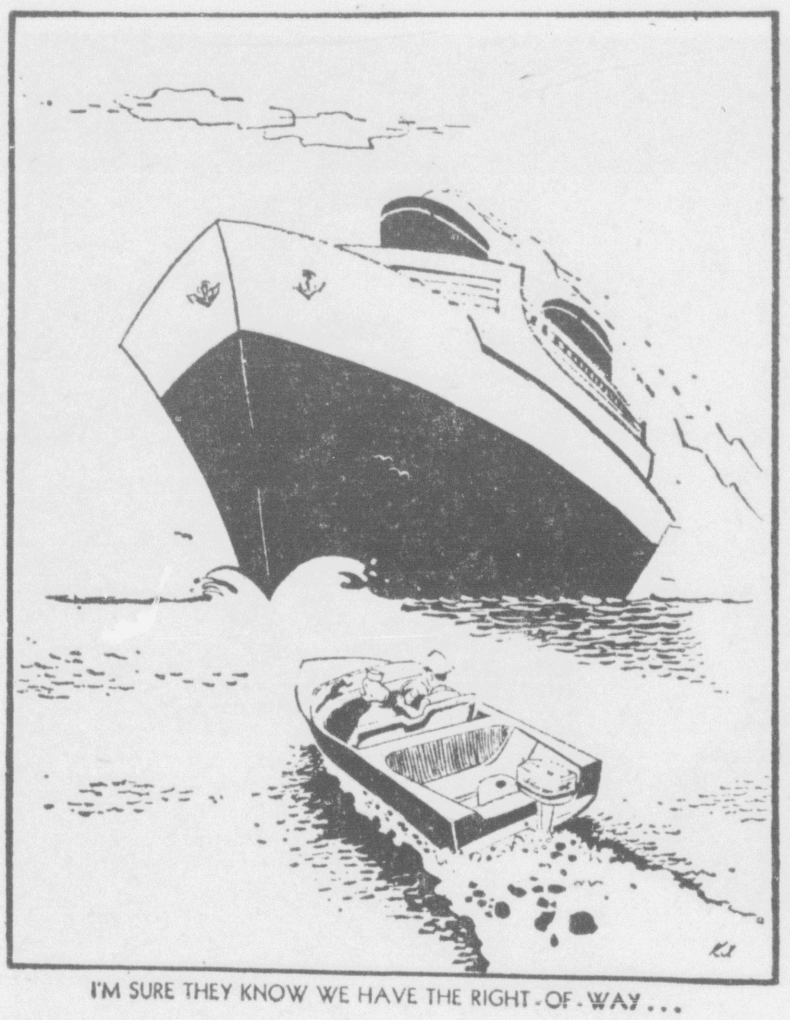

A proposed Tiburon Yacht Club is to be part of that development, with a large clubhouse and restaurant to accommodate a membership of 300. Plans call for 215 fiberglass berths to be constructed by H. Koch and Sons, Corte Madera, for boats 20 to 40 feet in length, plus 39 additional guest moorings.

Also on the horizon is the Mill Valley Yacht Club, under organization and anticipating 1,000 berths some day in the upper waters of Richardson Bay.

BERTHING facilities on Corte Madera Creek in Greenbrae are scheduled to be a part of home and apartment house construction to be started by the Schultz Building Co. sometime this year. Schultz holds about two miles of water frontage along the creek and expects to build homes on the south side and apartments on the north side, both with private docking.

And anyone who has cruised the bay off Sausalito has already seen the Cote d'Azur apartments taking form on the waterfront — also with docks.

As one veteran boatside observer put it laconically: "It's not what lies just over the bow, but what's on the horizon."

I'M SURE THEY KNOW WE HAVE THE RIGHT-OF-WAY...

USE COMMON SENSE

Safe Boat Week Is On Hand Again

Next week Marin and the entire nation will be engaged in the annual observance of Safe Boating Week.

There is one rule for safety in boating: Use common sense afloat!

Here are a few tips on how to practice common sense while enjoying boating. They are based on the Outboard Boating Club of America Seamanship Course.

1. Check the weather forecast before you cast off. Bad weather is the No. 1 enemy of pleasure boaters. If a storm blows up while you are out, make for the nearest shelter on shore. If the water gets choppy, seat your passengers on the bottom of the boat, keeping them as close to the centerline as possible, head into the waves and reduce your speed.

2. Fumes from a half teacup of gasoline can be as explosive as a stick of dynamite, so use special caution when fueling your craft. Put out all nearby flames when fueling, and don't smoke. Have a fire extinguisher handy. Keep the nozzle of your fill can in contact with the tank to prevent a static spark. If you use portable fuel tanks, remove these containers from the boat and fuel them on the dock.

3. Make sure you carry the proper items of safe boating equipment. This should include a U.S. Coast Guard-approved life-saving device for everyone on board, proper lights, a fire extinguisher, a horn or whistle, anchor, line, paddle, first aid kit, flashlight, fenders, tool kit, extra can of gasoline, compass and flare, or other distress signaling devices.

4. Don't overload. Overloading reduces freeboard and places you in danger of swamping. The number of seats in a boat is no indication of capacity; they're to provide different seating arrangements. The Outboard Boating Club of America capacity plate is a guide to safe loading. Be sure the weight of your load is evenly distributed, from bow to stern and from side to side.

5. Never jump into a boat from the dock. It could injure you or damage your boat.

6. Check your motor installation before starting the motor. The drive shaft should be perpendicular to the water. A motor tilted forward will force the stern down and the bow up. A motor tilted backward will raise the stern and push the bow down. If the propeller isn't deep enough, it won't get a good "bite" and your motor will be overstrained.

7. An overpowered boat is dangerous; and an underpowered craft will operate sluggishly. Be sure your boat and motor are properly matched. If your craft has an OBC rating plate, check it for the maximum safe horsepower. If it doesn't, ask your marine dealer or write to the manufacturer for the maximum safe horsepower capacity.

8. The motor should be mounted in the center of the transom. Make sure that the bracket screws are tight. Loop a chain or line through the brackets as a precaution against losing the motor.

MARIN PROFILE

Charles Bell, Friend Of Boat Builders

By DON KEOWN

The most common mistake of the man who builds or buys a boat is to overemphasize speed.

That is the opinion of Charles N. Bell of Tamalpais Valley. And it is an opinion that carries considerable weight with those who know their boats.

For Marinite Bell is an internationally-known designer of boats. He is especially highly regarded as an authority on the use of fiberglass in boat-building. And he is the author of two successful books in that field, "How To Build Fiberglass Boats" and "How To Build 15 Fiberglass Boats," both published by Coward-McCann Inc.

Incidentally, he's also a professional artist of considerable repute.

But back to boats and boat building:

BELL SAYS the craze for speed in boats in just part of the times. "Speed seems to be a popular attitude in everything today, but it is not what gives you the most fun in boating."

"If you have a safe boat and a well-designed, comfortable boat, then you can enjoy it even if the speed is only adequate," he adds. "Certainly such a boat is far preferable to one that has lots of speed and nothing else. After all, the winds and the waves will only let you go so fast anyway."

Bell had a non-nautical beginning in life, being born in Woodward, Okla., "where there was no water of any consequence for miles." He was the son of a cabinet-maker.

"As boys we built an old canoe that we used to drag over the sandbars in the river," he recalls, "but you certainly couldn't call that boating."

And thus boat designing as a profession was very far from the mind of Bell as a teen-ager. Instead, while in high school, he aspired to a career as an artist.

Then he came West to enroll at the University of Southern California. And decided to major in engineering "because, despite my liking for art, I thought I had better get into something that would support me. And in high school I had been fond of geometry and other mathematics courses."

While attending USC Bell worked part time in the motion picture studios to help pay for his education. And this brought him into contact for the first time with boats.

"THAT WAS in 1922 and 1923," he recalls, "and then just about everyone in the movie business owned a big boat. It was the expected thing."

Friends in the industry took young Bell along on cruises in Southern California water. And he loved it.

Among those friends was the famed motion picture director Preston Sturges "who owned three boats at the time."

As a result of this newly-developed interest in boating, Bell and a young friend, Hurd Izant, decided to build themselves a boat. And they put together an 18-foot sailboat.

"We planned to put a motor in her, but we never got around to it," Bell recalls. "We were too busy sailing her and having fun. In fact we were too busy to even name her."

"Just about every weekend we would sail the 20 miles to Catalina Island," he recalls, "and when the winds weren't favorable, it would take us as long as 13 hours to get there. Then the next day we would sail back to the coast."

Bell and Izant had their homemade boat for three or four years before selling her. "I think she is still in existence and in use, so I guess we did a pretty good job," says Bell. Izant, incidentally, is still active in boating in Southern California and the two old friends run into each other occasionally.

Bell recalls that their plans for that sailboat came from the publication, Motor Boating Magazine. Today Bell writes a regular column on fiberglass and boats for that magazine. And its editor for 50 years, Charles F. Chapman, wrote the foreward for Bell's newest book.

"AT THE TIME we built that boat, such do-it-yourself projects weren't in vogue the way they are today," Bell says. "It was considered quite an undertaking."

Soon thereafter Bell was called upon by a friend to help build a larger boat—this time a 32-footer, again using plans from Motor Boating Magazine. This project took three years resulting in the Scotia, a deep sea cruising ketch still in operation. "I was frequently a member of her crew," Bell says.

But Bell's favorite boat of all-time was one of the Preston Sturges-owned craft, the Island Belle.

"She was a Block Island type," he says, "the kind used by the fisherman in the Atlantic around Block Island.

"She was a colorful boat, and a good seaworthy boat. She handled easily and was comfortable to sail in. And we weathered a lot of storms in her. She was a real sweetheart."

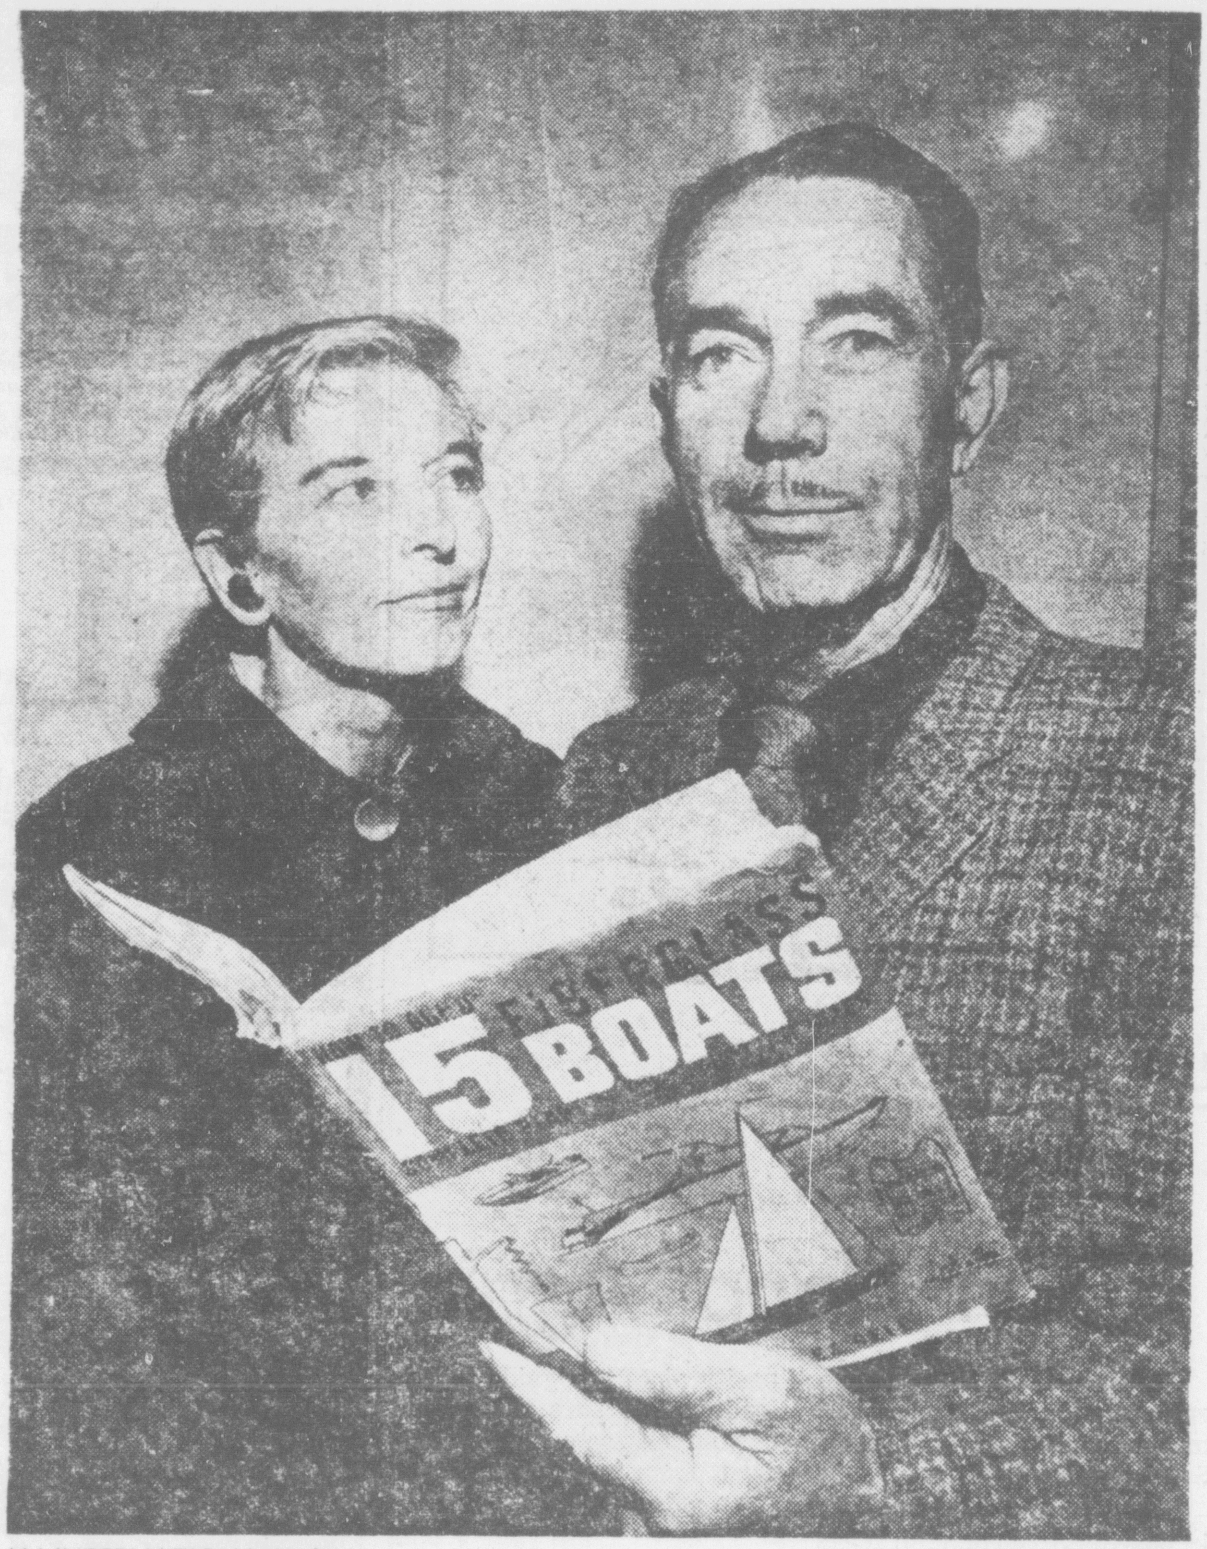

Only once since that 18-footer he built while still in college has Bell owned a boat of his own. For about five years the 35-foot sloop, the Wasp, was his.

"She was 46 years old when I got her shortly after World War II and in wonderful condition," he says. "She was built by Joe Fellows, a man who really knew his business."

After leaving college Bell went to work full-time in the motion picture industry. He did scenery and paintings for sets for MGM. Then he went to work for Sturges. The movie director at the time owned The Players, a theater restaurant, and Bell designed the sets for the productions there.

A FELLOW employee was Adelaide (Jill) MacDonald, a girl from Boston who had come to Southern California and was working as a secretary to Preston Sturges. She became Mrs. Bell.

Unlike her husband, Mrs. Bell had been born into boating.

"We used to sail on the Charles River at Cambridge when I was a girl," she says. "I have always been a boating enthusiast."

It was about this time that Bell designed his first boat. A fisherman with some ideas of his own picked up from the Pacific Northwest came to Bell for help. And a highly satisfactory craft resulted.

Bell then began designing boats for other individuals. He had studied naval architecture briefly at USC and enjoyed the course thoroughly

World War 11 came and Bell went to work for Lockheed as a design engineer. There he became especially interested in the use of reinforced plastics for the liners in the tanks of the aircraft which made possible a more effective sealing of bullet holes. Experimentation in the use of plastics in landing boats was also under way.

"It was plain to me that here was a wonderful boat-building material," he says, "and others could see it, too."

After the war Bell left Lockheed and went into boat designing with new vigor.

"Plastics were my reason for going into it," he asserts. "It's a plastic age and I started incorporating plastic into almost all the boats I designed."

Another result was a number of technical articles on the use of plastics in the building of boats for Motor Boating Magazine and other publications. And during this period Bell also wrote some fiction and continued with his painting.

In 1957 his first book, "How to Build Fiberglass Boats," was published.

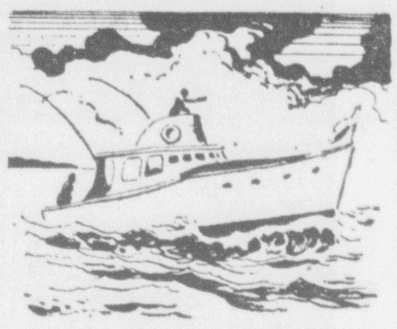

"It was the first book in it's field, just as my earlier magazine articles had been the first of their kind on that subject," Bell says.

HIS BOOK enjoyed a brisk sale both in this country and abroad. And it resulted in new commissions to draw more boat designs.

"I designed boats for people in Italy," he reports, "and was commissioned to plan cargo boats for South American firms. And I had correspondence with the Royal Sailing Society of Siam."

His second book, "How to Build 15 Fiberglass Boats," was published in January of this year (and reviewed in the Independent-Journal's

FLAMBOYANCE—OR, COME BLOW YOUR OWN HORN

Years ago, during my high school days in Highland Park, Michigan, I suffered the torment of the damned with an inferiority complex aggravated by the poverty of those times. Obviously, troubled as I was with the feeling of insecurity and inadequacy, I made little or no noise as I trudged from class to class for fear of drawing attention to myself.

With the encouragement of our counselor, a genuine wise man, poor in material things as I was, but oh so wealthy in the joys of living, I gradually withdrew from my self-imposed imprisonment and started on the noisy road to success. He convinced me that no one could possibly know how good a man or a product was unless you advertised. But, to insure the success of the advertising campaign, you had to deliver what you advertised.

There's been a lot of noise around me these many years since our fruitful discussion, and I can scarcely remember those miserable introverted years of cowering behind the protective wall of self-depreciation. The blessing of positive thinking has created a whole new life, full of promise and challenge.

This background may explain in part why we refuse to apologize for our flamboyancy at Ames Ford. We are inclined toward a bit of chest thumping and noise-making, BUT we do deliver what we advertise.

Some of our competitors who deride us the most are of the introverted variety who open their doors quietly each morning, sit back and wait, and then wonder why customers do not trample them in their eagerness to buy. I'm reminded of the tale of the old man with the hot dog stand on the highway who advertised extensively along the road and enjoyed a busy and prosperous enterprise. His son, just returned from college, reminded his dad of the depression rampant in the country at that time and advised him to cut out his advertising and "pull in his horns." The old man, impressed by the wisdom of his educated son, followed his advice, and thereafter went bankrupt.

I had the pleasure of visiting my wise counselor a few years ago, driving up to his office in a brand new Thunderbird convertible. We made a lot of noise that day.

AT HIS HOME AT 521 Marin Avenue in Tamalpais Valley Charles N. Bell works upon the design and plans for one of his fiberglass boats. It takes about six weeks of work to develop fully a single boat design, he says. Commissions for his plans have come from all over the world. (Independent-Journal photo)

Marin Magazine that same month). It features complete plans for 15 different kinds of water craft ranging from a 10-foot dinghy to a 29-foot cruiser plus general and detailed information on the use of plastics in boat-building. It, too, is selling well.

"It represents about a year of work," Bell says.

He calls his wife his "collaborator" and explains: "She's my editor. Without her help, the stuff wouldn't be readable."

And he adds that they do their own photographs and the intricate and detailed drawings and plans which illustrate the articles.

"When you are writing for amateur boat builders, you have to be much more detailed and specific than when you are writing for a pro," he explains. "There are some things that you can skip when you are writing for the professional. But for the layman, it has to be all spelled out."

It takes about six weeks work to develop fully a single boat design, Bell says.

The Bells moved to the Bay Area about eight years ago. "We came up to San Francisco from Southern California on vacation and just never went back," he says.

They made friends in Marin, visited them and took a special liking to the Mill Valley area. So three years ago they purchased their home at 521 Marin Avenue in Tamalpais Valley.

THERE BELL puts in a long work day which, according to his wife, begins at 6 a.m. and ends at about 9:30 p.m.

During that period he drafts his designs; works on his books, articles and the column, Fiberglass Forum," which he turns out regularly for Motor Boating Magazine; conducts in his basement laboratory the necessary tests and experiments to prove his designs and materials, and paints.

"I do most of my painting outdoors now," he says. "My art is my way of getting some fresh air." His paintings sell well and he is currently preparing for a one-man show in a Walnut Creek gallery.

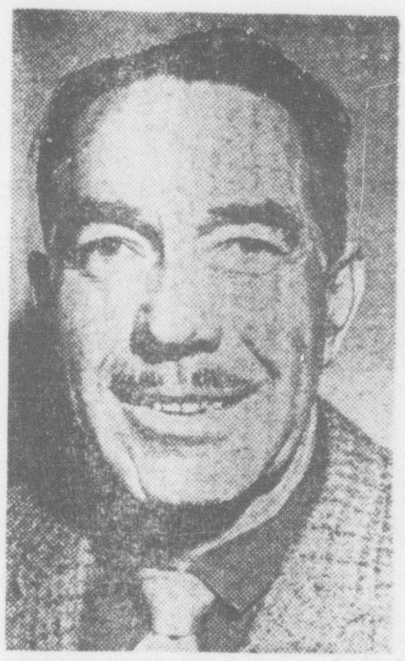

In the basement lab he has built three experimental boats plus numerous models as part of his design work and testing.

His busy schedule gives him little time for boating of his

AS A YOUTH, Charles N. Bell aspired to become an artist. And he still paints professionally, although boat designs are his major interest. This portrait of actress Jan Clayton was commissioned by her husband, Robert Lerner.

THE MOST frequent error of boat builders and buyers, according to Charles N. Bell of Tamalpais Valley, is to overemphasize speed at the expense of comfort, safety, maneuverability and other factors.

Profile Of A Boat Designer

own. But occasionally the Bells head for Southern California for a weekend of boating there with friends. Mrs. Bell still "crews" for her husband.

Bell sees nothing strange about the fact that, while a boat designer and boat lover, he at present owns no boat. "I couldn't afford one," he says. "I don't mean from the money aspect. I mean from the time angle. If I were sailing and enjoying a boat I wouldn't get my writing and designing done."

The Bells have no children. They do have two dogs—a boxer and a dachshund—and "an adopted cat." And Mrs. Bell according to her husband, "also adopts the deer who like to come down into our yard and eat off our fruit trees."

Bell see relatively few boats built to his design in the Bay Area.

"Most of the boats I have designed are found in Southern California," he says. "And there are also a good many of them in the East. I don't know why there aren't more in the Bay Area. It's just one of those things."

In fact, Bell finds, few Marinites are aware of his identity.

"I run into boating people who have read my books and articles, but who haven't the faintest idea I am the Charles Bell who wrote them," he says.

Of the people who build their own boats, Bell has this to say: "They are generally the independent and resourceful types. And this means that once they tackle a job, they see it through.

"I'VE KNOWN some fellows who have tackled some pretty complicated projects as their first job. It seemed like they were getting in over their heads. But they stuck it out and they turned out some beautiful boats.

"That's what it takes to build your own boat—a lot of determination and a refusal to be awed by the task ahead."

"Then, too," Bell adds with a grin, "it doesn't hurt a bit to have a set of my plans on hand."

Exotic Vessels From Hong Kong

Fancy Handcrafting Decorates Chinese Junks In Clipper Harbor

Aberdeen might seem a most unlikely place to build Chinese junks, but this is exactly where the exotic vessels offered for sale by Clipper Yacht Co. in Sausalito originate.

Aberdeen, Hong Kong, that is.

Clipper Yacht is the West Coast distributor for the Wo Hing Loong Shipyard which produces the teak-hulled craft in a variety of sizes from the 26-foot fishing junk to a 50-foot trawling model.

Priced at about a third the cost of a sailing vessel of comparable size built elsewhere, the junks are lantern rigged, feature a surprising amount of usable space, and can be powered by inboard or outboard engines.

Some of the features of the 30-foot by nine-foot by two and a half-foot stock model now on display at Clipper include almost six and a half feet of headroom in the cabin, sleeping facilities for four, a head, ample locker space, galley, table, copper lined icebox, teak shelving, a fresh water tank, and a well for outboard power.

Probably the most startling aspect of the junks, however, is the artistic handcrafting which includes intricate woodcarving and paintings of Oriental scenes. In addition to the dragons on the sides of the vessel and interior artwork, the factory carves the vessel name and hailing port in both English and Chinese on the stern.

Nor are these merely "crazy decorations," according to Dr. Thomas Williams, associate professor of anthropology at Sacramento State College. "They are meaningful symbols," according to this scholar of Asia whose "profession is anthropology and hobby is sailing — especially junks." The Fan Kwai is his personal pride and joy.

Williams, a personal friend of the shipyard owner in Hong Kong, assists Shirley Morgan and Cliff Pederson, owners of Clipper Yacht Harbor, in corresponding with the yard. "And when the going gets really rough" in the language department, he writes his letters in Chinese.

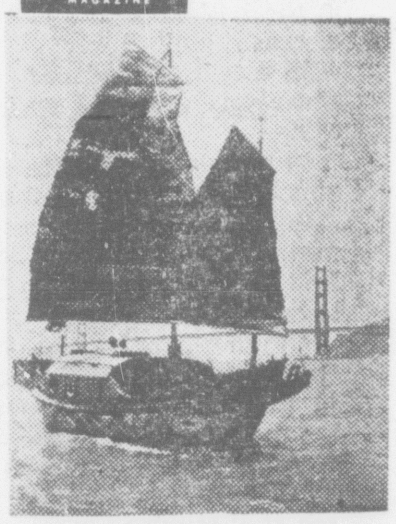

More than symbols of good fortune, he explains, the dragons on the bowsprit and hull and the fantail carvings are symbols of good health and happiness. Paintings on the interior are typical family scenes and represent the loyalty and "togetherness" so important in traditional Oriental families.

These are scenes which have been on Chinese junks for centuries and indicate the authenticity of the models now being imported. In fact, the "only bow to western ways" on the boats is the varnish used to finish them. Ordinarily the Chinese would rub down all wood surfaces with oil, according to Williams.

The shipyard building junks for Clipper Yacht Co. is one of three in Hong Kong with similar histories. Generations of workmen are represented in them, plying the trade handed down by grandfathers and great grandfathers. To this day there are no formal plans for building the junks. Each generation teaches the next the art and the workmen grow into their trade, starting as small children who help clean up the yards.

Dragons On The Water

INTRICATE WOOD CARVING on the bowsprit and the carved and painted dragon on the hull of this Chinese junk are meaningful symbols of good fortune, health and happiness for the owner of the beautiful craft.

THS CARVING on the main cabin bulkhead is an ancient and traditional representation of the wisdom of man, reminding the vessel's owner of the need for charity, faith, and hope. The carving is done by Chinese craftsmen with a small hand wood chisel.

CARVED AND PAINTED characters on the fantails of junks include the name of the vessel and its hailing port. This is the Fan Kwai, owned by Dr. Thomas Williams, associate professor of anthropology at Sacramento State College and scholar on Asia.

THE FAMILY SCENE above and the warrior being tattooed below are symbolic of the loyalty and togetherness of Oriental families and the need for man to have courage.

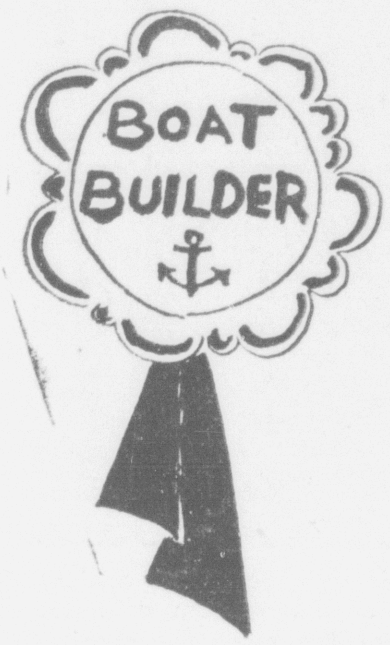

BRIGHTLY PAINTED scenes of Chinese family life not only decorate the bulkheads of the Chinese junk cabin, but also are intended to remind the owners of the importance of "things as they should be."

Boat Builder—A Little Beat But His Head Still Unbowed

The Witch Of The Bay Lives Up To Her Name

By KARL BARRON

"How's your ark coming?" is the standard greeting I get from such characters as Steinheimer the photographer and Bradley the ad salesman.

I am never sure whether they jest or whether they are just ignorant. The latter, I'm afraid.

It is not an ark. An ark is a floating animal habitat. This thing they refer to is a home, a ship, a monument—literally —sculptured in my blood.

Her name is La Bruja de la Baia—The Witch of the Bay. A Spanish speaking friend tells me "bruja" has another meaning. I disregard this. It is a noble, story-telling name. Besides this is a family newspaper.

SHE WAS A rather mangy looking ex-Navy fireboat when we found her in Jerry Kalfos' yard in Sausalito. Of fine solid construction, however, built to take the vibration of five big diesel engines. One, amidship, drove the boat—the others in the four corners of the cheese boxey cabin drove pumps that sucked water through four holes a foot in diameter in the bottom. The five engines were long gone. The holes had been neatly patched by a previous owner, thank goodness!

Once we saw La Bruja, we were lost. We bought her, peeling paint and all.

As the floor in the after half of the cabin rose too much to allow headroom, the first project was to raise the roof. I not only raised the roof—I sawed myself off a limb just like the guy in the cartoon.

I did.

Using the portable saw to cut away a beam, I leaned my elbow on the beam being cut, and when it went, I went. Headfirst, into the bilge. In the eight-foot fall, I twisted and landed feet down, which is probably what wrenched my back. Landing on a sloping plank wrenched my knee. I'm not sure what wrenched my head. It knocked me out. The saw flew off to starboard, luckily, and was only slightly bent by the fall. I was bent for a month.

WHEN I WENT to work on La Bruja in August, 1961, wife Gwen set August 1962 as a deadline to move aboard. (Yes, we're going to live on her.) If I make it, I'll write a follow-up article. (It's like pulling teeth to get me to write the first article, let alone a follow-up, but I'm not worried.

A great Chesapeake boat designer named Howard Chappelle has figured out the limit of hours that an amateur builder should set himself for a project. He points out that if it takes more than a couple of years, you grow bored with it.

It's taken me nine months (a significant figure?) to realize how truly wise Howard Chappelle is.

HOWEVER, it's surprising what man (and woman) can achieve. La Bruja now has her permanent raised cabin in place, leakproof. There are some leaks in the original forward half, but the rains are over now—I hope.

She has a new, small enclosed cabin forward which will be a workshop and darkroom. She has a toilet (pardon, head for the boating edition), shower, and galley.

The wheelhouse will be Gwen's studio. (She's Gwen Stone, the artist, who I hope will soon support me through the sale of her paintings. Up to now she's had to work at other jobs to make it.)

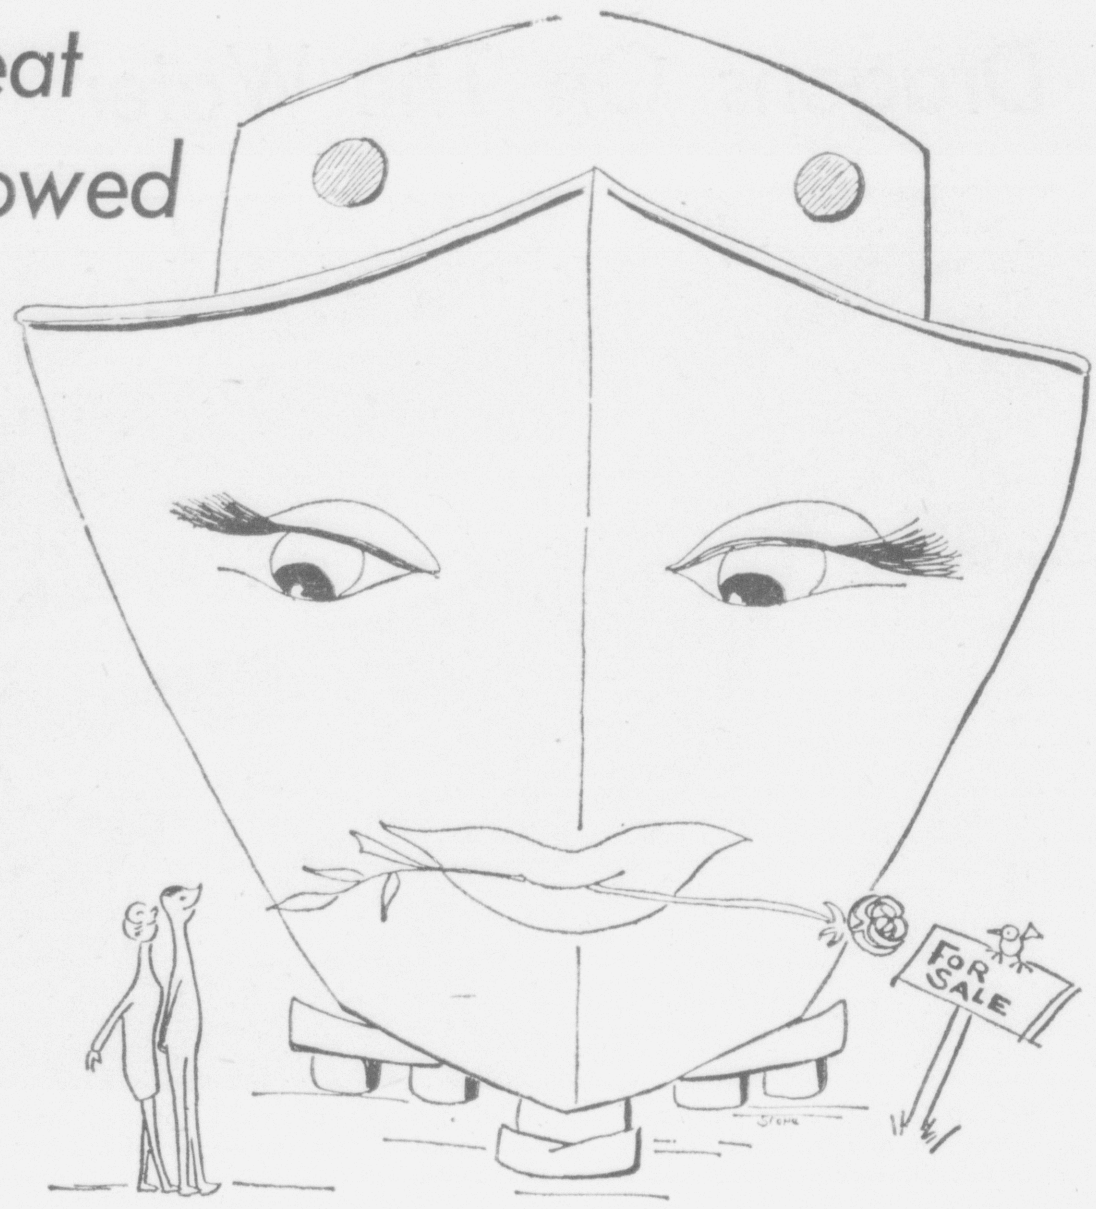

THE WHEELHOUSE can't be built until after La Bruja is launched, as the utility wires across Bridgeway are only 17 feet high. I have a premonition that Jerry will have me riding the top deck as he trucks her to Associated Dredging's dock. When he sees me fall off, he'll know he's cleared the wires. Duck soup for a guy who sawed himself off a beam.

La Bruja is 40 feet long, has a 14-foot beam, and a V, almost flat bottom. This makes her a natural for a stern wheel drive.

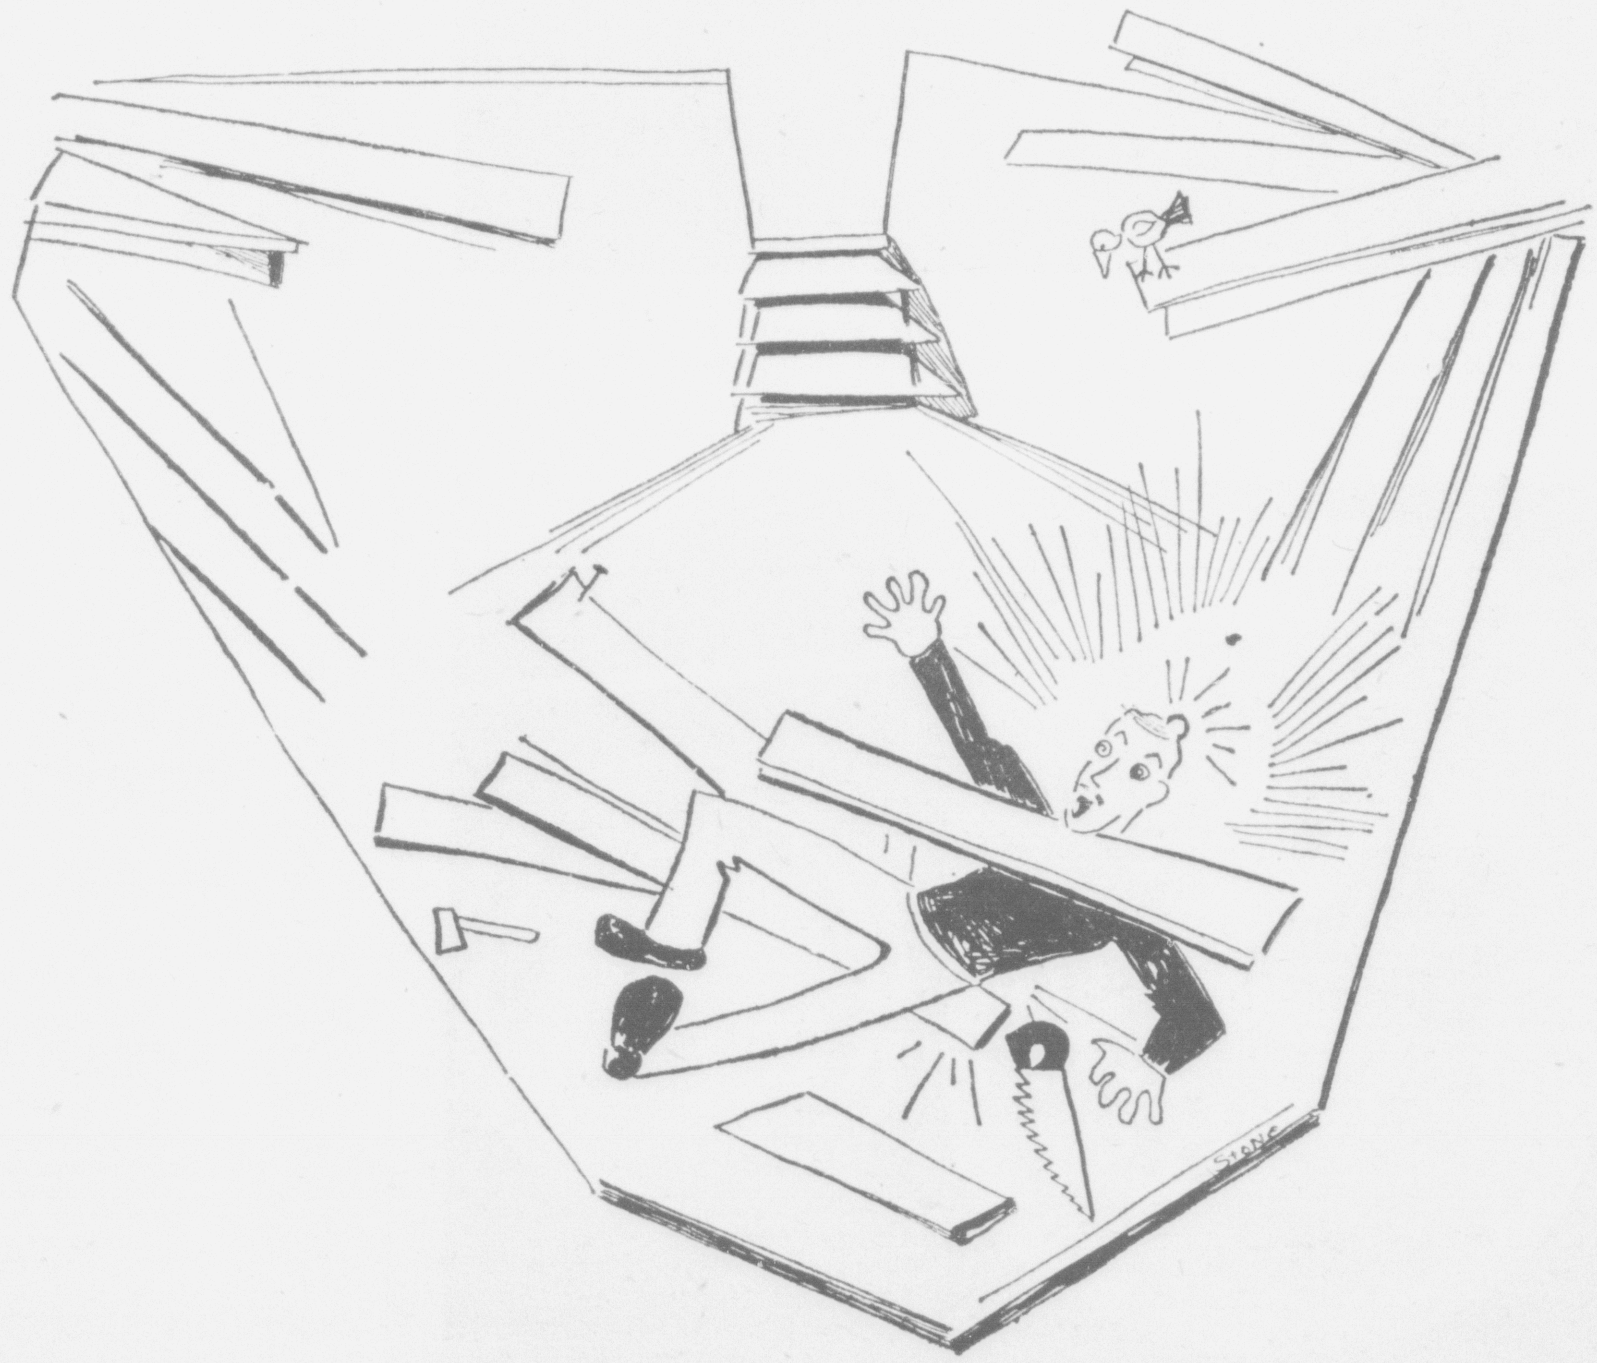

That's right — I mean a paddlewheel. In this age of speed, people stare in complete amazement when you say "paddlewheel." But this is what we intend to use. It makes sense from a number of angles.

1. We're not going anywhere in a hurry. We think we can get a wheel to kick her an honest eight knots. Fast enough—especially with

LA BRUJA DIDN'T really look like this when the Karl Barrons came upon her in a Sausalito shipyard. But to them she had all the irresistible appeal of a siren. And so they wound up rebuilding her—and rebuilding and rebuilding and rebuilding . . .

IT WASN'T EASY but Barron succeeded in sawing himself off the beam. The results—wrenched back and knee, bump on head. And a slightly bent saw. Sketches are by Gwen Stone, Marin artist and wife of the "beat boat builder."

Boat Builder's Ordeal

dirty dishes on the sinkboard.

2. The engine is located all the way astern, where there's a nice deck space available for it. No fumes, no noise in the main cabin.

3. Over the wheel itself will go a light stern deck. What a spot for trolling, sitting in a nice chair . . . won't be able to stand by then, anyway.

4. It's romantic. And every guy that's sold on paddlewheels eventually admits this is the real reason. So—we're some kind of nuts.

Oh yes, I also ran the portable saw into its own power cable.

I did.

However, I saw it just in time (before the sparks flew) and must remember to put some tape on the gash in the cable.

LA BRUJA still has one in her bottom. I've put off patching it because it lets the water run out. If I can get the top to stop leaking, then it'll be time to start worrying about the bottom.

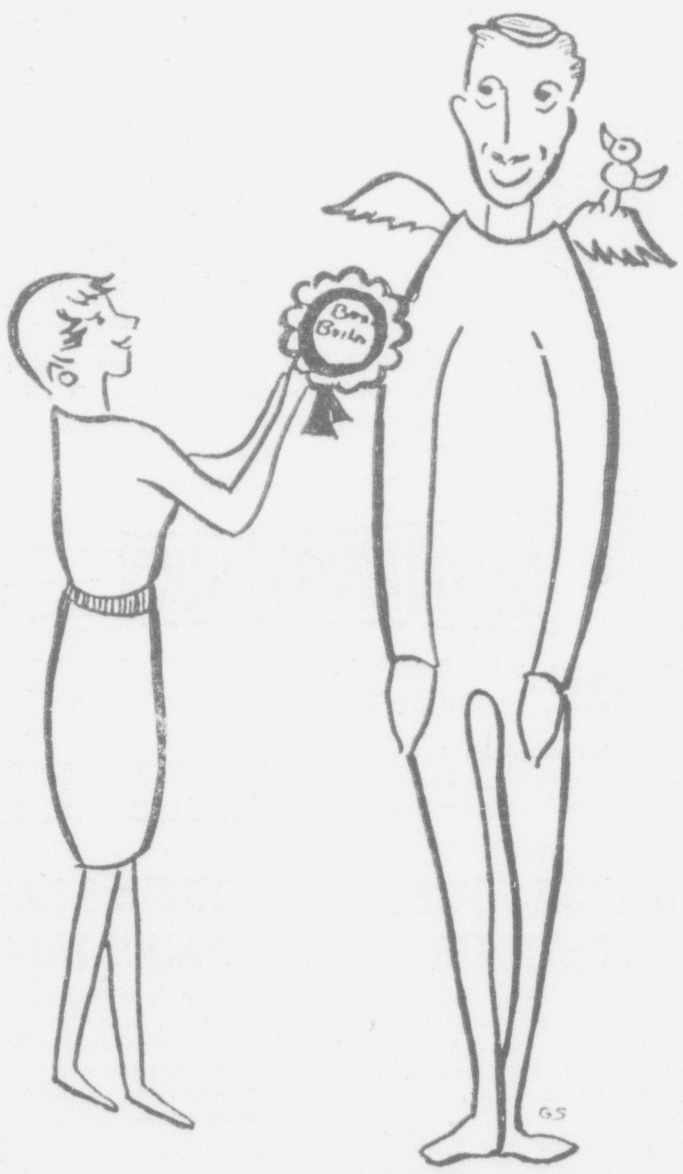

Did Gwen say August '62 or '63? If anyone knows how I might con her into thinking she said '63, or that this is still '61, write me—collect.

Just address Sternwheeler La Bruja de la Baia, c/o Jerry Kalfos' Safe Harbor for Sorry Ships.

Be sure to date your letter. Something like June 1, 1961.

By the way, did you ever have a half-inch drill running at 1,750 rpm and run it through a piece of two-inch lumber about six by eight inches without holding the lumber? About the time the bit goes through . . .!

I did.

YOU AND YOUR INSURANCE

PRESCRIPTION FOR DRUG STORE INSURANCE NEEDS

The corner pharmacy of a decade ago was a place to buy cough syrup and medicine. Some apothecary shops carried a supply of rock candy and once in a while there was an antique soda fountain.

Today, all this has changed. The drug store has become a supermarket type operation dealing with everything from baby food to movie cameras. Along with additional business this change has created new problems. From the very nature of his business, the druggist has a unique liability exposure because of the sale of drugs and potentially injurious chemical products. This liability has been compounded in the modern drug store with its wide variety of sales. Insurance for drug stores is divided roughly into two types: (1) insurance to protect the druggist against legal liability to members of the shopping public, and (2) protection for loss or damage to the property.

A druggist is particularly vulnerable to liability claims, especially in the lght of the higher judgments being awarded to the victims of disabling personal injuries.

Some of the claims for which courts have awarded damages against drug stores include incorrect ingredients in prescriptions, erroneous labeling, misdelivery of prescriptions and contaminated products. Most of these are beyond the control of the modern druggist.

Sabot—The Grandad Of Sailing Dinghies

Versatile Little Boat Has Returned To The Bay Area

Sabot, the granddaddy of sailing dinghies, returned to San Francisco Bay recently after an absence of some 20 years when Clipper Yacht Co., Sausalito, became local distributor for the popular little craft.

Originally built in 1939 from McGregor plans published in Rudder Magazine, the Sabot (Dutch for shoe) was widely accepted—but not just for the reason it was designed.

Intended primarily as a dinghy which could be rowed or sailed from the mother boat to shore, it became so popular as a fun boat that it was accepted as a class by the Small Boat Racing Assn. and is now said to be one of the largest single classes in the world.

Shortly before World War II members of the Richmond Yacht Club eyed the Sabot, made some modifications such as changing from a leeboard to a centerboard, footed the sail, and decked over the forward part of the boat. What evolved became known as the El Toro.

The Sabot, then being built of the first waterproof plywood, remained more popular in Southern California and eastern waters.

After the war several builders began turning out the Sabot — among them Sidney Blinder, of Southern California, now one of the largest producers of the boat.

Converting from plywood to glass and returning to the original plans, they retained the retractable leeboard instead of the more cumbersome centerboard, and eliminated the deck. By so doing they were able to keep the weight of the boat down to 55 pounds and the price some $100 less than that of its offspring El Toro. With the reduced weight, transporting is simple and the hull slides snugly into the back of most conventional station wagons.

As an added safety factor the Sabot is built with polyester foam flotation chambers which make it virtually unsinkable.

The fun of sailing these diminutive wind wagons lures even the most proficient sailmen; however, it is the ideal boat for beginners with an eye toward size, price, and handling qualities.

Somewhat like the currently popular expandable house, the Sabot can be purchased at a low price first as a rowing dinghy. Later sail rigging can be added. And still later, when the enthusiast purchases his yacht, the Sabot can be pressed into service as the shore boat.

All this and the fun of sailing too!

DEMONSTRATING the maneuverability and handling ease of the Sabot at his Clipper Yacht Harbor in Sausalito, dealer Shirley Morgan runs before the wind in the granddaddy of the sailing dinghies. Note the "sabot" or Dutch shoe on the sail. (Photos by Ken Molino)

THE SABOT'S sleeved sail makes for easier rigging as well as short period storage between sailings. The owner merely folds the boom to the mast and rolls both in the mainsail.

CHARLES WINSLOW, inventor and semi-retired head of an East Bay manufacturing firm, relaxes in the family room of the Winslows' Paradise Cay home. Glasses are for checking weather conditions and it does not take Winslow, his wife, Catherine, at the window, and Pal, their short-haired German pointer sleeping on the rug, long to climb aboard their 43-foot Stephens cruiser and head for open waters.

Day With Boating Family

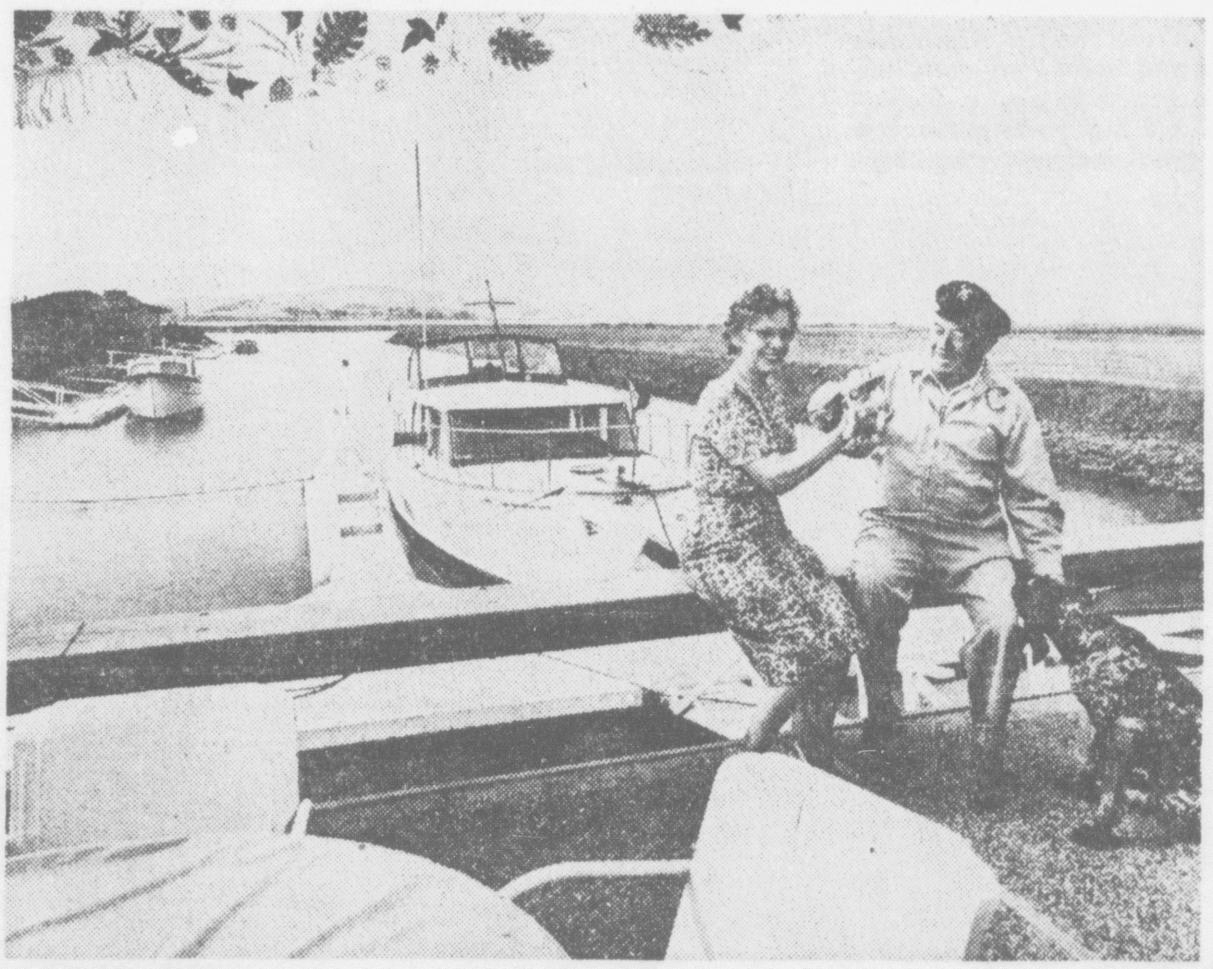

Earliest and typical arrivals at Paradise Cay, the 325-homesite subdivision off Paradise Drive in Tiburon, are the Charles A. Winslows.

Winslow is semi-retired, his family grown. He is an ardent hunter, fisherman and conservationist. He was president of the Angel Island Foundation and active with Mrs. Noman B. Livermore in seeking the area as a park. He is also a former chairman of the California Parks and Harbors Commission.

Wealthy, active, he keeps a hand in his business now run chiefly by his sons-in-law. He continues to invent. And he travels widely, hunting and fishing every available day of the year.

An advocate of waterfront living, he has landscaped his Paradise Cay home to require a minimum of gardening upkeep. The house is large, ceilings high. It makes for living in a relaxed, comfortable style.

There is enough room for a study. And when Winslow isn't aboard his boat, the Winslow Girl, he can often be found there working on a new invention or writing a technical paper for one of the many engineering societies to which he belongs.

IT'S TOO FINE a day to stay indoors and the Winslows move out to their sheltered, aggregate-surfaced patio with their dogs Pal and the teacup-sized Chihuahua Bambi. Here they do much of their outdoor entertaining. But right now they are thinking about a cruise. (Photos by Ken Molino)

"Are Plastic Bags Good For Storing Garments?"

No. We don't mean to be abrupt, but as promptly as possible we want to warn you against prolonged storage of garments in plastic bags. Plastic bags are handy for laundry, picnic lunch wrappers, beach bags for wet bathing suits and for many other purposes—but not for prolonged storage of garments!

Plastic bags are air-tight because polyethylene is non-porous. For normal use in covering garments, plastic bags will keep them fresh and free from soil. However, if garments are stored in them for long periods, holes should be made in the bags or the garments removed for storage in paper bags or boxes. Unless air is permitted to circulate in a plastic bag, mildew, color fading or oxidation may result.

Incidentally, moth proof storage at home should be in brown cedar bags, completely sealed, after the garments are freshly drycleaned. Cedar bags are slightly porous which permits some air in the bag.

The Charles Winslows Have Boating At Their Doorstep

LUNCH IN ONE HAND, Catherine Winslow helps her husband Charles get his fishing rods on board their cruiser. They've lived at Paradise Cay for a year and a half and especially enjoy having their boat at their back door.

YOU CHART YOUR COURSE before you start out. And Skipper Winslow does just that. His 43-foot Stephens cruiser is outfitted with a number of his own inventions including a collapsible anchor. The boat sleeps six and slides easily in and out of the wide lagoons to the floating dock beside the Winslows' modern house.

WITH CHARLES at the throttle, Catherine in the hatchway and Bambi on deck, the Winslow crew is ready to cruise the inland waterways and bay surface that are part of Marin's great recreation heritage.

IN DUCK SEASON Winslow often brings his boat into a feeding field to get a shot at the mallards. Fishing, too, is a sport the Winslows enjoy from the deck of their Winslow Girl. Prime fishing grounds are only 20 minutes away from the Winslows' back porch.

BACK HOME, Winslow spends some time in his study at the drawing board. He holds more than 150 patents and is head of Winslow Engineering and Manufacturing Co. of Emeryville and Murray, Ky. The firm provides filters for atomic submarines, automobiles and airplanes.

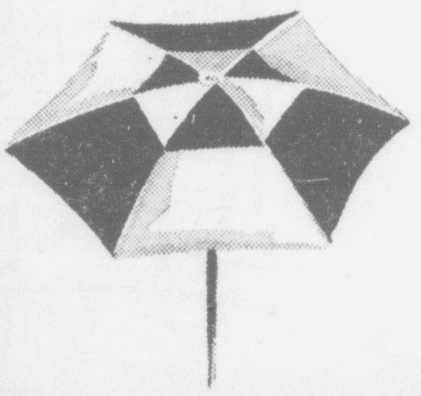

LATEST INVENTION of Charles Winslow is a collapsible anchor, a model of which he demonstrates here. He is also the author of hundreds of technical papers on engineering subjects.

THE CUCUMBER WAS on the waters of San Francisco Bay when this old photograph was taken in the 1890s. Using a magnifying glass, E. W. Hewston was able to determine that the man at the tiller was his elder brother, Robert, and the standing figure, another brother Selby. The Hewson brothers built the Cucumber in the backyard of their San Francisco home.

The Saga Of The Good Ship Cucumber

By DON KEOWN

There was no boat on San Francisco Bay quite like the Cucumber in her time.

So asserts Ernest W. Hewston in recalling his boyhood and teen-ager days in San Francisco and Marin—and the boat which provided him and his pals with many happy hours.

The Cucumber was built in 1892, he recalls, in the backyard of the Hewson home. (Ernest explains that he later added a "T" to his share of the family name), at 718 Octavia Street in San Francisco by his two older brothers, Robert B. and Selby D. Hewson, then 20 and 18 years old.

"Robert was then taking an engineering course in San Francisco's Cogswell College," Hewston says.

"THEY REQUIRED about three months in the building," he continues, "and the lumber came from the planing mill of my three uncles, Henry, Charles and Thomas Green, located at Fifth and Brannan in San Francisco. There too most of the framing of the boat was done.

"The ribs of the Cucumber were of stout oak, the deck mahogany and the hull, I believe, was of either oak or teak.

"She was 15 feet over all, perhaps 16 feet, with a safe beam of five feet. The cockpit was protected by an eight-foot washboard of oak. She carried a jib and leg o' mutton sail."

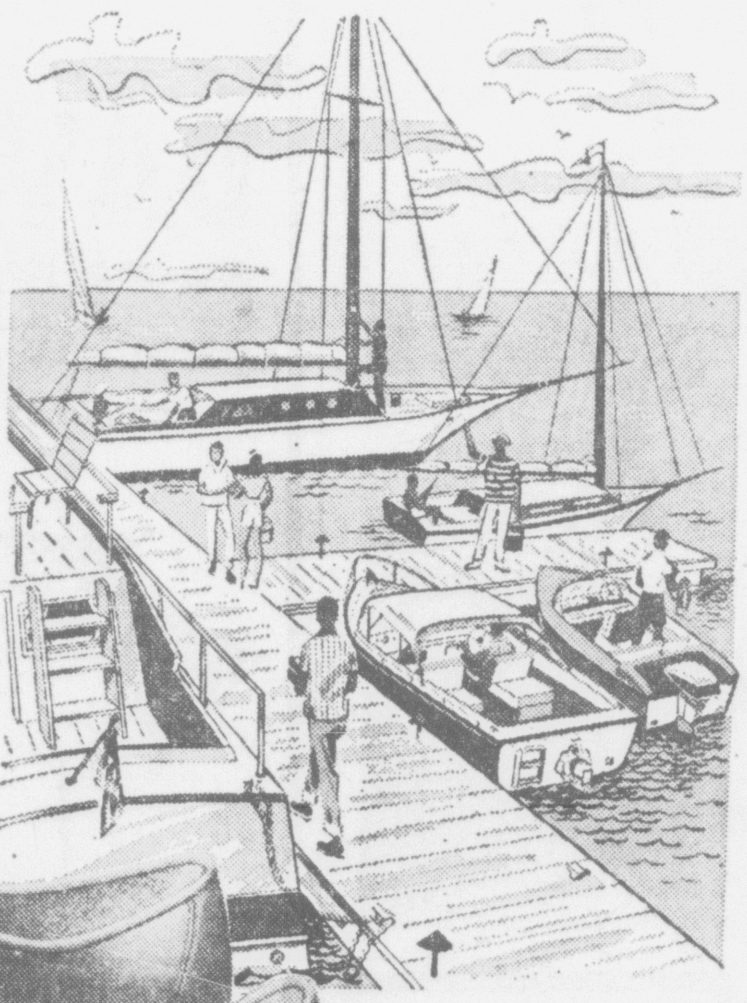

Why the name Cucumber? "Because my brothers thought they would certainly be in a 'pickle' in the rough waters of San Francisco Bay."

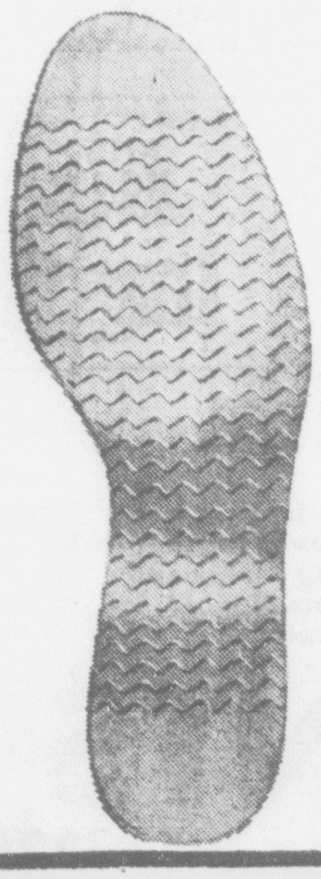

The launching took place in 1892 at North Beach where Robert and Selby Hewson belonged to the North Beach

THE CUCUMBER

Buccaneers were we of old,
Defying wind and rain—
Aboard our good "ship" Cucumber
On the dreamy Spanish Main.
Brothers bold we sailed our craft,
Boys of spirit high,
Down Larkspur Creek and on to sea,
Under the sea-gull's cry.

Red Rock was a pirate cove
Where Spanish doubloons lay
Buried in a treasure trove
On San Francisco Bay.
Along the ramblin' Marin shore
Our noble "barque" would trail,
Three kid captains of the deep
And a leg o'mutton sail.

Indians lurked in sandy coves,
Their cruel eyes burned with hate;
They didn't whoop at us because
We were a century late!
Our lair was winding Larkspur creek—
With marsh and tule blest—
Greenbrae loomed up toward the east
And Mount Tamalpais west.
Come summer-time we'd anchor up—
Three adolescent lambs—
Go searching for rich pirate gold
And return to port with clams.
Or climb we would old Tamalpais
And gape most wonderingly
At California fields below
And the sparkling sea.

Southward stood the ancient Fort
By the cliff-girt Golden Gate;
Spike those Spanish guns? Alas!—
'Twas fifty years too late!
West across the longitudes
Marco Polo's Cathay
Lay just beyon' romantic Nippon—
We'd anchor there one day.

Westward o'er the wooded hills—
In the sun's jewelled wake—
Was the snuggish opalescent bay
Seen first by Francis Drake.
Ahoy! Is that his "Golden Hind?"—
The Spaniards did her dread—
No—'tis but a misty mirage—
Sir Francis was centuries dead!

How we loved the Cape Horn ships!
Anchored off our lee—
In from Newcastle with coals—
With grains they sail'd for Swansea.
And Yankee ships of saucy rake—
'Twas quick enough to spot 'em
In Oakland Creek where sweating crews
Cursed barnacles off their bottoms.

Southward Mission Rock
Where Alex. Gibson—sleek full-rigger
Lay hawsered to the dock.
Oft she sailed to distant seas
A queen of the ocean blue;
Her Nipponese cook of Nagasaki
Brought us a present or two.

Golden were those days of yore,
Back in 'ninety-five—
With my brothers Herb and Ed—
Shipmates—and alive!
We loved our cozy, home-built "ship,"
She never did us fail;
Long she'll live in memory
With her leg o'mutton sail!

Boat Club. Comprising the crew were their friends, the Hawks brothers, Jack, Bert and Bud, and Ben Klumpke. The Cucumber was tucked away at night in the North Beach Boat Clubhouse at the foot of Jones Street.

"The Cucumber," Hewston says, "was present at the launchings of the battleship Oregon, cruiser San Francisco and monitor Monterey from the yards of the Union Iron Works in South San Francisco. My father owned a steam launch powered by a turbine patented by him, and we younger boys, together with my mother and sister and friends, saw the launchings, gala affairs, from this steam launch named Bee. The Cucumber, with crew and friends, usually hung aft with a line attached to the Bee. At one launching, I believe it was the Oregon, she was nearly capsized by the huge wave caused by the launching."

Of his brothers and their friends, Hewston says: "Those boys, fearless navigators of San Francisco Bay and its swift tides, cruised often to Sausalito and Tiburon and in the upper reaches of San Pablo Bay as far as Mare Island.

"My elder brother Bob swam more than once to Alcatraz and back with the Cucumber standing by for safety.

"They would sail around the old steam-and-sail USS Mohican and cruiser Charleston, launched in the late 1880s, and the battleship Oregon at anchor in Man-o'-War Row south of the old Ferry Building.

"There was no boat quite like the Cucumber on the Bay. Young sailors cruised about in sail-equipped rowboats or open boats called Whitehalls. However, there were quite a number of larger craft, steam launches and yachts belonging to the Corinthian Yacht Club of Sausalito—which was a haven for smaller craft, as well as windjammers which lay up in Richardson's Bay awaiting charter."

Then in 1895 when the father's health began to fail, the Hewsons moved to Larkspur.

E. W. HEWSTON
A boat remembered

Ernest remembers that when the move was made, his older brothers sailed the Cucumber across the bay and up Corte Madera Creek, "mooring her at the old boathouse opposite Escalle's vineyard."

And that "from then on, more or less, she became the property of my younger brothers, Herbert and Edwin, and myself."

He recalls a night ride in about 1895 aboard the Cucumber to Belvedere Island to witness the annual Belvedere Fiesta, "a very gala affair attended by yachts, steam launches and other craft from around the bay. My brother Robert, expert yachtsman, sailed down on the tide with my mother, sister Carolyn and brothers aboard, returning at midnight with the incoming tide."

Of the festival, Hewston remembers: "It was a gallant affair. Every home on the island was illuminated with Japanese lanterns as were most of the boats attending the affair."

THE HEWSON family, too, had ties with the sea.

"My father, Robert Hewson, sailed around the Horn to San Francisco in 1864 aboard the good ship Invincible," Hewston reports. "His father, Robert Hewson, a Yorkshire man, built ships at Charleston, Prince Edward Island, Canada, and sailed them to Boston where he sold them.

"My youngest brother, Edwin, one of the Cucumber's crew, sailed to Honolulu as cabin boy at the age of 14 aboard the Tillie E. Starbuck. At the captain's urging he went around the Horn before the mast on the same ship.

"At 26, as second officer of the SS Santa Rosa, he died when she ran ashore off Lompoc in 1911."

Hewston says her young crew sailed the Cucumber in and out of Corte Madera Creek until the war with Spain broke out in 1898. Then he and Bart Burtchaell, "brother of San Rafael's grovery man," joined the First California Regiment of Volunteers as buck privates and sailed to Manila aboard the old Pacific mailer City of Peking "where we tangled with the Spaniards and later the Filipinos for 17 months."

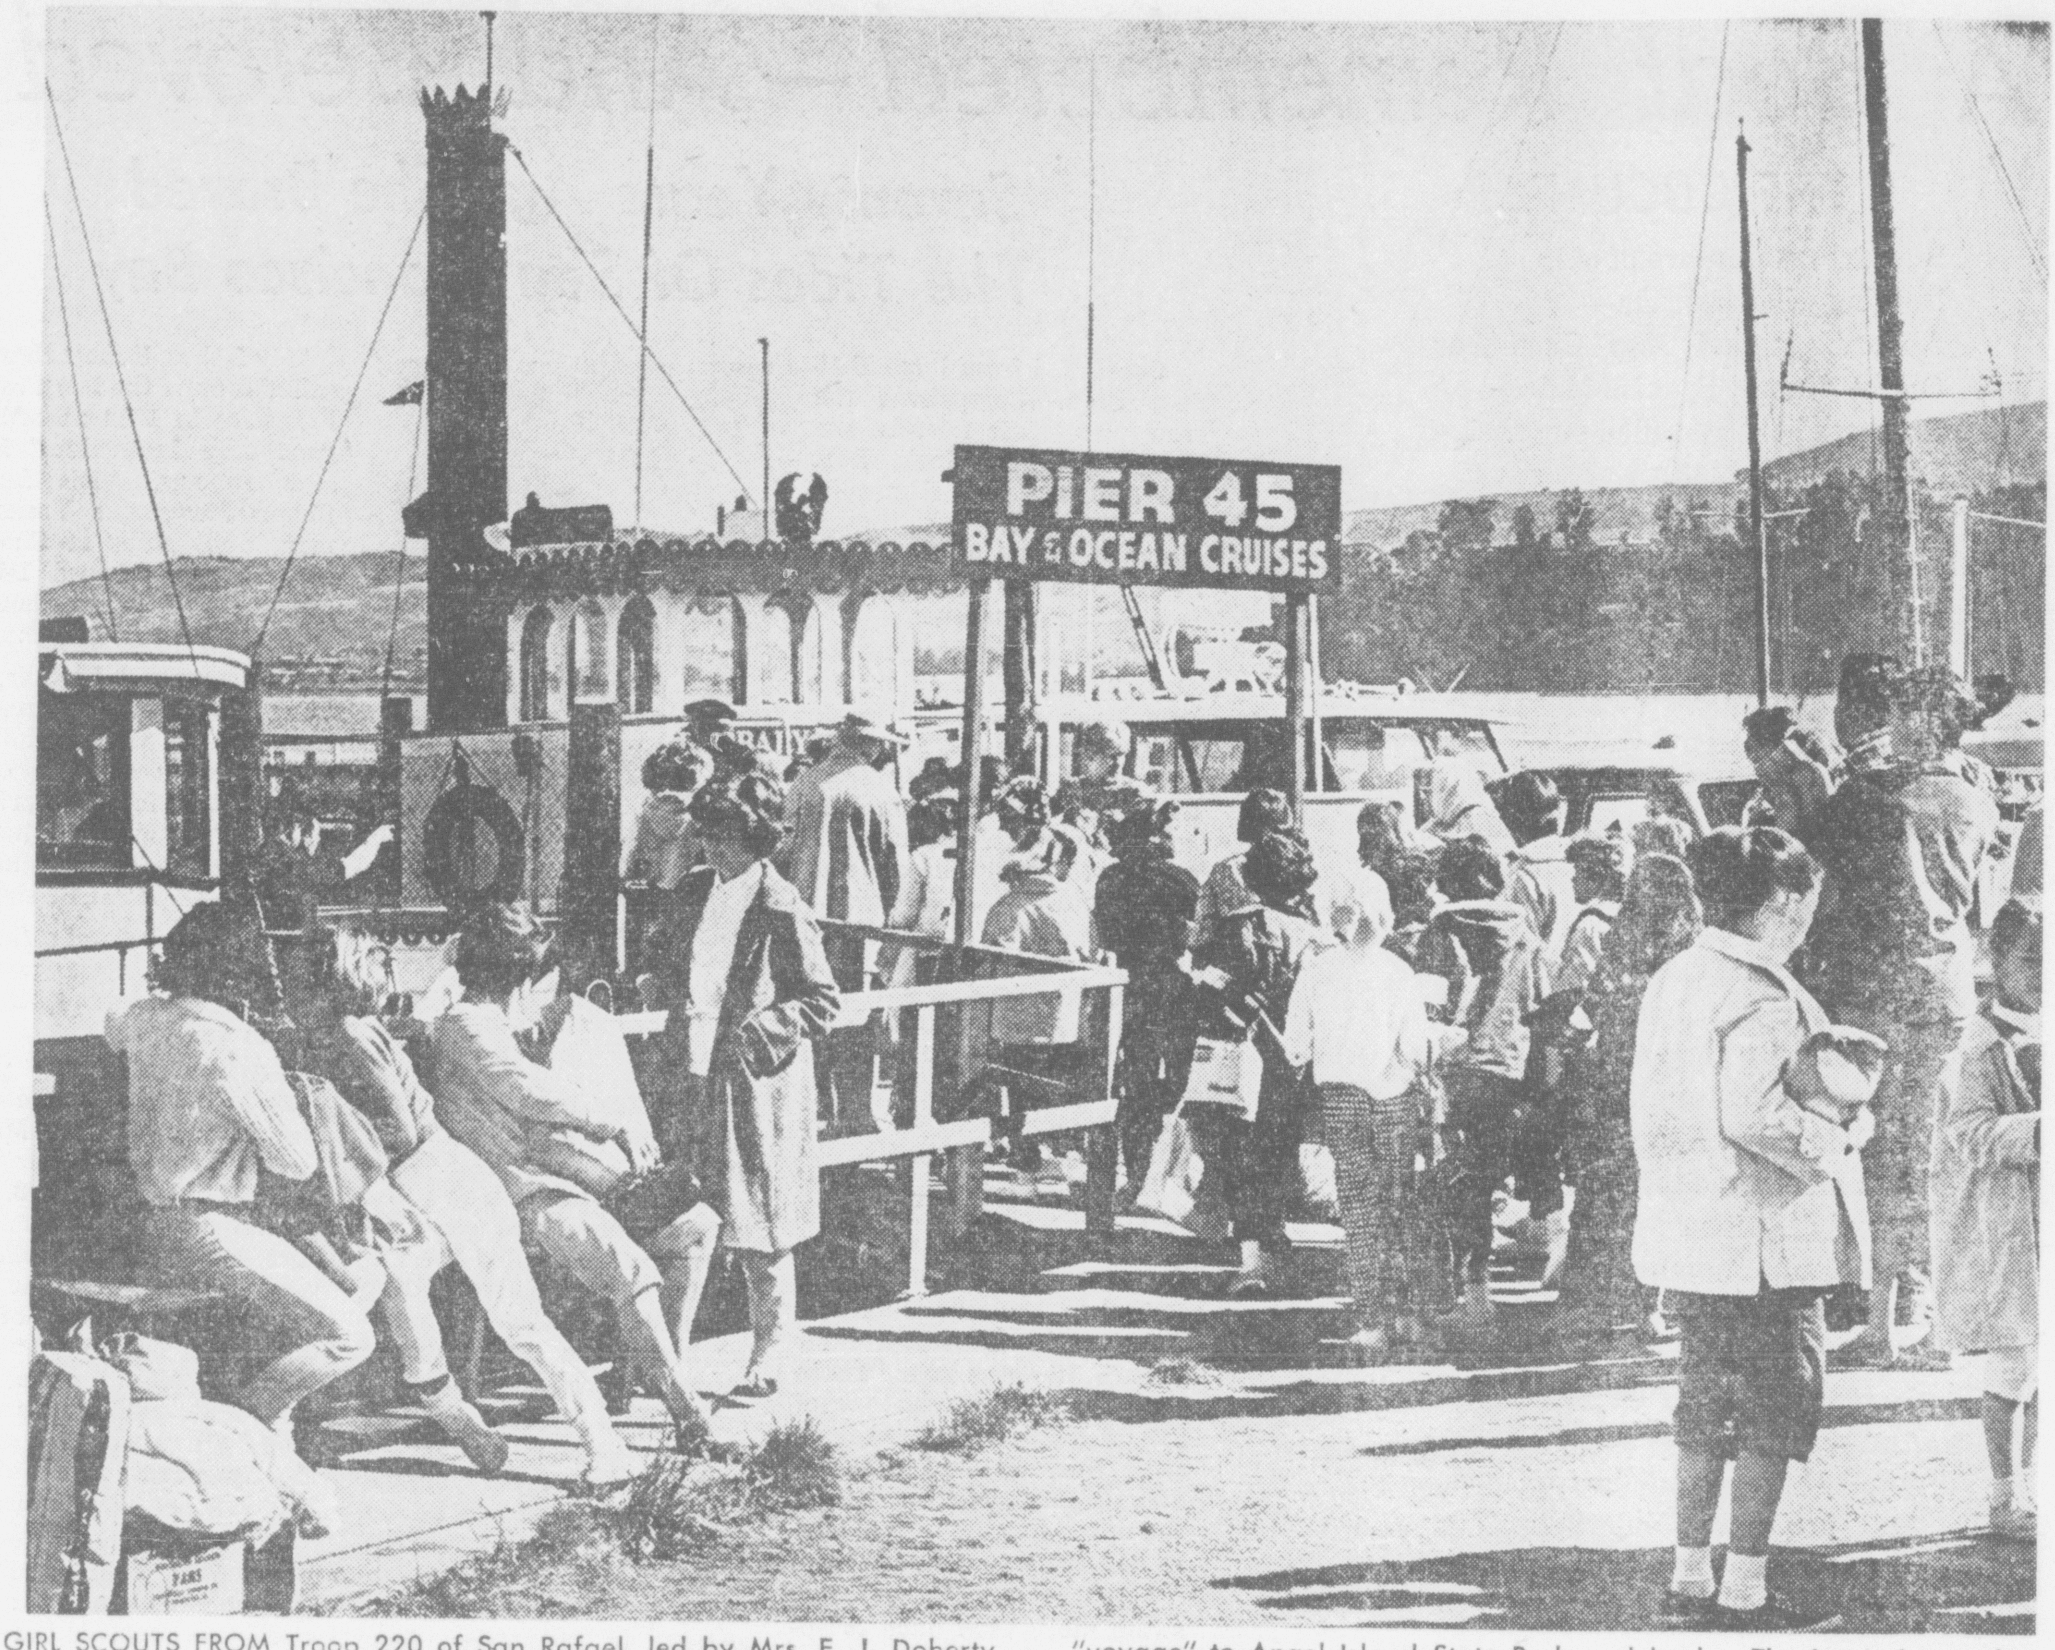

In the Philippines he shook hands with Admiral Dewey. And upon return to San Francisco, "we received the plaudits of practically every sail and steamboat on the bay."

The family moved back to San Francisco in 1899, turning the Cucumber over to a Corte Madera friend, Walter Jackson.

"He sailed her for awhile, but the dear ship finally ended up, a shadow of her former self, on the mudflats of Corte Madera where her bones probably rest today under some modern bungalow," is the way Hewston completes the story of the Cucumber.

As for Hewston himself, he no longer lives in the Bay Area. Now 82, he is in Monrovia. But his thoughts are frequently of waters and shores to the north. And of the days when the Cucumber was in a class of her own in those waters.

You Need Not Own A Boat To Enjoy A Weekend Cruise

Envy the family with a boat? And their Sunday cruises over Bay waters?

You, too, can enjoy a day on the water. And without buying a boat.

Cruise With Lewis, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Russ Lewis of Sausalito, has a regular weekend and holiday schedule of excursions from Sausalito to Angel Island. And there's no nicer place to spend a Saturday or Sunday than Angel Island State Park with its unspoiled natural beauty.

You can board the boat—either Barbary Coast or Blue Horizon, both owned and operated by the Lewises—at

Pier 45 in Sausalito. Departures are at 9:30 a.m. every Saturday, Sunday and holiday. After about a half hour voyage you'll dock at Hospital Cove's public landing on the island.

You will have better than seven hours to explore the island, dig sand crabs, or just be lazy in the sun. But be sure to take along a picnic lunch. There is no place to purchase food on the island.

The trip back to Sausalito begins at 5:30 p.m.

Tickets for the round trip sell for $2.50 for adults, $1.25 for children. But groups are accommodated at a cheaper rate. And more and more parties are taking advantage of those bargain rates.

The Lewises charge $1.20 per adult, 60 cents per child for parties of 10 or more.

Large family groups frequently make a day's outing of the cruise, the Lewises say. So do service clubs, fraternal organizations, church groups and youth groups such as the Girl Scouts who are shown making the trip on these pages.

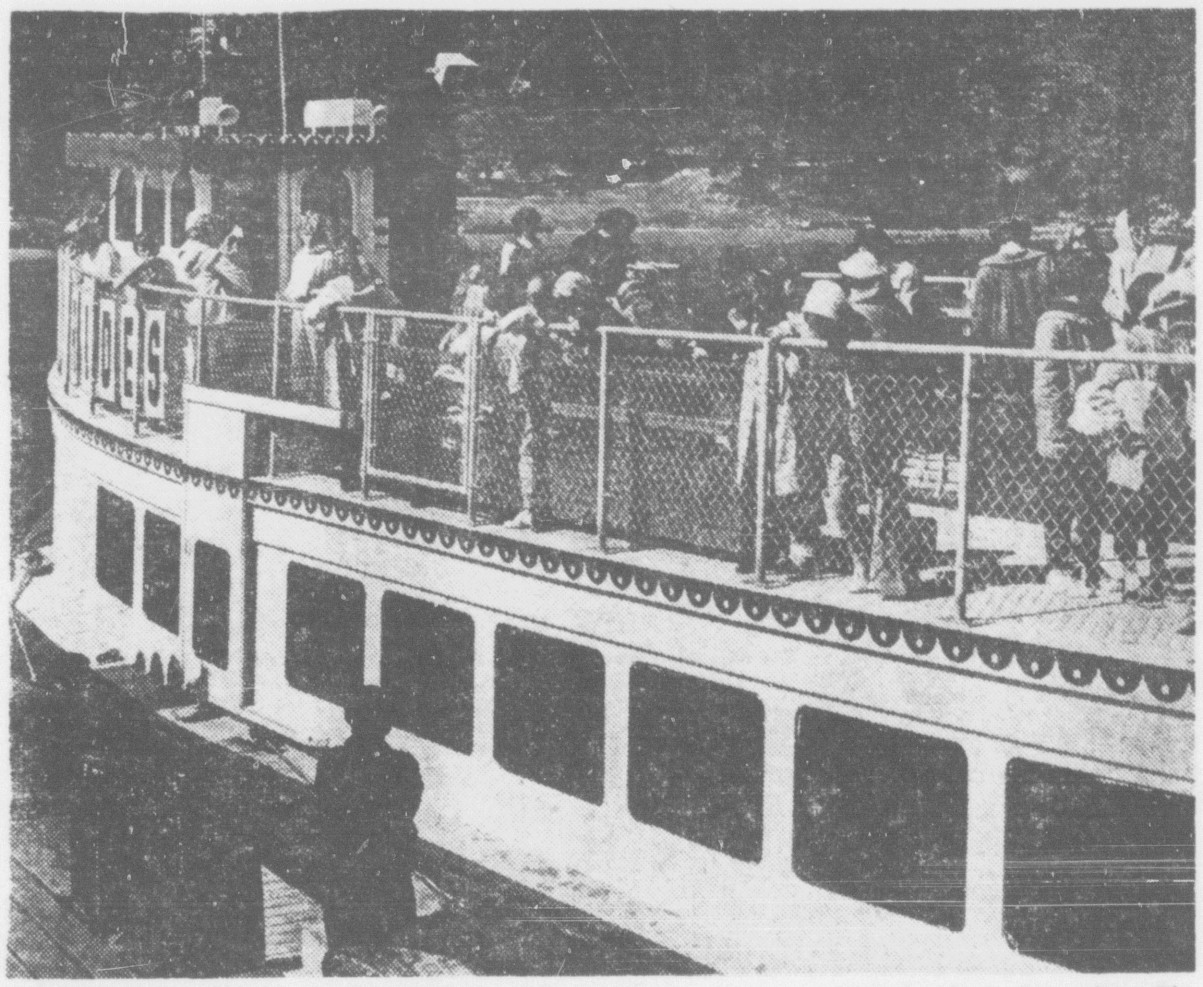

The Barbary Coast and the Blue Horizon are each capable of transporting as many as 250 passengers at a time. Ordinarily, however, the boat will be carrying about 50 persons per trip.

On the waters the passengers relax and forget their cares. Community singing is frequently enjoyed. But the prime preoccupation is to stand at the rails and take in the scenery.

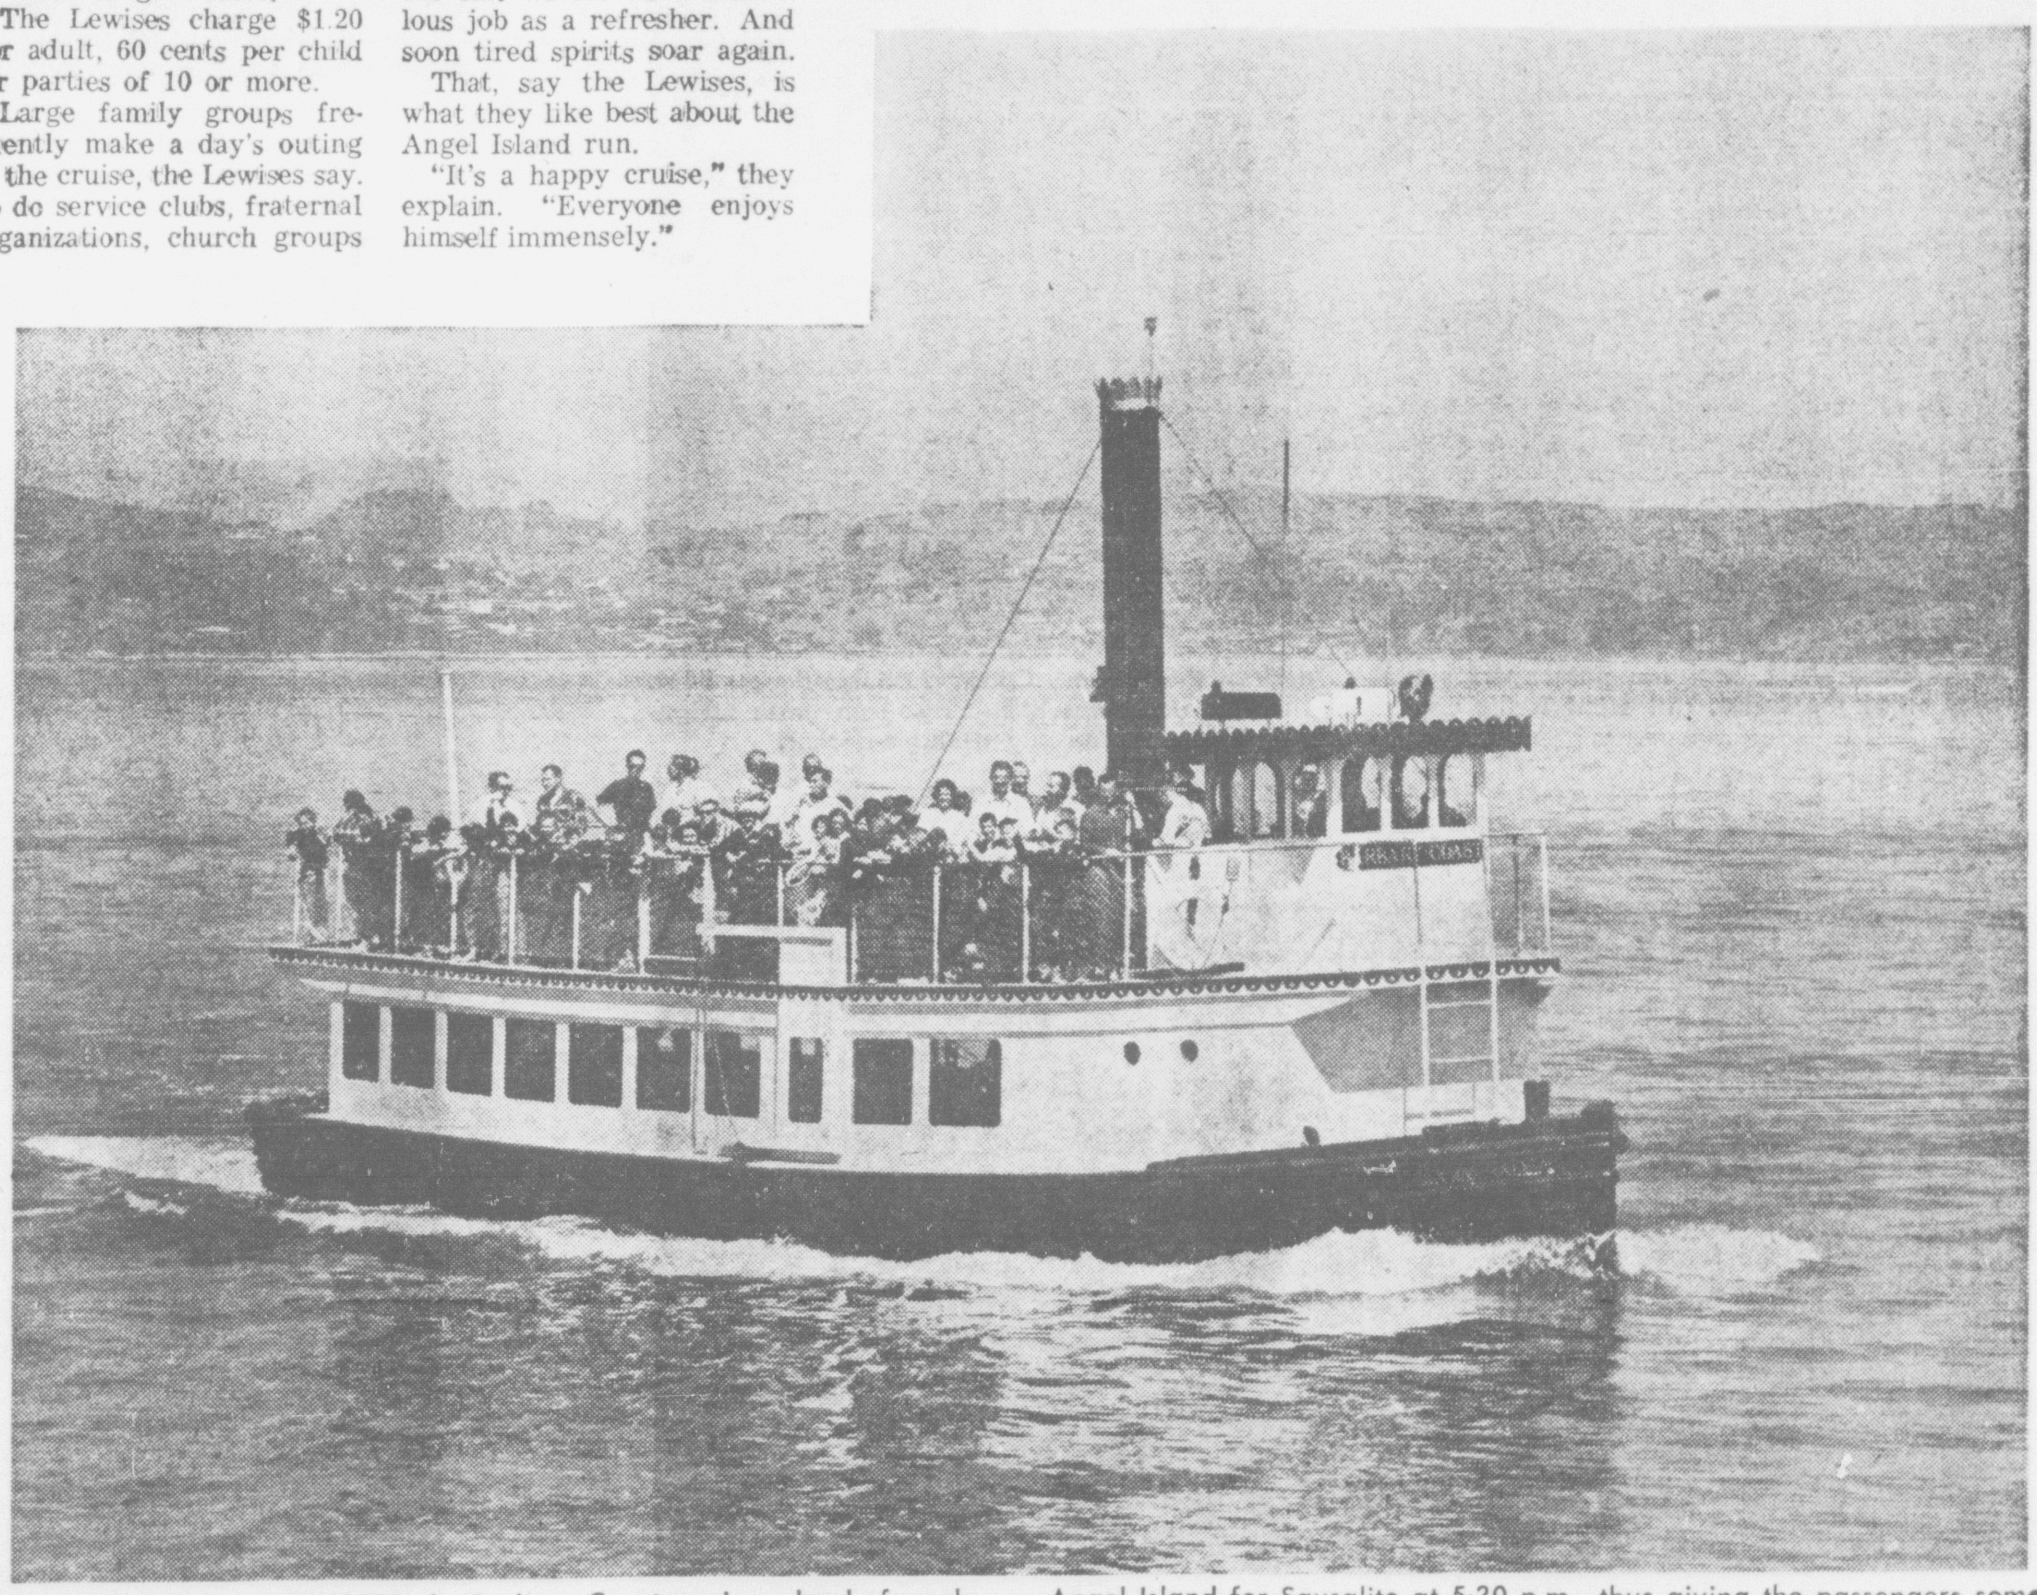

Coming back after a day of climbing around the island, the passengers, understandably, are somewhat more subdued. But fresh breezes off the salt waters do a marvelous job as a refresher. And soon tired spirits soar again.

"It's a happy cruise," they explain. "Everyone enjoys himself immensely."

ALL GOOD THINGS must come to an end. And so it's time to board the Barbary Coast for the cruise back to Sausalito. The Girl Scouts are a little tired, but they've had a wonderful day.

CUTTING THROUGH THE WATER, the Barbary Coast carries a load of weekend excursionists back to home port at Sausalito. The fun of the trip back soon revives tired passengers. The Cruise With Lewis boats depart from Angel Island for Sausalito at 5:30 p.m., thus giving the passengers something like seven and a half hours on the island. Special rates are available to parties of 10 or more persons.

Boaters, Know Your First Aid

Knowledge of first aid is important to pleasure boaters not because boating is dangerous—statistics prove just the opposite is true. But unlike the accident that happens ashore, assistance often is not immediately available at sea.

For this reason the skipper should learn to be a "do-it-yourselfer," and include such items as a first-aid manual and first-aid kit among the routine cargo before each voyage.

What appears to be harmless falls, cuts and bruises could develop into serious infection, and should not be overlooked, safety specialists warn. But they add this caution: D o n ' t overtreat. Thus the need for the first-aid manual.

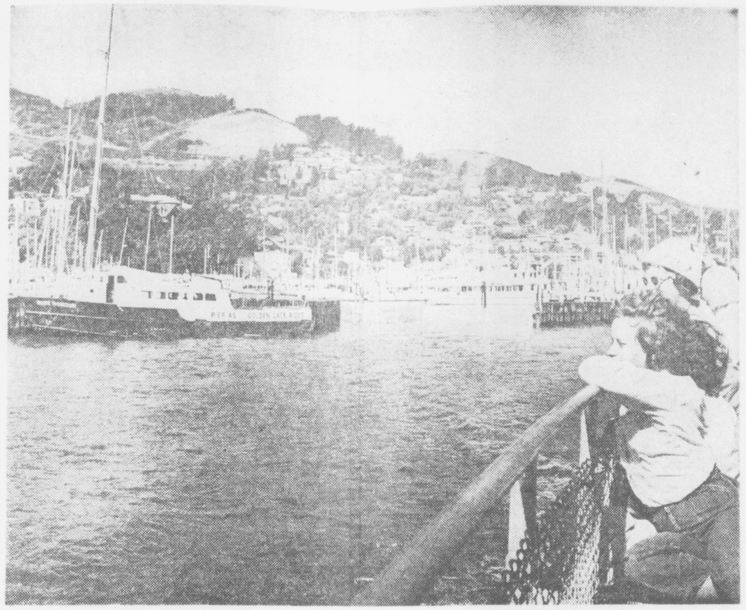

A safety kit comprised of bandages, p i n s, scissors, thermometer, iodine, aspirin, tweezers, cotton, Dramamine (to combat seasickness), rubbing alcohol, aromatic spirits of ammonia and a solution to assuage sunburned skin can be assembled in a few minutes.

Boat Trip To Angel Island

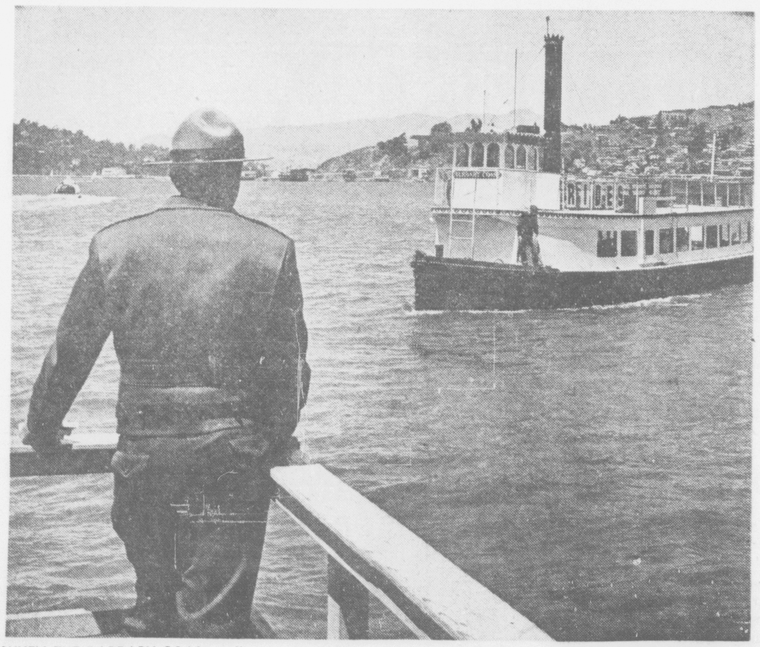

WE'RE UNDER WAY, and the passengers settle down to enjoy the cruise. This scene is the upper deck of the Barbary Coast, a double-decker boat. The Blue Horizon, which is also sometimes assigned to the run, is only a single-decker.

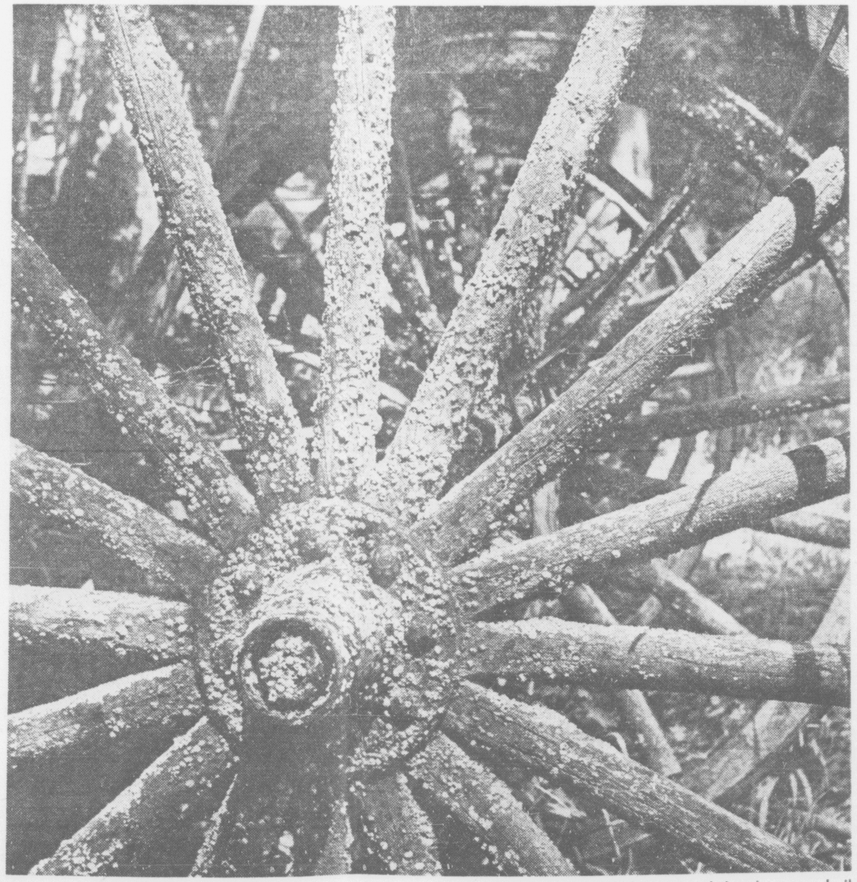

FROM THE RAILING of the Barbary Coast the Girl Scouts watch as their boat pulls away from its pier. Other boats along the waterfront and the Sausalito hillside in the background capture their rapt attention.

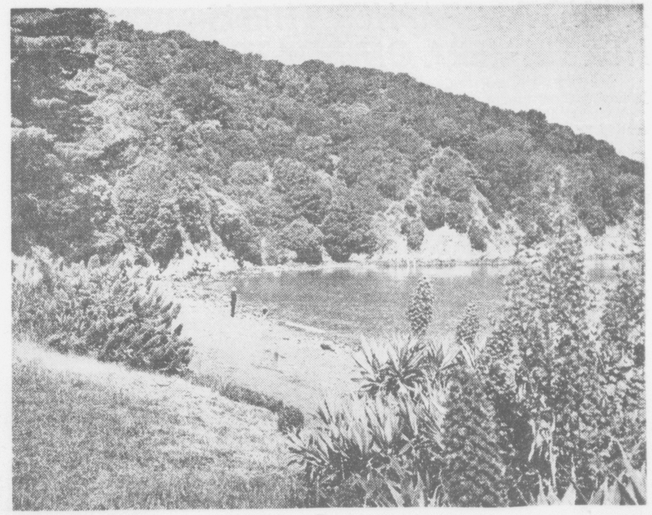

IT'E A LITTLE BREEZY, so scarves come out to cover the heads of the women and girls. And from the upper deck of the Barbary Coast they enjoy the sunshine and fresh air while watching the water and the shoreline in the distance.

WHEN THE BARBARY COAST pulls into the public docking facilities at Hospital Cove, a state park ranger is on hand to greet the visitors and to collect the 10 cents per person fee charged for the use of state park facilities.

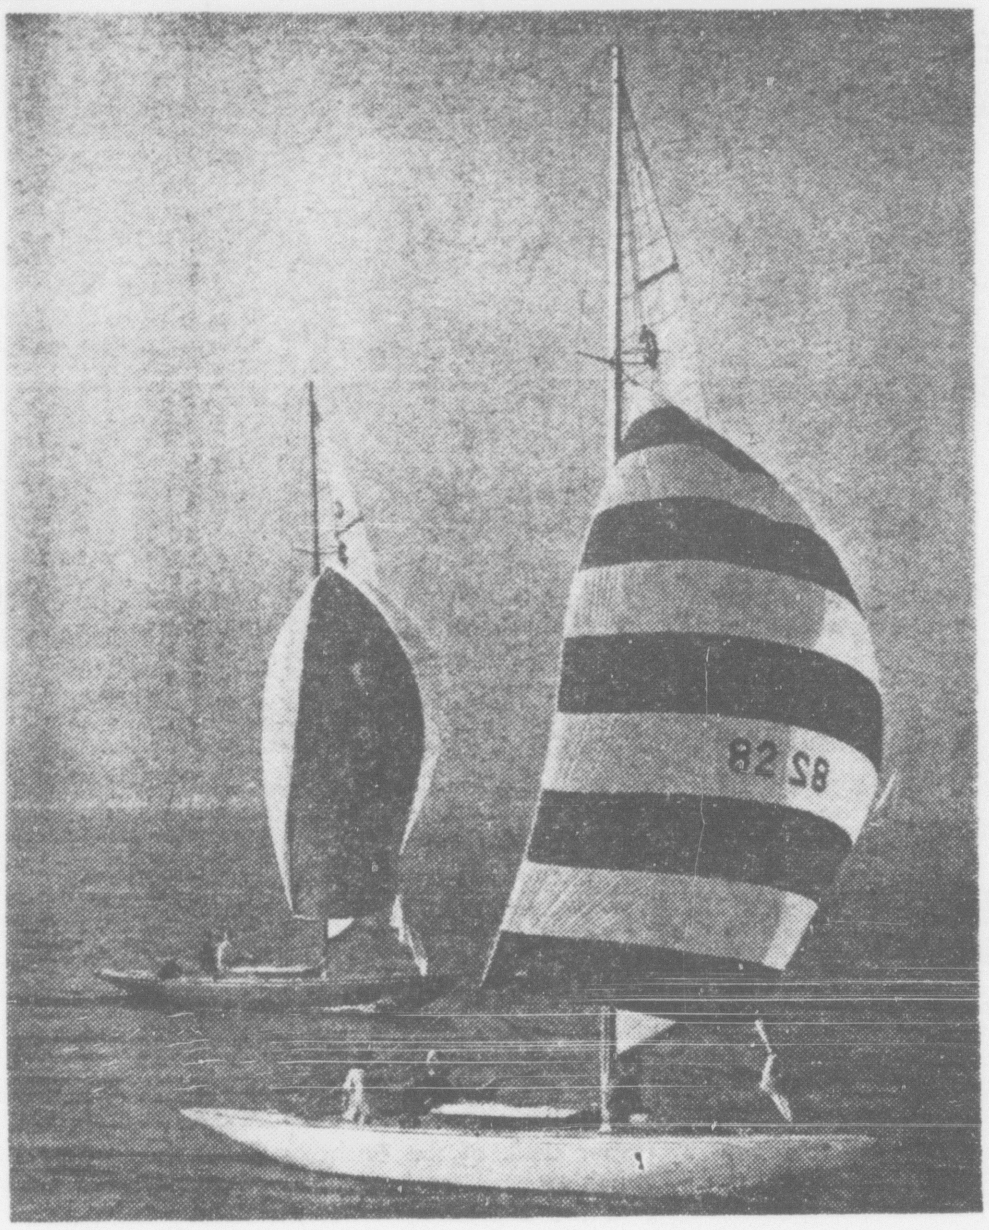

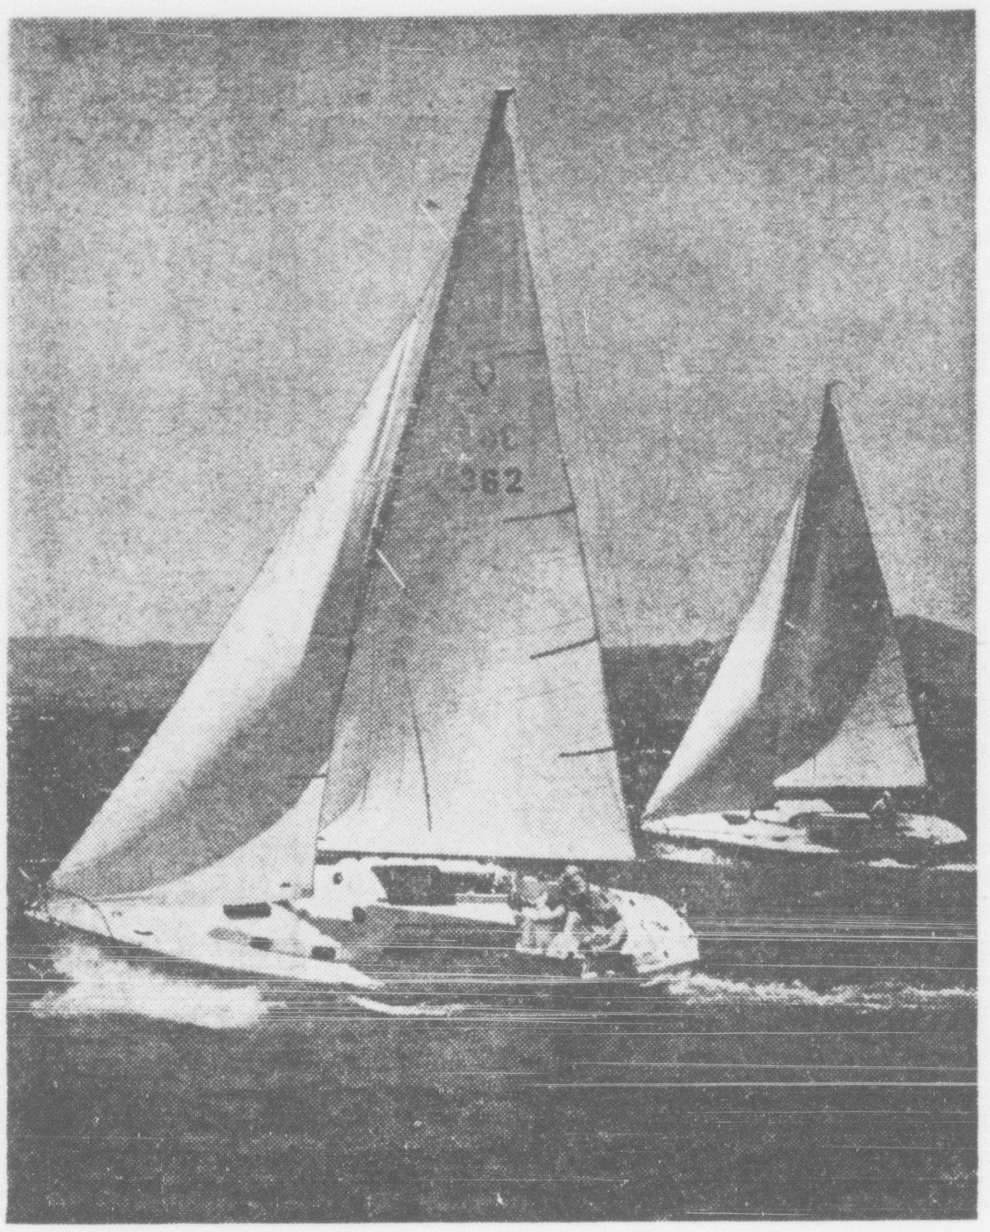

THERE ARE LOTS of interesting things to see during your stay on Angel Island. For instance photographer Ken Molino came upon these weathered old wheels—probably off army caissons—behind the state park headquarters building. Many island visitors take along their own cameras to record just such scenes.

ONE OF THE attractions of Angel Island is diversity of scenery. There's the beach, top photo, with the mountains behind. And there are also pleasant meadows such as the one fronting on the cove that is shown immediately above.

A PHOTOGRAPHER TURNS HER CAMERA ON BOATS

If pretty girls, children and animals are the favorite subjects of photographers, boats aren't far behind.

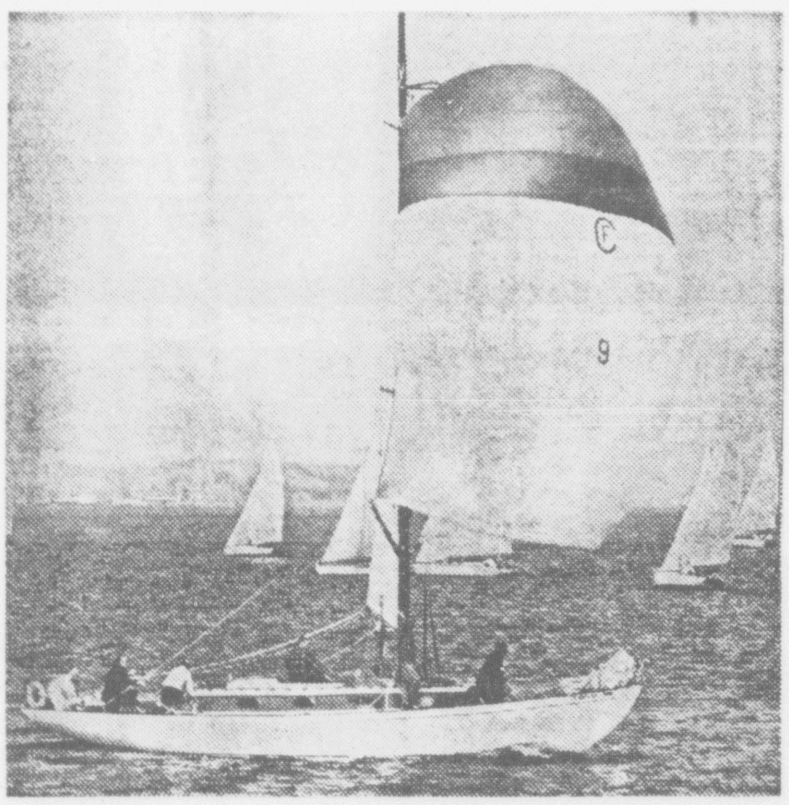

A prow plowing through the water, unfurled sails, a fisherman at peace with the world.

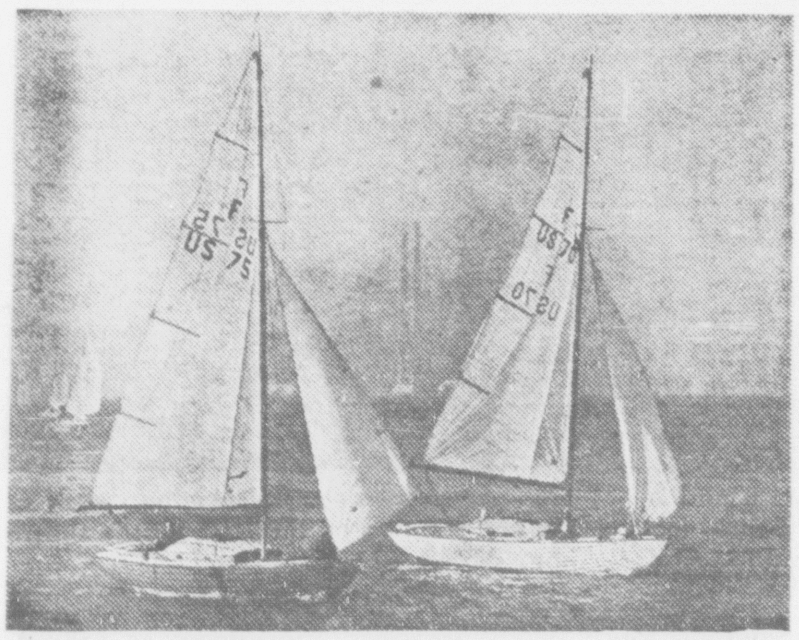

These are the kind of scenes that challenge the creative instincts of the photographer.

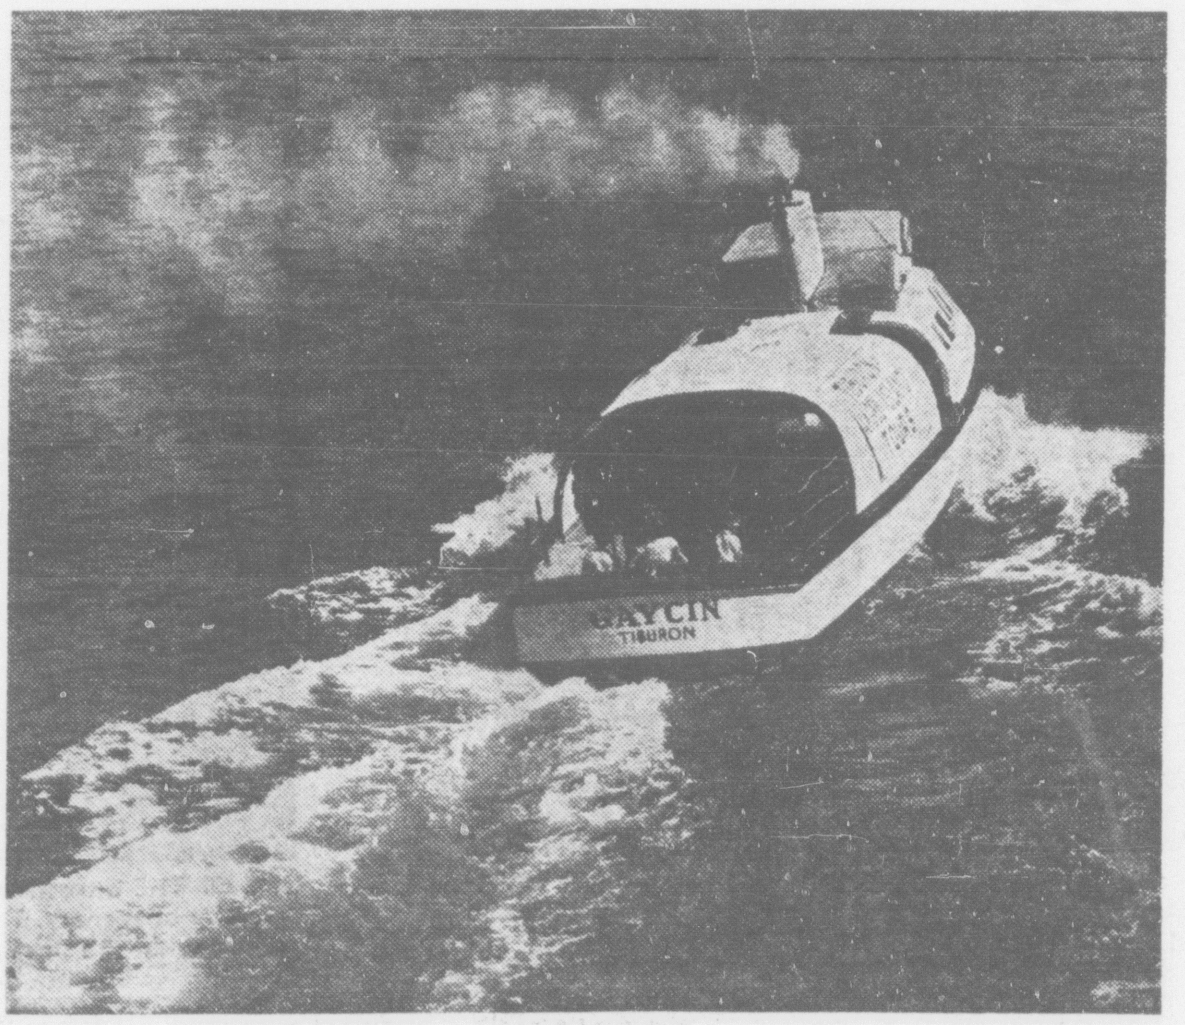

Anna-Jean Cole of St. Bernard Road, Tiburon, professional photographer, is one of those camera artists who has taken a special interest in marine photography. And in Marin she encounters no shortage of subjects.

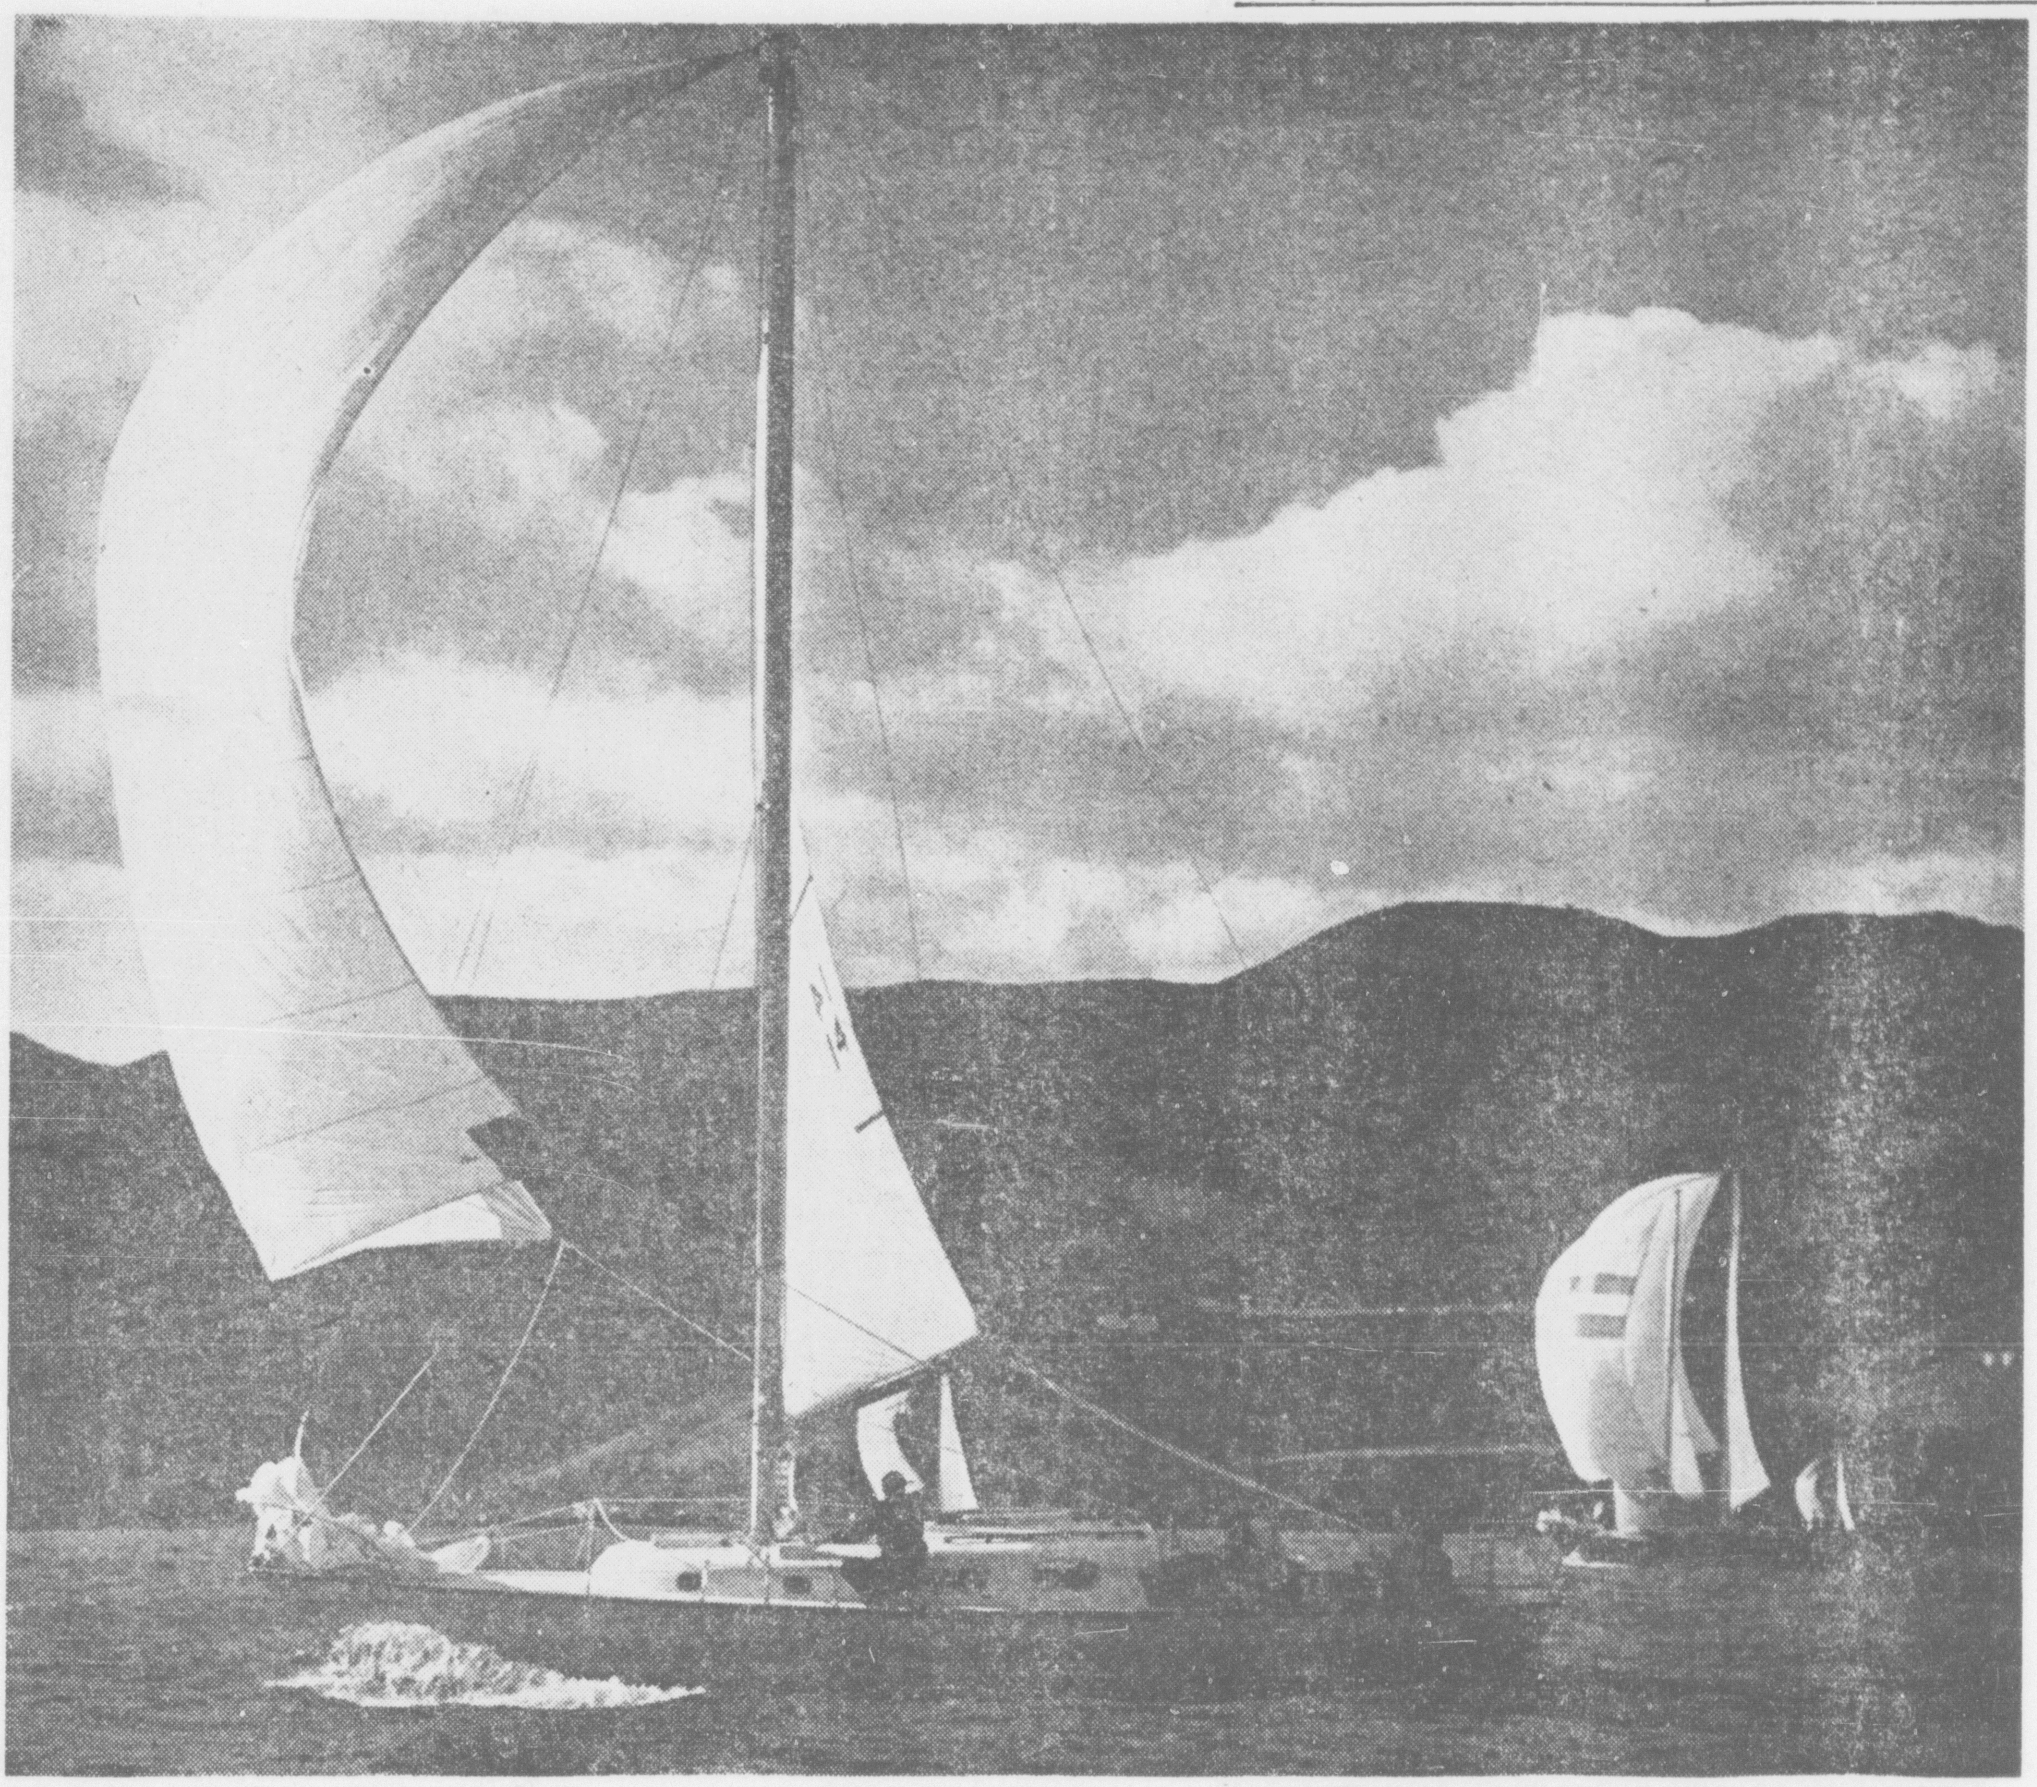

Some of her photographs of boats appear on this and pages M-23 and M-24.

You can see more of them at the Belvedere-Tiburon Branch of the Crocker-Anglo Bank on the Belvedere Boardwalk where they will be on display through the month of July.

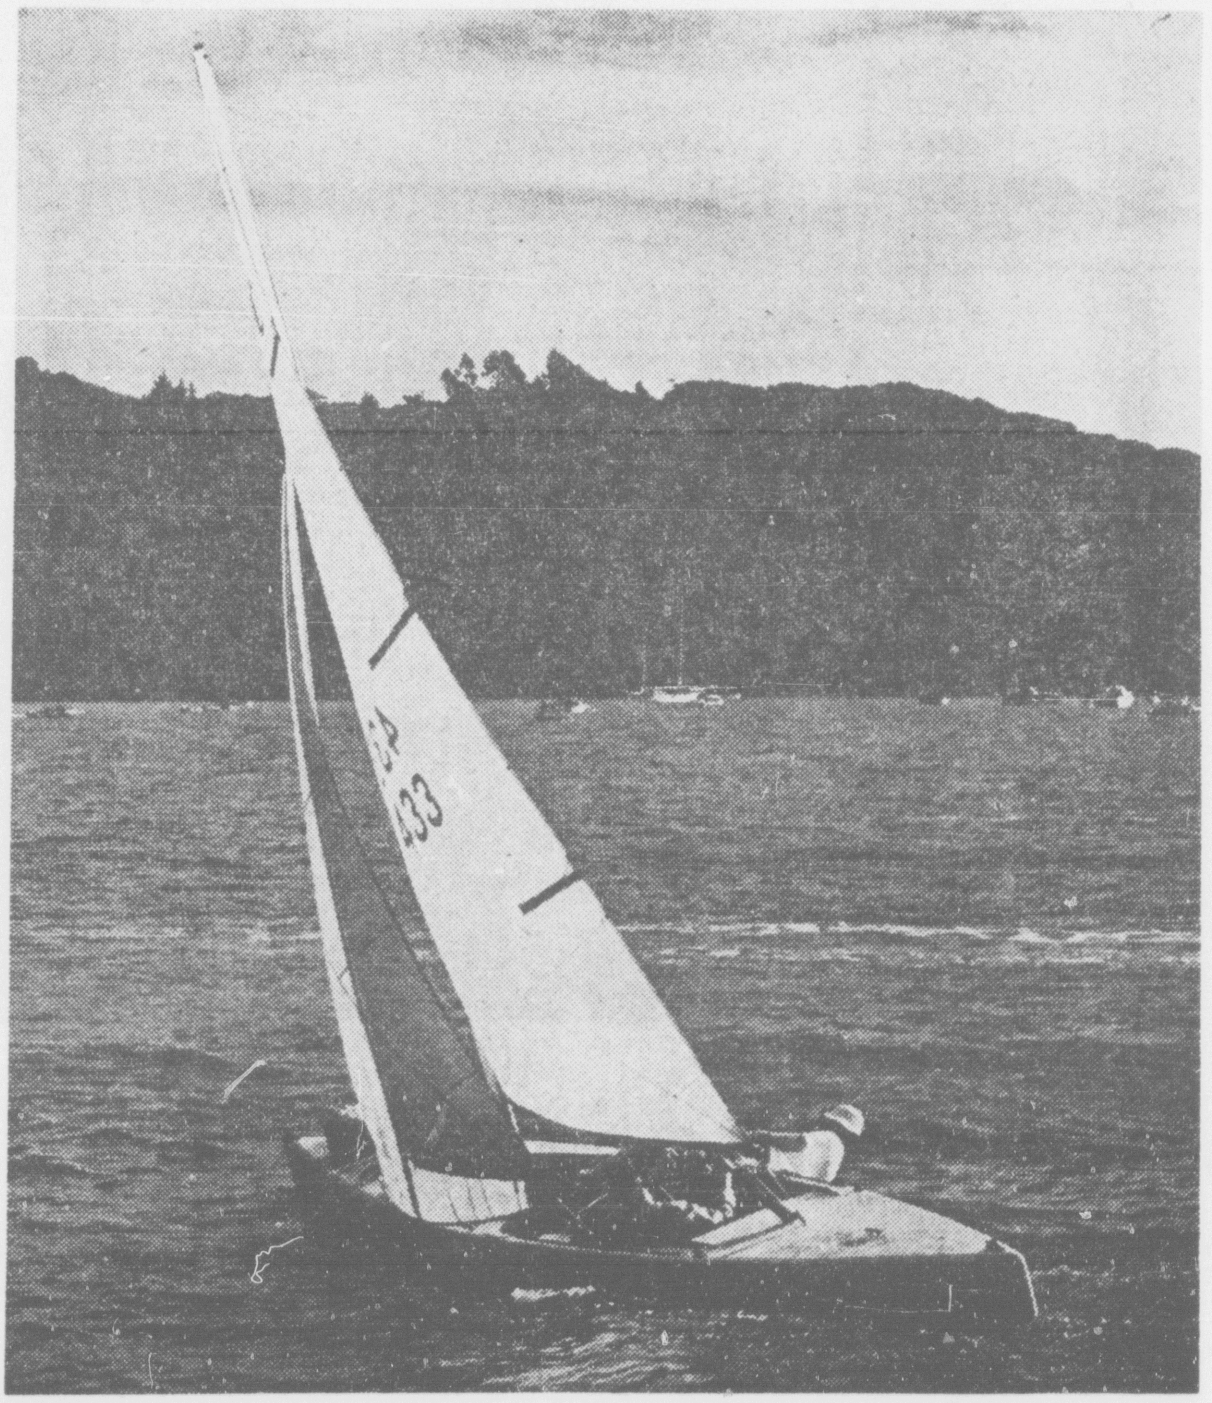

Boats, Boats And More Boats

BOATING PROVIDES CAMERA OPPORTUNITY

Few recreational activities offer a greater variety of opportunities for camera fans than boating. The fascinating panorama of cloud and sky, water and wave, sleek boating rigs and a variety of activities all present innumerable scenes to be captured on film.

Photography on the water poses problems that do not confront the camera fan ashore. Film and camera must be protected from water and spray and hot sunlight. Exposures must be altered to compensate for the greater reflection of light from the water.

Protection of camera equipment must come first when photographing on the water. It is best to use a camera that is easy to handle and load so it need not be opened unduly when on the water. Spray will cause camera parts to corrode and if the spray is salt water, it can damage the lens. A leather carrying case provides some measure of protection, but it is also a good idea to wrap the entire camera in a plastic bag to keep it completely dry.

When taking pictures, use the leather carrying strap to keep your camera from falling in the water in case it should be dislodged from your hands. Do not shoot into a stiff wind, as spray may get on the camera and even a drop of moisture on the lens can blur an otherwise good picture. You even get a bonus from a filter because it will protect the lens from water.

Camera and film should be kept in a cool, dry and shady place when not in use. Hot sun rays beating on the camera can cause the film to fog.

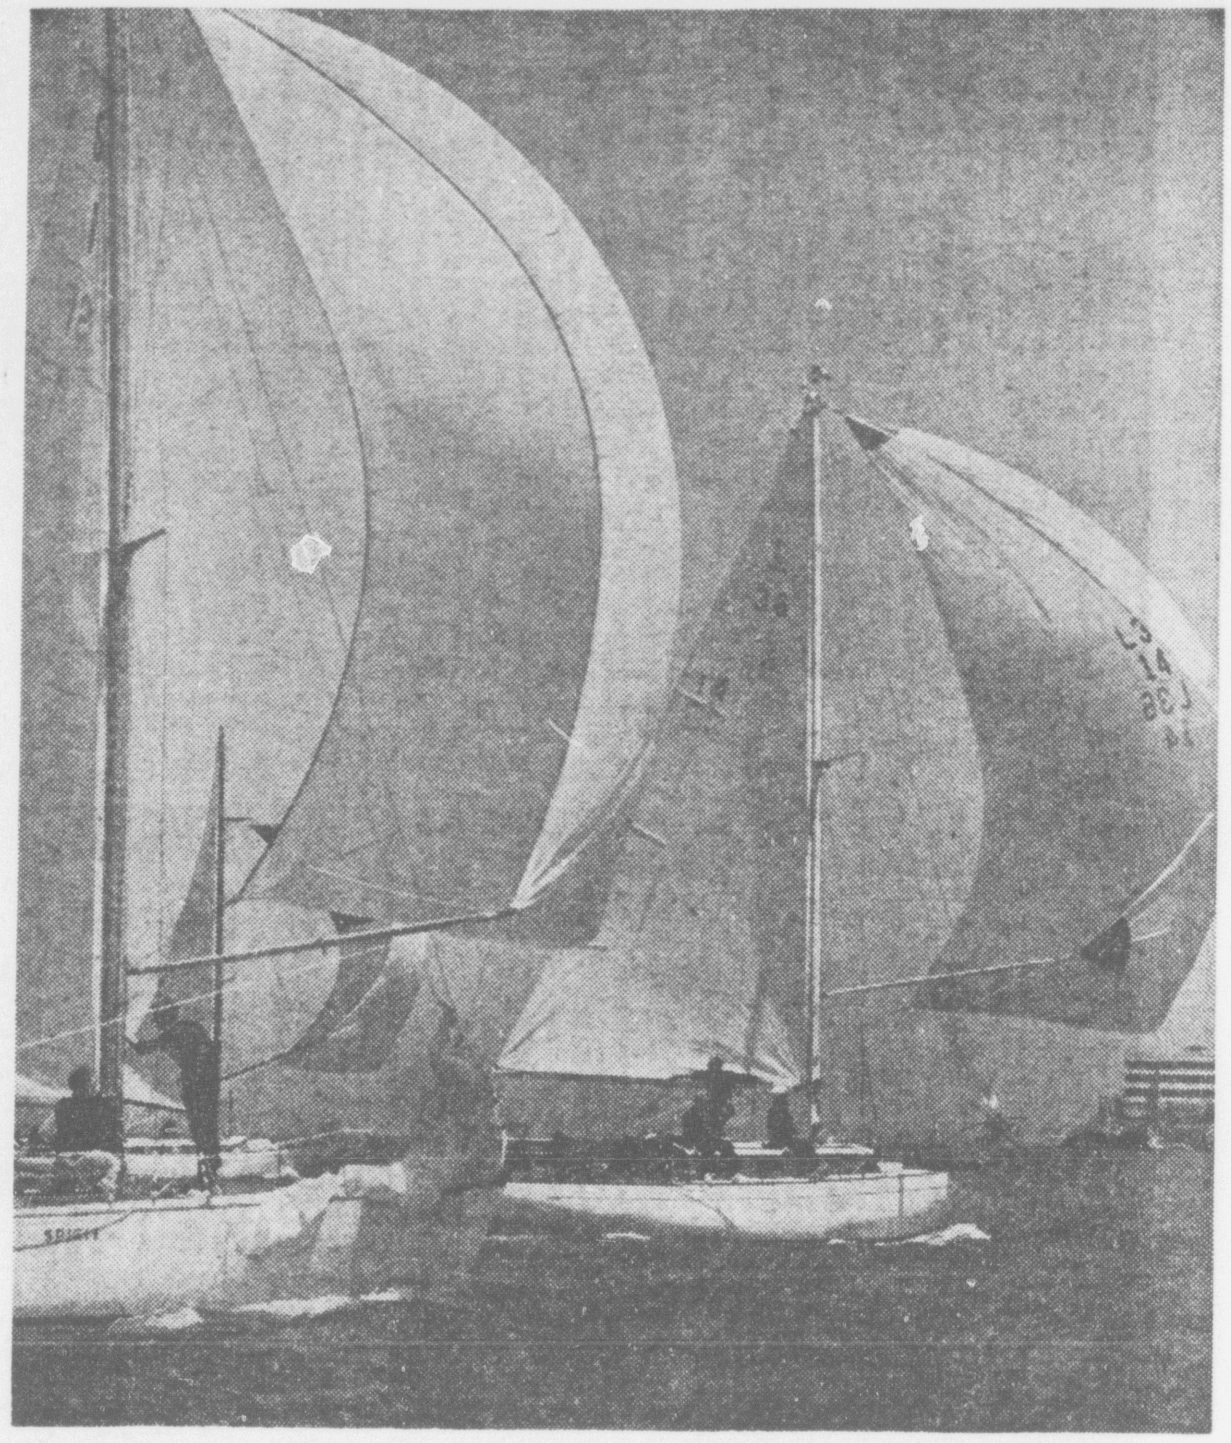

It is well to remember there is usually too much light rather than too little. Over-exposure is one of the most common difficulties in boating photography for the water reflects and intensifies the sunlight. If you don't use a light meter, you can compensate for the unusual brightness by closing the lens on stop more than you would under similar conditions on land.

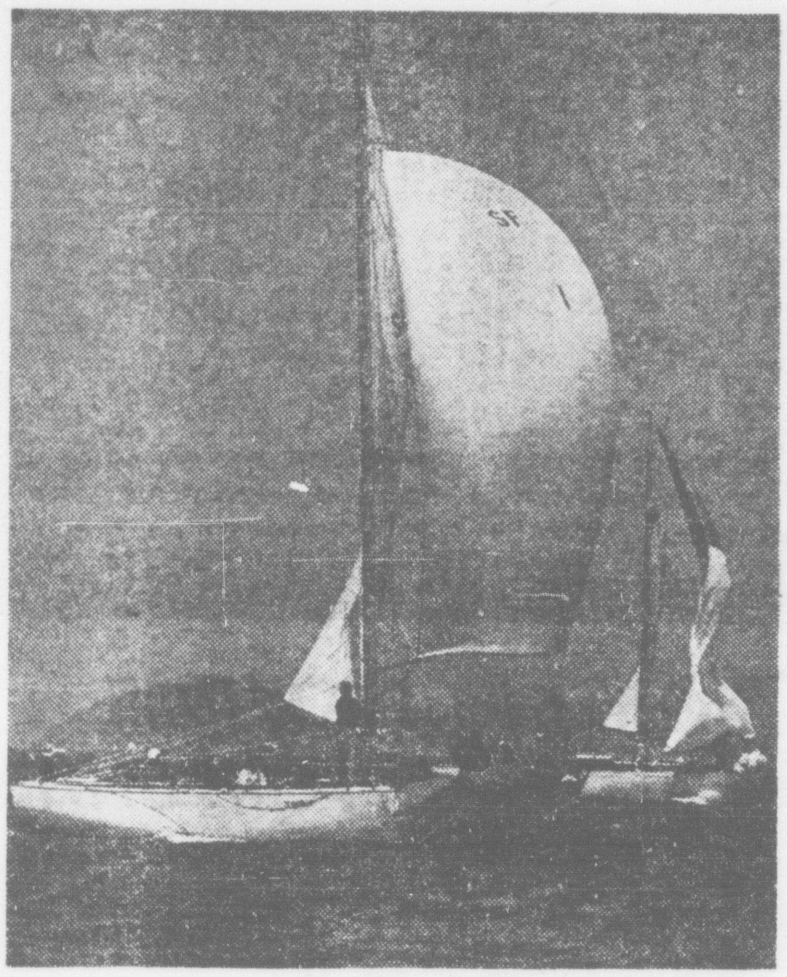

On the water, the absence of light-absorbing surfaces leaves more ultra-violet in the light. To compensate for this it is best to use a cloud/-filter (k-2) when taking black and white photos and a polarizing filter for color. It will give more contrast between cloud and sky, sky and water and boats on the water. A filter used for color shots will help tone down the excess of blue that is common to color pictures taken on the water.

There is more to getting good boating pictures than exposure and filter, however. For one thing, you'll likely be shooting pictures of moving boats or from a moving boat. If you snap your photos from a moving boat stand free of the seats or sides of the boat with your feet spread and knees slightly flexed so you can "give" with the roll or motion of the boat.

Generally when taking pictures from a fast-moving boat you need a fairly fast lens, and shutter speed of 1/250th of a second is usually recommended for this kind of work.

A YOUNG PUPIL of water ski instructor Tom Dorwin is told at left that a life jacket or ski belt is a very essential part of his equipment. And putting on the belt is the first step when learning to ski. Then, center photo, the beginner slips into his skis. To make this easier, feet and ski bindings are first wet. Next, at right, comes the dry run. Sit down on the skis and have some one take hold of the tow line and pull you. Do this, says Dorwin, five or six times.

You, Too, Can Learn To Water Ski

An Expert Offers Some Tips On Popular Sport

Water skiing is not new.

In fact, it dates back to the flapper days of the mid-20s when Fred Waller, the man who years later invented "Cinerama," was granted a patent on his water ski-aqua plane combination. It consisted of two separate skis attached directly to a tow line. The skier stood on the slats in a crouched position and balanced himself by holding two handles, each one attached to a different ski.

Needless to say, it was a far cry from water skiing as we know it today, but it did work.

ALTHOUGH for many years water skiing was considered as a sport for the wealthy playboy, it really started to catch on during the last decade. Its increase in popularity was due mainly to the introduction of outboard motors that were more powerful and dependable. Today, water skiing is the fastest growing water sport in the country as each year additional thousands of people seeking fun and adventure decide to give it a try.

If you're one of these thousands, Tom Dorwin, a former national champion and now water ski advisor for the Evinrude Boating Foundation, offers a few suggestions to help you get off to a good start.

First of all, choose the proper equipment. Water skis should be selected according to the weight of the skier and the speed and power capabilities of the tow boat. A light skier pulled by a powerful outboard can use rather short and narrow skis. Conversely, a 200-pounder will need skis that are longer and wider.

You'll also need a tow line. Completely rigged tow lines, made of either natural or synthetic fibers, are available in the standard 75-foot length.

All water skiers, whether they are beginners or experts, and regardless of how well they can swim, should wear either a life jacket or a good ski belt.

AFTER EXPLAINING the equipment, here are the steps Dorwin has used in teaching hundreds of beginners how to water ski:

First, slip into the skis. You'll find this easier if your feet and the ski bindings are wet. Adjust the bindings so they feel comfortable and you will be ready for the first part of yor lesson, which will be on land rather than in the water.

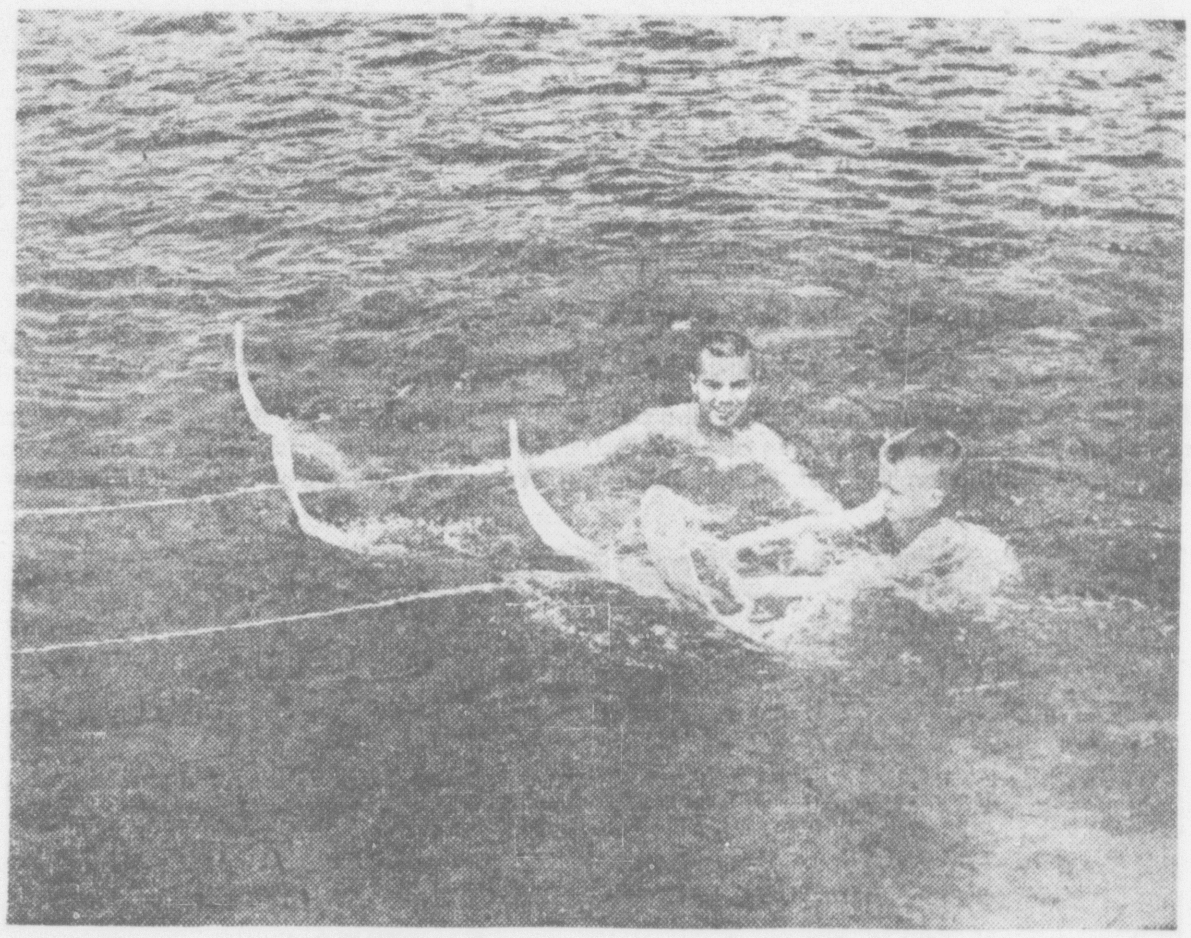

Sit down on the skis with the tow bar in your hand and the skis about six inches apart. Your arms should be around your knees and extended out straight. Now have a friend take hold of the tow line and pull you up. This will give you much the same feeling you'll get as the tow boat pulls you in the water. Repeat this procedure five or six times and then you'll be ready to try the real thing.

Leave the skis on and wade out into water at least hip deep. Crouch down and let the tips of the skis come up and out of the water while the other ends rest on the bottom. At this point, the tow boat driver should take up any slack in the line and be ready to "hit the gas" at your command. Hold the tow bar tightly, making sure the line is between your two skis and not tangled around your skis or legs. As soon as you feel you have your balance, yell, "Hit it."

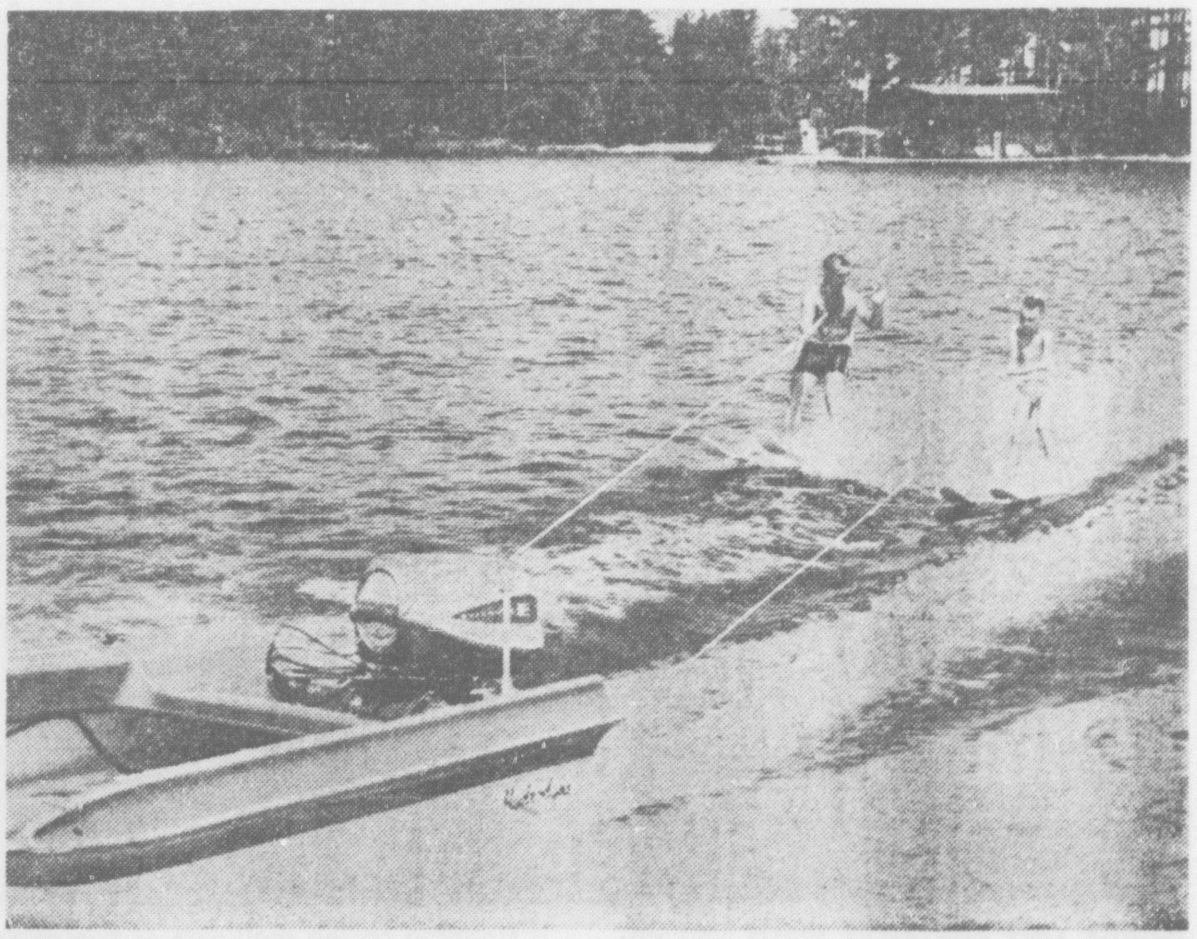

As the boat starts to pull you up, remember your dry land practice and don't try to stand up too fast. Once you're up, keep your knees flexed slightly, your arms out straight and lean back against the pull of the tow boat. Take it easy until you get the feel of it. And this won't take long.

DON'T OVERDO it the first time out. Waterskiing puts a

THE STUDENT SKIER is ready now to move into the water. Get in at least hip deep, advises Dorwin, sit down and let the tips of the skis come up and out of the water. After the driver has taken up the slack in the line, yell, "hit it," when you are ready to go.

WHEN SKIING, keep your knees flexed slightly and your arms out straight, the pupil is told. Lean back against the pull of the tow rope and enjoy the ride.

JUST TO PROVE WHAT a satisfactory sport for the entire family water skiing can be, 7-year-old Van Stepleton and his dad, Lyle, perform a trick for you. The chair is sitting on the disk that is skimming across the surface of Lake Berryessa in Napa County, but is not attached. Van is the youngest member of the Golden Gate Water Ski Club's Marin Division—and also one of its most enthusiastic members.

YOUNG VAN STEPLETON shows you another of his water skiing tricks. Here he is top man on a three-member pyramid. He is standing on the shoulders of two of the Marin Division's women skiers — Fran Dahl and Helen Devlin.

Marin Families Enjoy Sport Of Water Skiing

Dad, Mom And Kids All Get Kick Out Of Skimming Over The Waves

"It's a sport the entire family can enjoy."

That, according to members of the Marin Division of the Golden Gate Water Ski Club, is why their favorite sport is enjoying a surge in popularity.

Dad, mom, big brother, little brother and their sisters all eagerly await the arrival of the weekend so that they can go skimming across the waters.

The Marin division's membership roster lists 38 families. Ages of the skiers range from 7-year-old Van Stepleton of Novato to adults in their 40s.

THE DIVISION originated four years ago when four Marin families, until then active in the Golden Gate Water Ski Club, decided to form their own affiliate of that organization.

The parent club is the oldest and the largest water skiing organization on the West Coast.

Nor is the sport confined to the summer months, although it is during the warm weather period that activity hits its peak.

The Marin skiers start their long season sometime in February and will continue well into November — sometimes into December.

And even during that brief break, there is always the annual New Year's Day event held in Richmond on the estuary when Marinites join other Bay Area skiers to brave 36 degree waters.

Indicative of the "family activity" aspect of water skiing is the fact that, with only a couple of exceptions, the wives of all the men in the Marin organization also ski.

"Within three weekends of instruction, a newcomer should be skiing very well," Ben Cessna of San Rafael, Marin division president, asserts.

AND HE ADDS that the organization has room for more members. "We are always glad to help newcomers get started," he says.

The big requirement for the person planning to take up water skiing is, of course,

Marin Water Skiers Are Active Group

the boat. Most popular watercraft with members of the Marin division is the Chris-Craft inboard. Eleven are owned by families belonging to the group.

But there are a number of outboard owners in the division as well.

If the prospective member already owns his boat, then the costs of water skiing are insignificant. The club's initiation fee is $25, the dues $3 a month. A satisfactory set of water skis can be purchased for from $20 to $30. Life belts, ski tow ropes are also needed.

Marin is not blessed with an abundance of water skiing facilities within its own boundaries. There is some skiing on salt water off Tiburon's shore. And the opening of the new boat ramp at Black Point has proven a boon for water skiers who now can skim up and down the Petaluma River there "when the boats aren't too thick and the tide is right."

But the favorite skiing "grounds" of the Marinites is Lake Berryessa in Napa County. There the club owns waterfront property with each family being assigned a given area. On weekends tents and trailers provide the needed shelter as the ski addicts indulge to their heart's content in their favorite sport.

This natural combination of water skiing with camping is another appealing aspect of the sport, its devotees say.

RIGHT NOW the members of the Marin division are pointing toward two upcoming events to be held on Lake Merritt in Oakland—a big Fourth of July ski show, and the California State Championships to be held July 14 and 15. The Marin division is one of the co-sponsoring clubs for the state meet.

Business meetings of the division are held once a month, on the third Wednesday, in the U.S. Army Reserve Building starting at 8 p.m.

President Cessna suggests that Marinites interested in joining the organization attend one of those meetings, or contact him for details.

He stresses the safety of water skiing under the rigid adherence to safety standards that is required of club members. "We have never had a serious accident involving one of our members," he says.

Safety rules of the Golden Gate Water Ski Club are "evolved from many years of experience with boating and skiing," he adds.

For instance, skiing in shallow water, at night, through swimming areas, or in unknown waters is prohibited.

One requirement: "Wear a suitable life preserver while skiing."

STANDING ON THE SHOULDERS of Richard Meagor and Edward Cain, Madeline Cain begins to pull herself into an erect position as the threesome skims across the waters of Lake Berryessa. Mrs. Cain is the only woman in the Marin Division of the Golden Gate Water Ski Club who has mastered the feat of riding atop such a pyramid.

strain on arm and leg muscles and, if you're not accustomed to it, you may feel the effects the next day.

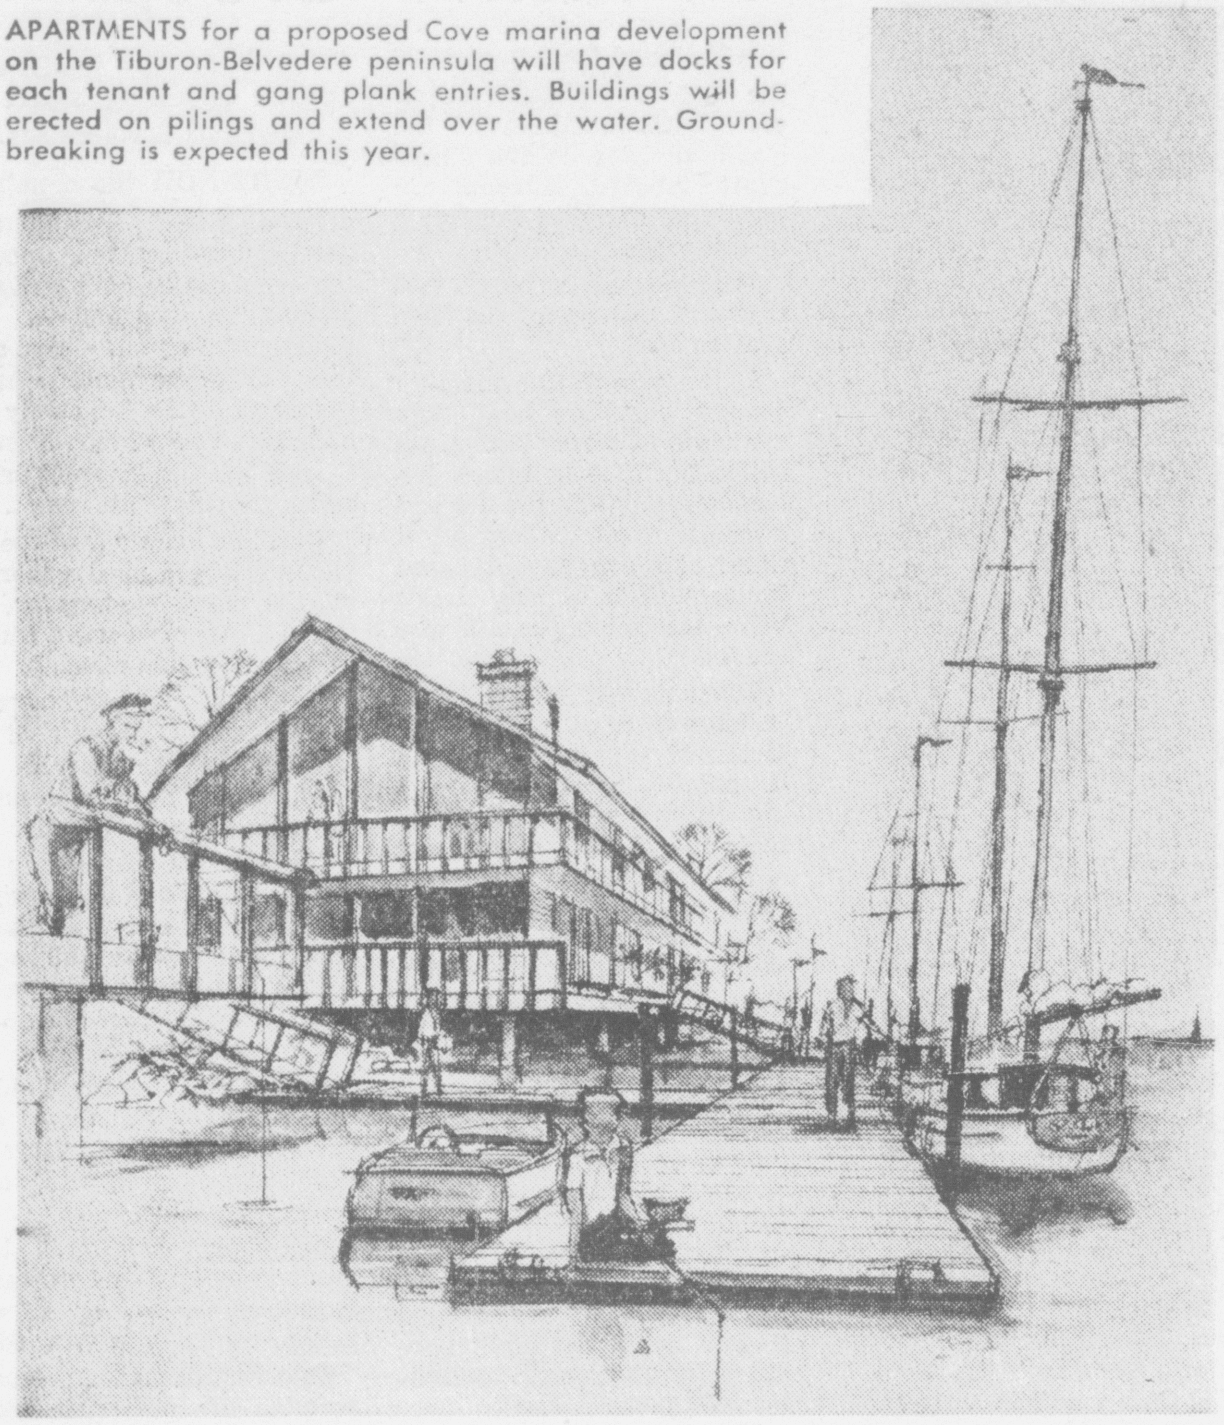

As soon as you think you've had enough, let the driver know with a prearranged signal. He should then make a pass over the drop-off area. When you're in the right spot, simply let go of the tow line and coast to a stop.

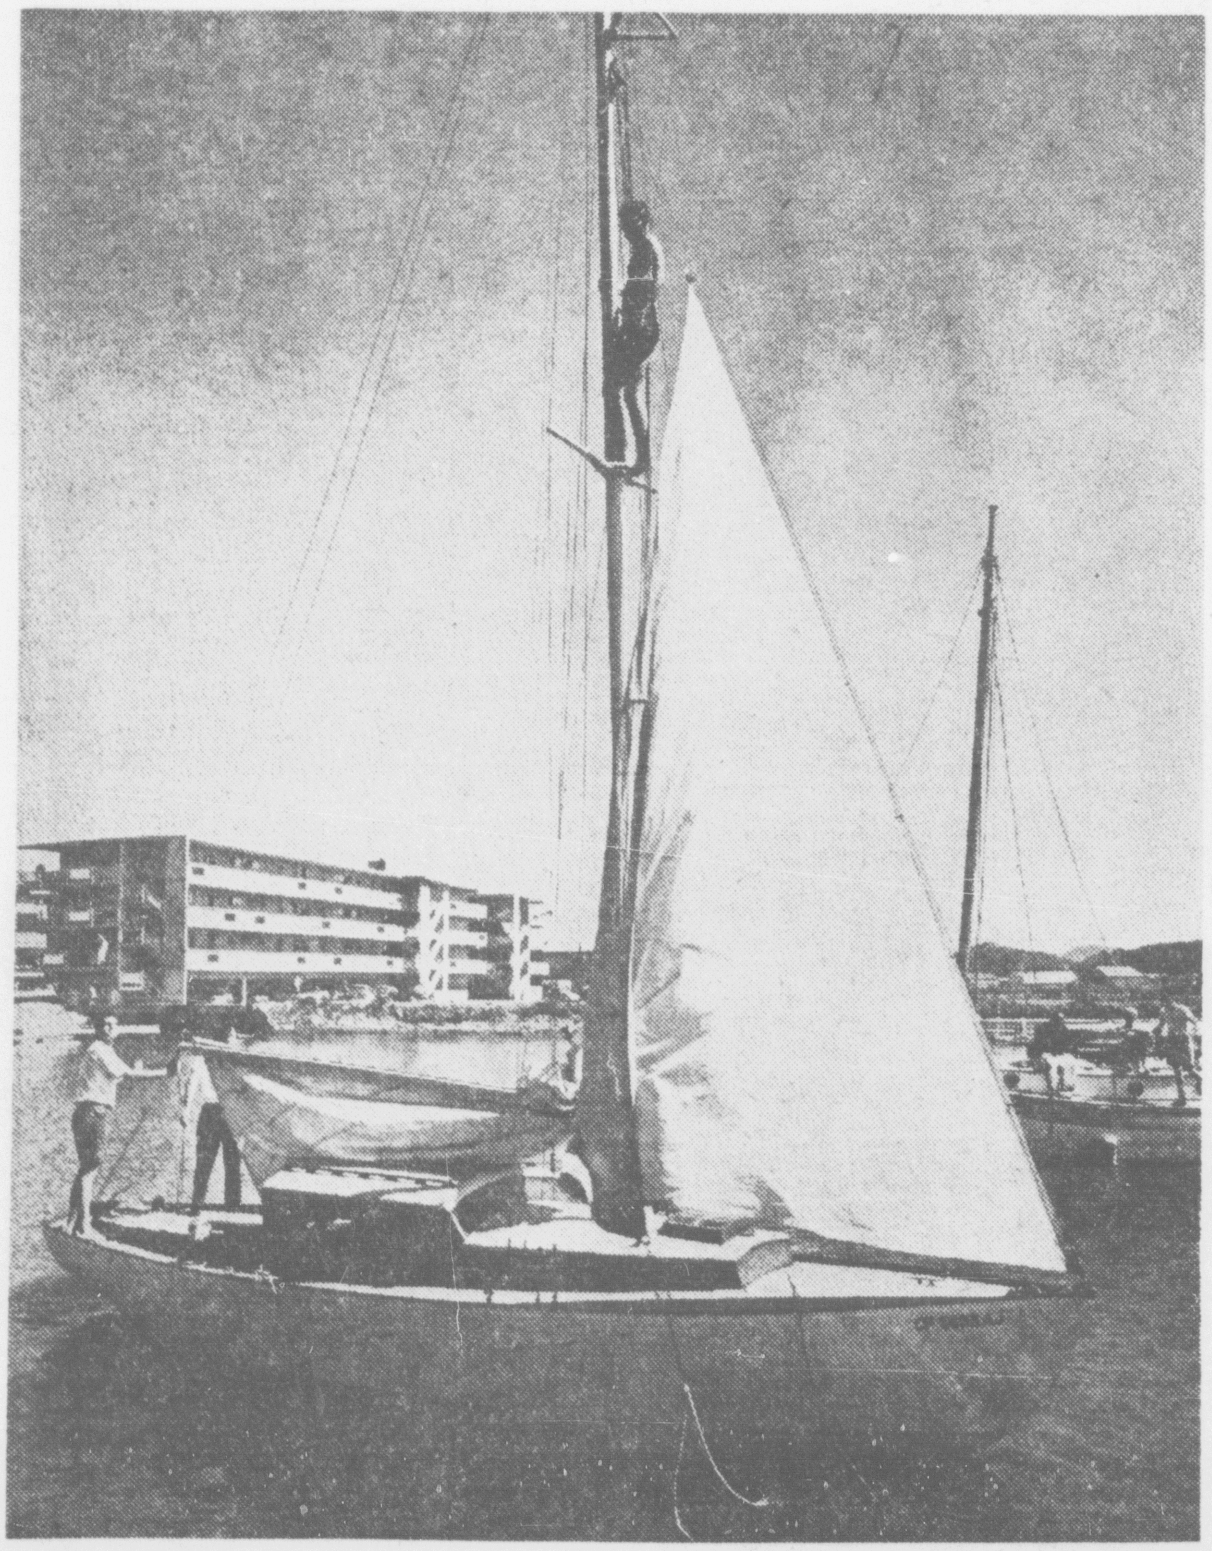

If at any time you know you're going to fall, let go of the tow line and drop into the water as easily as possible. Recover the skis quickly and wait to be picked up by the tow boat. In congested areas, raise one ski so you'll be seen by other boat drivers.

AND NOW MADELINE CAIN has succeeded in pulling herself into the proper standing position for the pyramid. They are moving so fast over the water that the camera blurs. Members of the Marin Division of the Golden Gate Water Ski Club have been preparing for their part in a big Fourth of July show to be staged on Lake Merritt in Oakland. The pyramid is always a popular act in such performances.

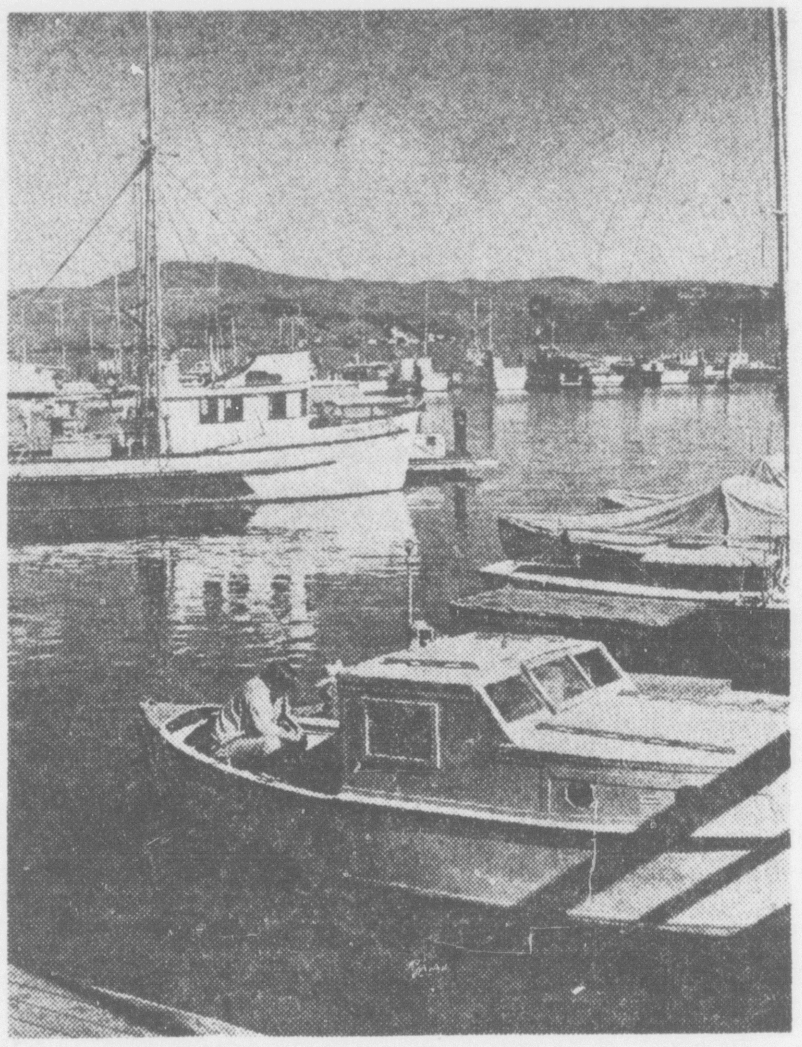

Waterfront Residences Offer Boating At Their Doorsteps

APARTMENTS for a proposed Cove marina development on the Tiburon-Belvedere peninsula will have docks for each tenant and gang plank entries. Buildings will be erected on pilings and extend over the water. Ground-breaking is expected this year.

Condition Of Boat Bottom Can Be Performance Factor

Since high horsepower outboard motors became popular, continuous maximum boat performance is expected by most outboard owners.

Very often, however, these owners fail to resognize one of the more important factors causing decreased performance characteristics — the condition of the boat bottom.

BOATS MOORED in the water for any period of time, whether in salt or fresh water, develop marine growths or scum on the bottom. This condition has a marked effect on boat speed.

Engineers at Evinrude Motors revealed the results of tests performed on a 16-foot fiberglassed plywood boat which was allowed to remain in salt water. At the end of 30 days, the speed with one man aboard had dropped more than eight miles an hour. With a six-man load, the speed dropped more than 10 miles per hour in 20 days, and the boat would no longer plane.

An identical test in fresh water showed a surprising loss of six miles per hour with a two-man load and 10 miles per hour with a six-man load in just 30 days. In each case the hull was thoroughly cleaned at the conclusion of the test and original performance restored.

FROM THESE results it is apparent that a smooth, clean bottom is imperative for maximum boat performance. Whenever a boat is left at a mooring for any period of time, it should be removed from the water and the hull completely cleaned every three weeks. This is true whether in salt or fresh water.

Anti-fouling bottom paint will help the boat hull resist formation of marine growths. Good, anti-fouling paints are available from many sources, and a marine dealer will either have it or know where it can be purchased.

THIS CLOSEUP of the lower unit of a motor and a part of a boat shows the effects of marine growth. Note that even the propeller is covered with foreign material.

The trailer boatman who trails his boat over wet, muddy roads should also check the bottom of his boat before it is launched. A film of road scum will cause the same drop in performance as the marine scum which forms when the boat is left in the water.

How do you clean it?

It's fairly simple. Of course, if a growth of barnacles has taken place, they will probably have to be scraped off. However, most plain scum will come off with the use of wash rags and a good detergent. A regular floor scrubbing brush may be a help if the scum is persistent. The easiest place to wash the boat is near its mooring, where you have a plentiful supply of water available.

So, if you find your rig gradually losing speed over the course of a season, don't spend hours tinkering with what you believe to be a faulty motor until you have checked the condition of the boat bottom. It's probable that a little "elbow-grease" may be just what you need to restore your full performance.

THE IMPORTANT ROLE which boating plays in the life of hundreds of Marinites is reflected in this picture of the San Rafael Canal. Both sail and motor craft glide over the water. And in the background can be seen new apartment buildings lining the canal bank. One of the prime attractions of such apartments is the boating opportunity they provide for tenants. Lucky occupants can moor their boats at their doorsteps and enjoy a cruise on the canal at will. (Independent-Journal photo)

Mid-Season Good Time For Checkup

Midway through the boating season it normally becomes necessary for a systematic checkup of your boating rig in order to insure maximum performance.

This includes more than a cursory examination of the boat's hull.

Engineers suggest the spark plugs be removed and inspected, cleaned if necessary and replaced if they appear defective. This bit of advice is good whether or not you do much running.

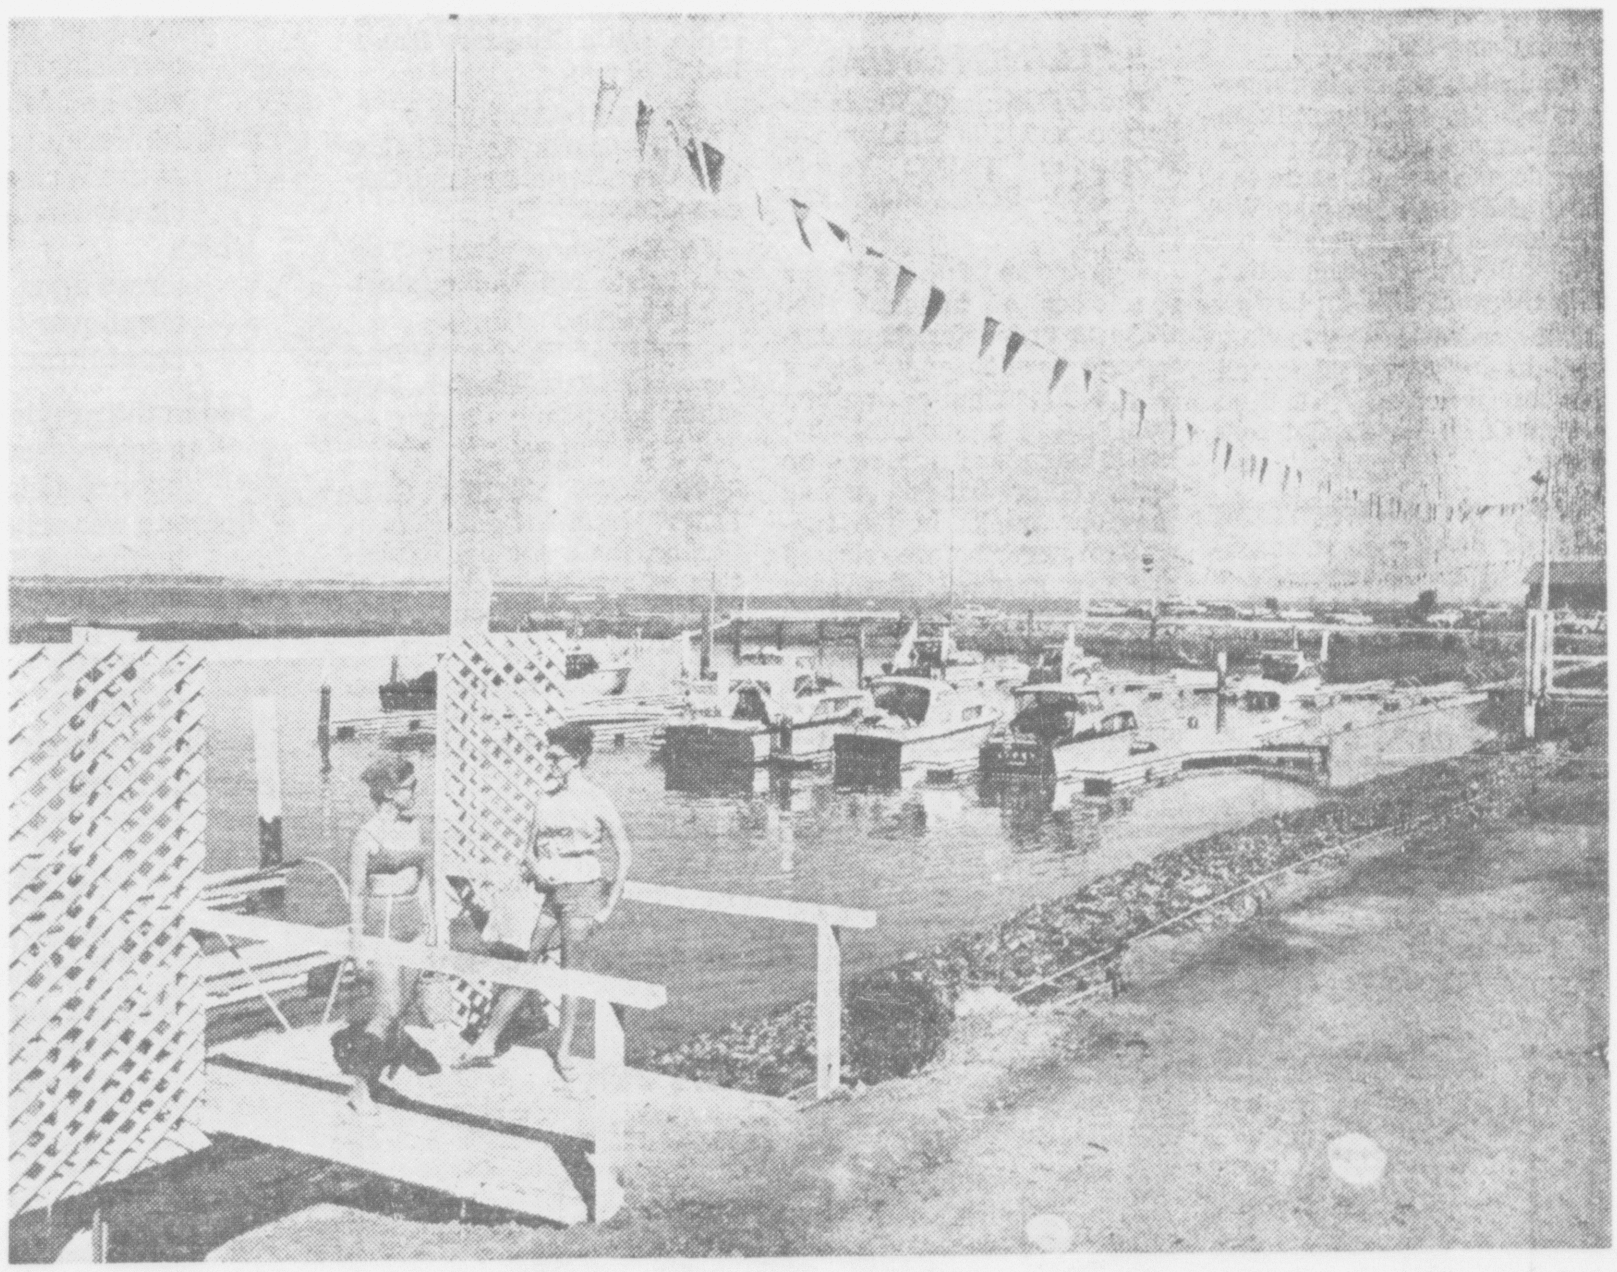

THE BATTERY may need a charge if you operate a motor without a generator. It's embarrassing, and sometimes dangerous, to suddenly discover a dead battery. Battery terminals should be cleaned and the electrical connections should be checked for frayed or worn insulation.

You should inspect the lubricant in the lower gear case to see that it is free of water or air bubbles, and change if necessary. Check the propeller to see that it is not nicked or bent, and have it re-pitched if it appears to need it.

If you have noticed a drop-off in rpm of the engine, or if any persistent trouble develops, it's best to take it to your marine dealer for an inspection.

The mooring hardware should be inspected for loose fasteners and possible corrosion. Look over the steering cables and pulleys to see that they are firmly seated. Replace any frayed cable.

YOU SHOULD also check the accessories.

NEW BERTHING FACILITIES for boats are going in rapidly at McNear's Beach resort out of San Rafael, and when completed will total 203 berths in a secluded harbor complete with electrical and gassing facilities. The new facilities are in keeping with the steady expansion of recreational facilities at the popular resort. (Photo by Jim Kean)

Be sure your anchor line is firm. You may have lost some of your mooring lines, or they may become frayed and lose strength. Give life-jackets and buoyant cushions a complete check to see that they have not become damaged or mildewed. Replenish the supplies in your first aid kit. See that the fire extinguisher is properly charged and easily available. Inspect your tool kit to see that you have lost no tools, and get some new batteries for the flashlight.

Better to be safe than sorry!

Two Movie Sound Tracks Offer Good Jazz Music

By JOHN SUNIER
Editor, Bay FM & Cultural Guide

Two new jazz movie sound tracks:

LES LIAISONS DANGEREUSES — Art Blakley's Jazz Messengers with Barney Wilen, tenox sax — EPIC LA 16022.

The most controversial motion picture ever made in France is now being seen by American audiences more than three years after its original release, due to censorship problems.

Without getting into film criticism, I can say the music fitted the picture beautifully and yet stands alone on solo hearing very well.

Ironically, the main theme is titled "No Problem." Latin transformations of the theme provide excitement, as do the solos of French sex man Wilen (mentioned recently in this column in connection with the work of John Lewis).

The score is no-fooling, hard-driving modern jazz and the best jazz track to a film yet made as far as I'm concerned.

WALK ON THE WILD SIDE —Music composed and conducted by Elmer Bernstein— CHOREO Stereo AS-4.

Another jazz track alternating with full orchestra themes.

While closer to the run-of-the-mill soupy movie background music efforts, the orchestral tracks do have a certain catchiness—perhaps the reason this is a fast-selling LP at the moment. Perhaps when I get around to viewing the picture, they will mean more dramatically.

Meanwhile, I'll savor the four straight jazz tracks, which often remind one of the work Bernstein did for "Man with the Golden Arm." That picture, by the way, started this whole movie-sound-track business, which now has blossomed into such staggering dimensions that you can even purchase the sound track to "Birth of a Nation"—a silent picture.

ELLINGTONIA

The Indispensable Duke Ellington and His Orchestra— From the "Golden Years" 1940-1946—RCA Victor LPM-6009.

This is one of three Victor re-releases of material that Duke recorded for them during the hey-day of big bands —when his magnificent group was setting a standard that had tremendous influence on many other bands. Among the four tracks in the two-disc set never before released are two gorgeous Lawrence Brown trombone vehicles: "Blue Cellophane" and "Blue Is the Night." The extended composition, "The Perfume Suite," is also of great interest.

CONVERSATION

Do you see how the foolish walk
There in the dust,
Walking there on the road,
Walking through green fields grow
On either side?
Stupidly
They desire no more than this:
To walk on the white and dusty road
Eternally.

Easy enough for us to talk—
Easy enough,
Sitting here on the fence,
Sitting and swinging our legs;
Though I must say,
Personally,
I desire no more than this:
To sit on the fence and swing my legs
Eternally.

Story Of Minorities' Struggle Against Establishment's Yoke

ANOTHER COUNTRY by James Baldwin, Dial Press, 436 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Baldwin has built his latest novel around the struggles of three sometimes overlapping groups—the Negro, the homosexual and the bohemian — against the humiliations accorded them by conformist America.

He writes with compassion and understanding of the minorities, with rage against their persecutors.

The result is a harsh, frank and powerful book, set in New York where these three groups have been less servile, less yielding than in most other places.

But the overall tone of the book is one of depression and gloom. Baldwin offers no real hope that the dissenters will be able to either defeat or convert their oppressors. In his closing pages, however, he does seem to be saying that the victims of discrimination have one weapon which will enable them to better withstand their hurts and scars—love.

Some readers may tire of the air of hopelessness that permeates the pages of the book. But it has the ring of truth. And it should prick the conscience of even the most smug.

Turmoil In Kenya

UHURU by Robert Ruark, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 555 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

There is, the author says, no attempt to prescribe cures or point out morals in this big, virile, roughly-hewn novel about the new Africa. It is simply "a truth."

And as a mirror of today's turmoil on the Dark Continent, it is an impressive piece of work, although one suspects the image is a bit distorted by Ruark's own prejudices. If there are no morals, there is considerable propagandizing.

Ruark paints a starkly realistic picture of Kenya on the brink of "uhuru" or freedom. He builds his story around the bitter, often violent, discords which divide the peoples of Africa—particularly the black from white.

He pulls no punches in painting the ignorant savagery and indolence of the tribes. And he also spells out the more calculated cruelty, the arrogance and obstinancy of the white colonials. He seems, however, strangely unaware that there is greater excuse for the shortcomings of the uneducated blacks than for the flaws of the educated whites. And, in keeping with his personal belief that Black Africa is far from ready for uhuru, he reserves his greatest scorn for Negro politicians, pictured, with one exception, as scheming, opportunistic demagogues.

The reader will soak up a great deal of African lore and information on life and problems of the Kenya of today. He will become engrossed in the dramatic if wordy story of racial conflict which pales, by comparison, the struggle taking place in our own South. He may also become irritated by Ruark's inability to shake off his own Great White Hunter background so that he has given his own race all the better of things. Still, the reader will enjoy the book thoroughly.

THE SOUTHWEST IN LIFE AND LITERATURE compiled by C. L. Sonnichsen, Devin-Adair Co., 554 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Figures, factual and fictional, from the Karankaway Indians and the Conquistadores through the badmen and the marshals who fought them to the exploited Latins of a present-day Edna Ferber novel, appear in this hefty collection of regional writing.

There are essays, brief recollections, short stories, factual articles and excerpts from historical works and other books.

"Contributors" in addition to the afore-mentioned Miss Ferber include the likes of J. Frank Dobie, Paul I. Wellman, Conrad Richter, J. Evetts Haley, Owen P. White, Roy Bedichek, R. L. Duffus, Harvey Fergusson, Frank Waters and Ruth Murray Underhill.

The cast includes such giants as Cabeza de Vaca, Cochise, John Wesley Hardin, Billy the Kid and Wyatt Earp. But for us the most memorable figure is the part Negro cowpuncher Henry Beckwith who appears in a piece from Dobie's "The Longhorns." To us Beckwith — they dubbed him "the coyote" — typified the heroic Southwesterner far better than a Hardin or an Earp. And the Dobie contribution is a truly superlative picture of the life of the cowboy as it actually was.

There are some "weak sisters" in the book. It is difficult to understand why some of the shorter pieces were included. And there are omissions—Have cattle been so much more important than oil to the Southwest that the latter can be completely overlooked? How about the Texans who fought the Mexicans for independence? But there is also a wealth of good reading about a fascinating area and people written by men and women who love and understand the region.

Stonewall's Halo

STONEWALL JACKSON AND THE AMERICAN CIVIL WAR by George F. R. Henderson, Fawcett Publications, 558 pages, paperback, 75 cents. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

In the rococo '90s, it was the fashion for biographers to paint their subjects larger than lifesize. No "life" was complete without a literary halo for its hero.

Col. George Francis Robert Henderson, a British military writer, followed the fashion when he wrote the biography of his favorite hero of the American Civil War: Lt. Gen. Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson of the Confederacy.

Henderson did wide and intensive research, and applied his military knowledge to produce lucid explanations of strategy and tactics. His battle descriptions are excellent, but the narrative is weakened by the fulsome encomiums and by Henderson's insistence that Jackson could do no wrong.

For the Fawcett reissue of "Henderson's Jackson" as a paperback, E. B. Long has abridged the Briton's lengthy book. Unfortunately, he has edited out some of Henderson's descriptions of Civil War campaigns, and left in all the sticky encomiums.

Henderson constructed an ornate but imposing Victorian edifice. Long remodeled it by lowering the roof but leaving all the gingerbread.

OUTDOOR GARDENING IN POTS AND BOXES by George Taloumis, D. Van Nostrand Co., 235 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Horticulturist Taloumis has turned out a most practical textbook on outdoor gardening in containers.

The information is there on potting techniques, on soil mixtures and the day-to-day care of plants. There are some imaginative suggestions as to unusual containers. There is some sound advice to help you in choosing your plants with some of the more popular plants being accorded individual treatment. And there are ideas on how to make the most effective use of pots, planters and window boxes around homes, in gardens, on patios, at entrances, on decks and sills, on rooftops, for business places and in city beautification.

Photographs in both color and black and white further enrich the book's contents.

ROBERT RUARK, author, columnist and big game hunter, is the author of "Uhuru," a novel set in Kenya. It's the Book of the Month Club selection for July.

Movie Queen Tells Of Struggle To Top

A PORTRAIT OF JOAN by Joan Crawford with Jane Kesmer Ardmore, Doubleday and Co., 239 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The audience for autobiographies by glamorous movie queens and idolized athletes seems to have diminished considerably in recent years —particularly in the first category—but it has not disappeared.

But most of those who now read these stories by Hollywood celebrities about their struggles to the top seem to prefer entertainers who take neither themselves nor their careers too seriously. Joan Crawford takes both herself and her work very, very seriously — sometimes to the point of being tiresome.

Like so many other Hollywood figures who have written autobiographies she dwells much on early hardships and upon the hard work which took her to and kept her on the top.

The fact is that many of her readers have worked as hard or harder at occupations at least equally as useful with far less reward and far fewer vacations.

She is generous in expounding her views on marriage — although the fact that she divorced three men before finally finding a satisfactory mate would hardly seem to qualify her as an expert on the subject.

She is equally loquacious on the responsibilities of motherhood—although it is admitted that she has had difficulties with the two oldest of her four adopted children.

She is certain that it was her business ability, not sentiment, which caused her to be elected to Pepsi-Cola's board of directors after the death of her executive-husband. No thought is given to the possible publicity value of having the name Joan Crawford associated with the firm.

Still, the writer is the glamorous and unquestionably talented Joan Crawford. Her fans will enjoy reading her story. And that alone is sufficient to guarantee a sizable readership.

For those not under her spell, the book will be less interesting.

TV Viewers Subject Of A New Book

LIVING WITH TELEVISION by Ira O. Glick and Sidney J. Levy, Aldine Publishing Co., 262 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

A lot has been written about television programs and the people who make them. Now here's a book about the people who watch them.

It is based largely upon a series of surveys and studies conducted by Social Research Inc. for the advertising agency Campbell-Ewald Co.

From those studies Glick and Levy attempt to reach conclusions as to how viewers feel about TV and how they use it. There are few surprises, but that doesn't mean the discussion is uninteresting. Particularly enlightening are the many quotes from viewers collected by the survey teams and published in the book. They paint a pretty clear picture of why television is what it is.

San Quentin Prison Chaplain Speaks Out On Gas Chamber

Byron Eshelman Book Supports Earlier Stand Of Clinton Duffy

DEATH ROW CHAPLAIN by Byron E. Eshelman with Frank Riley, Prentice-Hall Inc., 244 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"Wherever killing exists, it must be understood as an appropriate symptom for the psychological immaturity of the killer, whether individual or state."

So concludes Rev. Byron E. Eshelman of San Quentin in the penultimate chapter of "Death Row Chaplain."

It would appear that personnel, past and present, of California's biggest prison, are mounting a campaign against the death penalty. This book by Eshelman, senior Protestant chaplain at the institution, follows by only a few weeks "33 Men and Two Women" by former Warden Clinton T. Duffy—released by a different publisher.

The proximity of the two publication dates is coincidence, Eshelman told this reviewer.

"I didn't know what Duffy was doing, and he didn't know what I was doing," he said.

IT WOULD appear more than coincidence, however, that their conclusions — though reached by very different approaches — are virtually the same. Both find the death penalty unnecessary, unjustly applied, degrading and useless.

Killing, to Chaplain Eshelman, is made more evil rather than less evil when surrounded by the legal ritual which attends the execution.

He asks: "What would we think of a private citizen who apprehended his victim and informed him:

" 'I am going to kill you. It may be a year, two years, three or even 12 years, but I am going to kill you. Meanwhile, I am going to lock you up in a small steel and concrete cage, fatten you up and keep you there until I am ready to kill you.'

"Yet that is what we do when a person has been sentenced to die."

Clinton Duffy grew up at San Quentin, the son of a guard, with execution day a horrifying reality of childhood. He vowed then to fight against the death penalty; he is still fighting now, in retirement, after supervising 90 executions during the years that he was warden.

NO SUCH childhood conditioning affected Byron Eshelman. He grew up far from prison walls. "Death Row Chaplain" does not tell when first he revolted at the 20th century application of Mosaic law—whether it was on Aug. 17, 1951, when he walked from the ready room to gas chamber with John Calvin Odle, the first of 75 he has seen die, or whether it was much earlier.

The book does give an interesting account of how Eshelman became "Death Row Chaplain" instead of following in his father's footsteps as pastor of a Methodist church. His first experience with institutional chaplain work was at Alcatraz, and it would appear to have been discouraging enough; but the belief and desire was there to draw him back when a San Quentin chaplaincy was offered.

There is more of the zealot's fire in the chaplain's book than in the warden's. Eshelman also feels more free to employ the shock treatment (or perhaps this is the work of his collaborator, Frank Riley).

Not all his conclusions match Duffy's. The former warden devoted a chapter to proving Caryl Chessman was a no-good. Eshelman devotes a chapter to proving that he was a man of remarkable abilities who found himself on Death Row.

And he declares flatly of Chessman's execution: "I believe that the State of California executed the wrong man."

He also expresses grave doubts of the guilt of Barbara Graham in the Mabel Monahan murder for which she was put to death.

As for the death penalty, Eshelman writes:

"CRIMINALS unwittingly perform a divine mission of disrupting the idolatrous complacency of modern society. They shake us and upset us by menacing our precious substitutes for God—our money, our homes, our automobiles, our jewels, even our families and our bodies. We then have an opportunity, of which we seldom avail ourselves, to see where our value system has been warped and what it is we have been loving more than God."

And so, from time to time, we sacrifice one of these men —not upon an altar, but in a gas chamber, or an electric chair, or on the gallows.

"On each execution day," writes Chaplain Eshelman, "I pray for the executioners as well as for the man whose life is to be taken."

A Guide Gives The Answers To Queries On Studying Abroad

A GUIDE TO STUDY ABROAD by John A. Garraty and Walter Adams. Channel Press, 288 pages, $5.95; paperbound $2.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

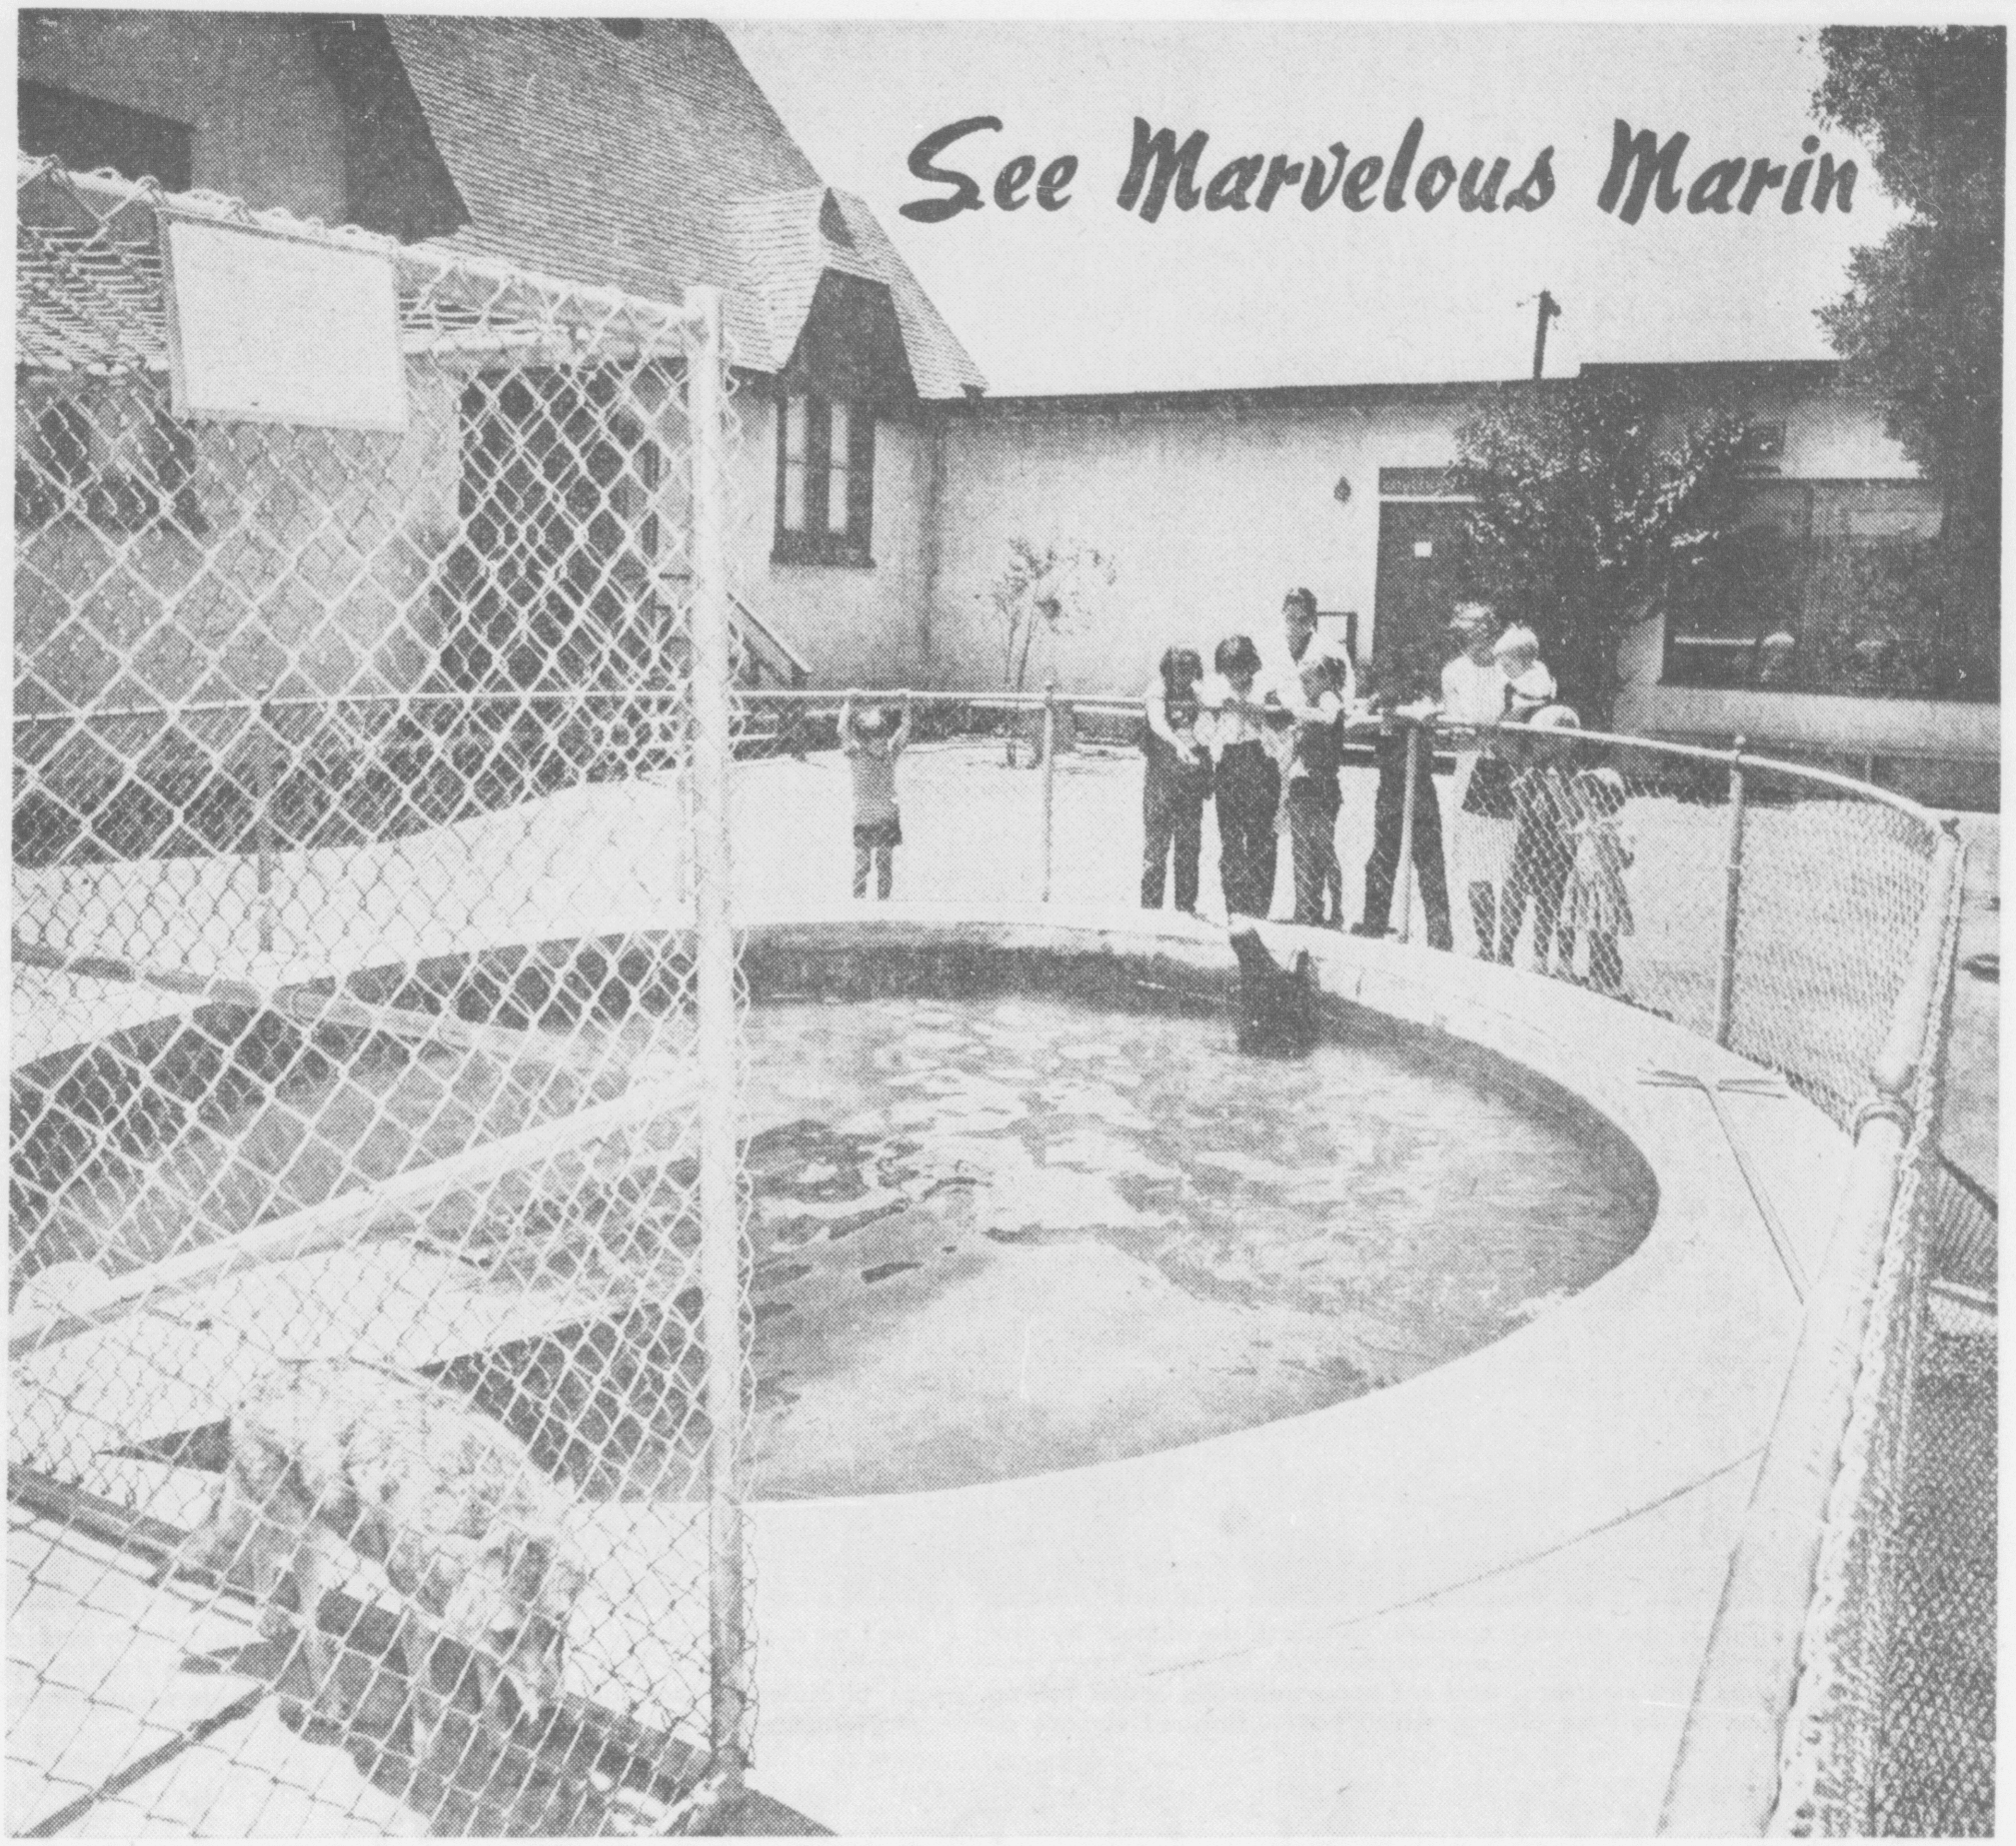

Any student who contemplates university, summer school or study and work programs in Europe, Latin America or the Near or Far East will find most of the answers to his questions in this new and comprehensive volume, which also is available in paperback edition.

The book is based upon the authors' on-the-spot observations of many of the universities and other educational institutions, some American sponsored, and on the catalogues and brochures issued by a long list of schools.

Eleven chapters consider the basics of foreign study, higher education outside the United States, regular academic year sessions, typical programs in detail, summer school programs in detail, tours combined with education programs, work and study "living abroad" programs, what preparations to make, costs and how to keep it down, making the most of the time, and finally, where to write for information and assistance.

The whole is well organized for quick reference—so if you prefer the University of Iceland you quickly learn where to write, and, furthermore, that all instruction is in Icelandic. In most Latin American universities, classes are usually given in the evening so that students may work during the day.

These and similar facts for each geographic area are concisely explained in the course of the book's examination of 500 study offerings abroad.

THE BIGGEST HAM at the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum in San Rafael—and consequently a favorite with the youngsters—is Easter the Seal seen doing a bit of entertaining here. Easter splashes happily in her own private tank. Meanwhile El Coyote paces restlessly in his pen. In addition to many animals, there are scientific exhibits and diaramas inside the building in the background to entertain and educate young and old alike. (Independent-Journal photo)

A Visit With Easter And Her Friends

A soft-eyed deer, a sleepy turtle and a seal who's a cut-up.

Those are only three of the reasons why San Rafael's Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum is such a popular spot with the youngsters of Marin. And, for that matter, with their parents, too.

Everyone likes animals. And the museum has a collection with special appeal.

There are deer, turtles, skunks, raccoons, possum, ferret, snakes, lizards, bobcat, fox, ocelot, owls, rats, mice, porcupines chipmunks, a Golden eagle, ducks, guinea pigs, rabbits etc.

But the favorite with the visitors is Easter the Seal, a carefree clown who cavorts comically in her own private tank outside the museum building.

The eagle and the coyote also have outside quarters. The other animals are located in a special room inside but a building program is under way to provide them, too, with exterior quarters, thus freeing space within the museum for other purposes.

RUNNING SECOND to the animals as an attraction at the museum are the diaramas which depict the five life zones of animals in Marin County.

Special exhibits from time to time may cover such subjects as insect collections or Bay Area Indian artifacts.

The building with its animal room, exhibits and a meeting hall is a combination of an old Episcopal Church and an old residence, each purchased for $1 and moved to the museum site on Albert Park Lane off B Street just south of the San Rafael business district.

The land is owned by the San Rafael Optimist Club and rented to the museum for $1 a year.

The museum is open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m. It is closed all day on Mondays. There is no admission charge.

Murray Dailey is the museum director. James Neider serves as his assistant.

The institution was founded in 1955 "to promote a better appreciation and understanding of Marin County's distinctive wildlife, the wonders of nature and the wisdom of conservation." The museum aims to make learning about wildlife, sciences and natural resources more interesting for children—"in other words," says Dailey, "loads of fun."

First known as the Junior Museum, the institution's name was changed to the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum to honor Louise Arner Boyd, Arctic explorer and member of a pioneer Marin family, and because it was felt that the name Junior Museum unnecessarily restricted the scope of its activities.

Those activities are manyfold. One of the most popular services is the practice of loaning small animals to organized groups of children, such as a grade school class, who then care for their charge under proper supervision.

Special science programs are geared to the season and aimed especially at youngsters. Typical is the nature movie shown each Saturday at 2 p.m.—preceded by a "holding time" when children can hold and pet the animal of their choice.

Outdoor trips under museum supervision to study reptiles or wildflowers, animals or minerals are popular in the summer. So is the "art in nature" group in which children paint and draw nature.

Museum personnel frequently lecture before school and other groups on wildlife and conservation, and lend technical assistance and materials to teachers.

The museum receives limited financial support from the county and certain school districts, but must look for most of its money to two other sources:

The guilds composed of interested women who raise funds through rummage sales and similar events.

MEMBERSHIPS, which are sold for $5 per family. At age 8 a child can take out a junior membership for 50 cents a year. The benefits include a monthly newspaper, "Lion's Roar," the latest issue of which informed its readers of a photo contest, the receipt of two new fawns Flip and Kip (all animals have been donated to the museum), listed the summer program, provided a natural science crossword puzzle, and offered some advice on what to do if you should come upon a baby deer.

The museum has been subjected to criticism from some persons who feel it is cruel to keep animals in captivity.

But museum director Dailey answers that by pointing out that, because of the care they receive, the museum's animals have three times the life expectancy of the same animals in their natural state. He adds that museum animals were received at an early age, have known no other life, and would be unable to fend for themselves if turned loose. And finally, he believes that the lessons learned by youngsters who visit the Boyd Museum result in a general bettering of conditions for all animals, be they wild or pets.

SANTA ROSA SIDING, the newest specialty product developed by the California Redwood Assn., is tough and economical. Its rough-sawn surface thwarts bumps and scratches, and redwood naturally resists rotting and termite attack. Santa Rosa Siding, which has a finished surface as well as a saw-textured surface, is suitable for both interior and exterior applications. It has been given Federal Housing Administration approval as a material acceptable for homes under consideration for an FHA mortgage.

The Newest In Redwood Products

Marin Living

Santa Rosa Siding, a reverse board and batten pattern resawn from inch-and-a-half-thick stock, has been developed by the California Redwood Assn. to introduce upper-grade redwood siding to homes in even lower price brackets.

The association says that its strong vertical lines in six, eight and 10-inch widths fit both contemporary and traditional designs.

A choice is offered is several widths and in two surfaces—finished and saw-textured—to permit a greater variety of treatment.

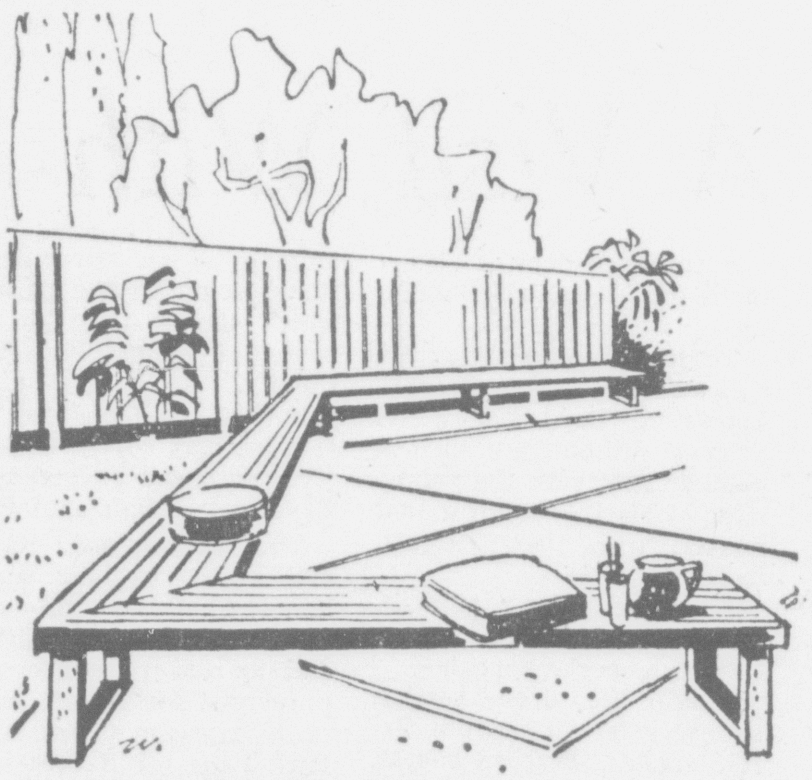

And the new pattern already has the approval of the Federal Housing Administration, as a siding material acceptable for homes under consideration for FHA loans.

Economy is achieved by using half-inch boards as under-battens under standard three-quarters-inch boards. These under-battens cut building costs, the association says, covering more wall area per board foot than other vertical siding patterns.

Redwood contains natural preservatives which resist rotting and repel termites. It can be left without any finish at all to weather slowly over the years to a buckskin tan or driftwood gray, or its natural beauty can be modified by a number of bleaches or stains.

The Santa Rosa Siding pattern is a trademarked product of the association's member companies: Arcata Redwood Co, Georgia-Pacific Corp., The Pacific Lumber Co., Simpson Timber Co., Union Lumber Co. and Willits Redwood Products Co.

A data sheet on the new product can be obtained by writing Department PF13, California Redwood Assn., 576 Sacramento Street, San Francisco, 11, Calif.

GIVE YOUR PATIO a graceful ending by building a simple garden bench around its perimeter. Use Douglas fir two-by-fours and stain them a soft buckskin beige or let them weather to silver. The bench does a fine job of blending paved patio into adjacent lawn area.

Water Heater Care

Why do water heaters wait until after midnight to spring a leak?

The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau raises this question by way of emphasizing the fact that water heater leaks often occur at a most inconvenient time such as when the family is asleep or when the homemaker is in the midst of a big family wash.

In this connection the bureau stresses the importance of preventative maintenance for water heaters.

While the water heater is an automatic appliance, it does require some attention. Once every two or three months, the householder should open the valve at the bottom of the water heater tank and drain out a bucketful of hot water containing accumulated scale and sediment.

Preventative maintenance starts with the purchase of a water heater. This is the vital time when the capacity of the heater should be considered in relation to the demands made upon it now and in the foreseeable future.

The bureau points out that tank failure due to corrosion is likely to occur if the tank is undersized. The more frequently hot water is withdrawn from a tank, the more often the internal tank surface is exposed to a fresh supply of dissolved oxygen. The rate of corrosion is related to the amount of oxygen available to the metal surfaces in the tank.

The Heat-Loving Oleander Will Also Thrive In Coastal Garden

When the weather turns hot enough to make you run for cover, as it does occasionally even in Marin, take a look at the Oleanders.

Chances are they'll be covered with a springlike blanket of bloom, looking fresher than thay have any right to.

These heat-defying shrubs are prime summer attractions throughout California, and even in the coolest coastal gardens the Oleander makes an attractive evergreen shrub despite its paucity of bloom.

They have long been used as colorful hedgerows and barriers and, more recently, as boundary or dividing shrubs on many freeways. They always prove something of a sensation to incoming tourists from the East.

While individual specimens of Oleander are nice to look at, the California Assn. of Nurserymen suggests that they are far more effective when used en masse. Try lining a driveway with them or drawing a boundary between your property and the next. Use them as a street - front barrier to screen out noise and dust from passing traffic. They can be kept compact with pruning shears, so don't hesitate to plant them for lack of wide open spaces.

For coastal gardeners, the association suggests planting oleander in large containers and placing them where they get reflected sun — from a wall or from the concrete of patio and walks. The more you shelter them from the tempering influence of fog and overcast, and the more heat you trap for them, the more they will bloom.

Other than heat, there is no special cultural demand made by these colorful summer-blooming shrubs. They prefer some water to promote growth, but are seen to thrive without it on occasion. They are indifferent to soil and seem at home in both sandy loam and clay provided drainage is good.

Nurserymen offer several varieties for your selection. Most are in the familiar shrub form, but some have been pruned up to expose the trunk, making them usable as small trees of striking character. Flowers are either double or single and colors range from white to red with shades of pink and near yellow to be found in between.

SOME NAMED varieties to look for include:

Cherry Ripe, a single rose Oleander; Mrs. Roeding, salmon pink and double; Jannoch, a single red; Sister Agnes, a single white; Pink Beauty, a single pink; Compte Barthelemy, a double red. There are a good many unnamed varieties, also, including one or two with cream to buff-yellow blossoms.

Oleander is probably the most spectacular and most used of our heat-loving summer shrubs, it it is not the only one to be found by a long shot. Another that really sops up the sun and the more it gets, the more is blooms, is Crape Myrtle. Like Oleander, it is best away from the coast, but may tried wherever you can give it a sun-baked location. The blooms are worth a little trouble.

Crape Myrtles produce full heads of crape-like flowers in a wide range of colors: red, pink, lavender, purple, white and rose. They should be considered shrubs, but they will become small trees in time and should be pruned up accordingly.

Crape Myrtle has two attributes besides bloom which will be of interest in your garden: The bark shreds and peels, exposing a pink layer underneath of ornamental interest. And in fall, before the leaves drop off, they often turn to rich shades of gold and red.

AGAIN LIKE Oleanders, the Crape Myrtles thrive with a minimum of attention and are seemingly better for a lack of moisture at their roots. Winter pruning to head back old growth will help keep the shrub-like character or encourage more open forms as you see fit. This should be done in the dead of winter, before any new growth starts.

There are many named varieties, but if you shop for them during the coming weeks, you will see the bloom and choose the color you want. You can worry about nomenclature afterward.

THE OLEANDER is a hardy evergreen that produces maximum bloom. Flowers range from white through light pink, yellow, salmon, deep rose and red. The shrub is excellent for lining a roadway or drive. Flowering season runs from May into October. Inset shows you what to look for at the nursery. (California Assn. of Nurserymen photo)

Vines Are One Good Way To Ward Off Summer Sun

When you think of summer shade, are your thoughts only for trees?

Or have you known the beauty and usefulness of the vine fabric in warding off rays of a hot summer sun or wind.

Vine covered arbors and trellises have become an integral part of architecture in California. They are nature's own air conditioners and will absorb the solar blast like nothing which hammer and nails can put together. The presence of green foliage overhead is mentally as well as physically cooling for someone who sits underneath.

In our coastal areas, too, the vine covered trellis can provide protection from afternoon glare and the reflection of sun off water. We don't plant vines merely for relief of heat.

The grape arbor is one of the most satisfying canopies under which the sun-weary gardener can repose, for not only shade but fruit is provided. And in winter, when sun is no longer a bother, the grape sheds its leaves to admit light. Talk about climate control.

Mid-summer is not the usual planting time for grapes, but it's the time we think of planting them, and fortunately, many nurserymen have a supply of container-grown grape vines. Be sure to follow your nurseryman's advice as to variety.

The grape arbor is most effective when grown as an attachment to the house, especially on the south or west exposure. It can project no more than eight or 10 feet out from the house wall, or it can extend considerably further. Plant a vine at each support post and prune out side growth during the first dormant season. The idea is to encourage a strong leader to climb each post onto the trellis top.

Other than the grape, most summer-shading vines are evergreen and their winter foliage should be considered before planting. Will it be wanted or unwanted when the time comes?

Then one other deciduous vine which nurserymen recommend without hesitation for summer shade is the Wisteria.

Wisteria is a rampant grower and will provide as much shade as your pruning shears allow. In spring, of course, the lovely, fragrant pannicles of lavender, pink or white are a real spectacle in themselves. Container-grown Wisterias are easy to transplant.

Shade Tree Needs Iron

Leaf coloration in the autumn is normal, but when the foliage of a shade tree turns yellow in early or mid-summer it is an indication of poor health.

The ailment is known as "chlorosis." This term aptly describes the trouble—loss of chlorophyll or green coloring matter in the leaves.

Chlorosis of shade trees generally is caused by lack of iron. This element is necessary for the production of chlorophyll which, in turn, is essential in photosynthesis, the process by which the leaves manufacture food. Severe chlorosis san cause death of trees through starvation.

Treatment of affected trees varies. Sometimes iron salts are sprayed on the foliage or injected into the trunk. Chelated iron, a relatively new product, may be applied either to the soil or the leaves. Or equal parts of iron sulfate, finely ground sulfur, aluminum sulfate and ammonium sulfate may be introduced into the soil for root absorption.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- √ You can brighten your garden with a few pots of blooming geraniums or pelargoniums.
- √ Bougainvillea bloom will be intensified if you keep the plants on the dry side.
- √ Tall bearded iris may be divided at this time. This is unnecessary if plants are not crowded.
- √ Cut roses and other blooming plants before the flowers go to seed.

FIRST IMPRESSION

Front Yard Can Make Or Break Your Home

Few aspects of gardening are more important than putting up a good front—insuring that the first impression one has of your home is a pleasant one.

For while first impressions are often misleading, they have a way of lingering in people's minds.

At the same time, few aspects of gardening are given less thought and planning than the street side of a house. People seem content to plant a lawn and a few evergreen shrubs and let it go at that. This course can give as bad a first impression as a poorly planned or overplanted landscape.

LANDSCAPING the front garden, whether it's in a new home or an old one, should start with a plan. The professional services of a landscaper, are helpful here—in fact they are almost a necessity.

Where parking strips exist, the front yard plan should start right there. A ground cover such as Ornamental Strawberry, Aaron's Beard or English Ivy is called for and so, too, may be a tree or trees.

Next you must determine what is best for the broad expanse of front yard: A lawn? Ivy? An enclosed patio? Lawns are beautiful when well groomed and should be given priority. In small front yards where lawn is planted, however, care should be taken not to chop it up with a walk.

Stepping stones — despite their greater upkeep—permit the lawn to flow through them and create a continuous line.

FRONT YARD trees should be moderate in size and scope —a group of white bark birch at one side, perhaps, or a flowering dogwood. Tall growing evergreens in the front or too close to a house are not as suitable since they provide unwanted winter shade which is apt to be gloomy and damp.

The final consideration is the foundation planting and care should be given not to over plant—nor to plant with shrubs that may soon overgrow. Heavenly bamboo, India hawthorn, juniper and other moderate shrubs are first choice. They can be left for years to create the good first impression you want.

FOUR DECADES OF COMEDY antics will be covered when the one-hour "The World of Bob Hope" is repeated as a "Purex Special" on KRON Friday at 9:30 p.m. At lower right Bob can be seen as an early vaudeville performer. At left, with beautiful Gina Lolobrigida after reaching movie and television stardom. And at upper right in a favorite pose on the Palm Springs golf course.
